NEARLY READY:

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX, ...1893...

INCLUDING PERIODICALS, AMERICAN AND ENGLISH, ESSAYS, BOOK-CHAPTERS, ETC.,
SPECIAL BIBLIOGRAPHIES AND NECROLOGY OF AUTHORS.

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER,

With the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1893 complements the "Annual American Catalogue" of books published in 1893 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1892; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1892; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1892; (5) authors deceased in 1892. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

The new volume includes the features of the "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," originally a monthly supplement to the Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly in an enlarged form, and later issued as an annual volume.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1893 forms the second supplement both to the new five-yearly volume (1887-1891) of Poole's Index to Periodical Literature and to the new A. L. A. Index to essays and book-chapters of Mr. Fletcher.

The new volume will more than fulfil the opinion as to the Co-operative Index expressed in the following extract:

"To the literary worker its value can hardly be over-estimated; to the specialist in any branch of science or letters it is indispensable, since it places within his immediate reach many of the latest fruits of labor in the same field. To every one who desires to be well informed it furnishes the means of making the most effective use of his time."—Providence Press.

One vol., cloth, (uniform with "A. L. A. Index,") $3.50.

WHOLE No. 1153

D. Appleton & Co.'s New Books.

A History of the United States Navy,

From 1775 to 1894. By EDGAR STANTON MACLAY, A.M. With technical revision by Lieut. Roy C. Smith, U. S. N. In two volumes. Vol. I. With numerous maps, diagrams, and illustrations. 8vo, cloth, $3.50.

For nine years the author has devoted himself to the task of supplying the want of a complete history of our navy. His researches in France, with the assistance of Admiral Aube, Minister of the Colonies and the Marine, and in England with the aid of the late Sir Provo Wallis and others, together with the use of private papers and unpublished documents in this country, the aid of descendants of naval heroes and the suggestions of naval officers who have taken part in some of the events described, render the results of his diligent labor complete and authoritative. The appearance of a standard history of the navy is a peculiarly happy accompaniment of the development of our new navy.

(Volume II. will be published in May next.)

Maxims for Training Remount Horses for Military Purposes.

By J. Y. MASON BLUNT, Lieutenant Fifth Cavalry, U. S. A. Illustrated. 16mo, cloth, 50 cents.

This little manual will supply a want that has long existed among cavalrymen and others for an authoritative book of instruction in the training of recruit or "remount" horses. It deals with every stage of progress, from elementary exercise to the most advanced drill and discipline under fire. It will be found serviceable not alone in its military bearings but to all interested in the training of horses for the saddle.

Lot 13.

By DOROTHEA GERARD, author of "Lady Baby," "Orthodox," "A Queen of Curds and Cream," etc. No. 135, Town and Country Library. 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

"Romance pure and simple has full sway in Dorothea Gerard's story, 'A Queen of Curds and Cream.' The author has written nothing better, and one may well doubt if she has ever produced anything quite as good."—Boston Beacon.

Our Manifold Nature.

Stories from Life. By SARAH GRAND, author of "The Heavenly Twins," "Ideala," etc. No. 136, Town and Country Library. With portrait. 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

In these stories the author of "The Heavenly Twins" shows some of her strongest and most impressive work. The great number of readers who have been charmed with her previous books will not fail to discern therein the qualities which have gained for her such prompt and widespread recognition.

NOTES IN SEASON.

BRENTANO's announce the immediate publication of "The Epicurean," a Franco-American encyclopædia of cookery, by Charles Ranhofer, chef at Delmonico's.

E. P. DUTTON Co. have nearly ready a new and entirely revised edition of Farrar's "Life of Christ," with copious notes. The revision has just been completed by Archdeacon Farrar.

GINN & Co. will publish in April in their Athenæum Press Series "Selections from the Poetry and Prose of Thomas Gray," edited with introduction and notes by Wm. Lyon Phelps, instructor in English literature at Yale College.

THOMAS WHITTAKER will publish at once the last work of the late Dr. Samuel Cox. It is entitled "The Hebrew Twins," and is a vindication of God's ways with Jacob and Esau. Dr. Cox's widow contributes an interesting memorial sketch to the volume.

TOWN TOPICS PUBLISHING Co. have just ready the March issue of "Tales from Town Topics," number eleven of these popular compilations, which contains the prize story, "An Eclipse of Virtue," by Champion Bissell, of which the heroine is a beautiful young widow with an immense fortune. This story is accompanied by the usual bright collection of anecdotes, poems and witticisms gleaned from the columns of Town Topics.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will issue at once "The Story of Margrédel," a fireside history of a Fifehire family by a new writer, which will be brought out in the same attractive shape as "Ships that Pass in the Night." They have also in press "The Natural Law of Money," by William Brough; and "The Sphere of the State," by Frank Sargent Hoffman, which; considers the people as a body politic with special reference to certain problems of the present day.

THE office of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY has just ready "The Annual Literary Index, 1893," indexing American and English periodicals of 1893, essays, book-chapters, etc., and including special bibliographies of 1893 and necrology of authors deceased in 1893. Besides usefully complementing the "Annual American Catalogue, 1893," this volume forms the second supplement both to the new five-yearly volume of "Poole's Index" (1887-1891), and to the "A. L. A. Index" to essays and book-chapters, compiled by W. I. Fletcher, and covering the period to 1892.

D. APPLETON & Co. will issue next month an English translation of Baron Claude-François de Ménéval's "Mémoires Pour Servir à l'Histoire de Napoléon I^{er}, 1802-1815," a work written about fifty years ago by one of the most trusted of Napoleon's private secretaries, which has now been wholly remodelled and revised by his grandson, and which will be issued simultaneously in England, France, and America. The book will be in three volumes, and will be hailed with delight by the collectors of Napoleon literature, as it covers much ground wholly unexplored by the great majority of the biographers of Napoleon. Ménéval was constantly about his great chief, and has taken note of many details of his private life and personal habits. This house also has in press "Memoirs of Edward L. Youmans," by John Fiske, who will prove an appreciative biographer of the founder of The Popular Science Monthly, the originator of The International Scientific Series, and the introducer of Spencer, Tyndall, Huxley and others to an American audience; "Symbolic Education," by Susan E. Blow, a book for mothers as well as teachers; and "Aphorisms from the Writings of Herbert Spencer," selected and arranged by Julia Raymond Gingell. The Town and Country Library will also shortly receive what must prove very popular additions in Dorothea Gerard's "Lot 13;" Sarah Grand's "Our Manifold Nature, a collection of short stories;" Rhoda Broughton's "A Beginner;" Maxwell Gray's "A Costly Freak;" and Gilbert Parker's "The Trespasser," said to be better work than any yet shown by this brilliant Canadian writer.

Balestier, Wolcott. Benefits forgot. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 3+460 p. D. cl., $1.50. [594]

The picturesque life of a newly settled town in Colorado, with its heterogeneous population of men and women from all states in the Union in search of fortune or health, and its mining element making or losing fortunes every moment almost, is the background. The leading characters are James Deed, a New York lawyer, and his two sons, Jasper and Philip. The elder Deed is a widower, and is about to marry again when the story opens. On the morning of his wedding-day he learns of an unscrupulous and ungrateful act on the part of his eldest son Jasper towards himself, which interrupts the whole current of the narrative, and is the basis of all the after-events. The characters, evidently drawn from life, are rich in western "slang" and eccentricities; the scene-painting is most artistic. Was published in the Century.

A manuscript found in an old deserted German rectory records the story of the chaplain's daughter. She lived early in the eighteenth century and loved a young theological student, who was eventually to succeed her father as court chaplain. But her betrothed was a Bohemian at heart, never willingly a priest, and on their marriage eve he fled with another woman. His return, repentance, and death years afterwards, conclude the story. Two other short stories are included: "Misunderstood" and "Jascha."

The author believes that Venetian painting is the most complete expression in art of the Italian Renaissance. "The Renaissance stands for youth, and youth alone—for intellectual curiosity and energy, grasping at the whole of life as material, which it hopes to mould to any shape. . . . At Venice alone this expression attained perfection." The index covers fifty pages and is an index to the works of Venetians in all the principal galleries and celebrated private collections of the world.

Cotterell, Constance. Tempe: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. 8+244 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 743.) pap., 50 c. [608]

The story of Tempe Rivers, a young English girl living in Stuttgart with her uncle. Tempe was a happy, clever, attractive girl, whose aim in life was "the cultivation of her own individuality." She is first introduced at a crowded Volksfest, where becoming separated from her chaperon she indulges in a balloon ascension in company with handsome Major Wainwright to the intense surprise of the "Mrs. Grundys" of Stuttgart. Her uncle's loss of fortune, her literary work, her life in England, and the love offered her by three different men are the chief incidents. The story is told in a bright, sympathetic style, and with many details.

Davis, W. Morris. Elementary meteorology. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1894. c. 12+855 p. il. O. cl., $2.70. [610]

The plan of this book may be concisely stated. The origin and uses of the atmosphere are first considered, with its extent and arrangement around the earth. Then, as the winds depend on differences of temperature over the world, the control of the temperature of the atmosphere by the sun is discussed, and the actual distribution and variations of temperature are examined. Next follows an account of the motions of the atmosphere in the general and local winds; the moisture of the atmosphere is then studied in regard to its origin, its distribution, and its condensation into dew, frost, and clouds; storms are then discussed, in which are included cyclones, tornadoes, and other disturbances, etc., etc., and closing chapters are given to the succession of atmospheric phenomena that ordinarily follow one another on which our local variations of weather depend, together with some account of weather prediction.

Twelve lectures dealing with nearly all the great living questions connected with our laws and jurisprudence, such as legal education, trial by jury, judicial tenure, the origin, development, and characteristics of the common law, written constitutions, legislation, case law, the law reports, judicial precedents, codification, and legal reform. Although these subjects are presented in a popular way, and with an endeavor to surround them with their appropriate historical and literary accompaniments, the real purpose is always a serious purpose, having in view practical ends and results. The discussions are not intended alone for students of the law, but for the practising lawyer as well.

The bibliography covers eight pages, and consists of: A., "Supplementary works" divided into books on the writing, lexica, and the like and grammatical. B., "Texts" embraces general collections, obelisk inscriptions, inscriptions of different places, a few longer manuscripts of the old period, religious texts, late Egyptian and inscriptions of the Graeco-Roman period. C., "Journals," and an appendix for information on the demotic.

Fairbairn, A. M., D.D. Religion in history and in modern life; with an essay on the church and the working classes. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., 1894. 16+271 p. D. cl., $1.50. [617]

Religion in history and in modern life is treated in six lectures under the separate headings: What is religion?; The place and significance of the Old Testament in religion; The New Testament in religion; The Christian religion in the first fifteen centuries of its existence; Christian religion in modern Europe; Christian religion in modern life. The author holds that the ideal of Christ is our hope for the future. The essay included is an arraignment of the church for not suffering its instructions to the modern needs of the working-man.

Foot, Mrs. Mary Hallock. In exile, and other stories. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 3+253 p. D. cl., $1.25. [622]

"In exile" has its scene in a mining-camp in California; the exiles are Frances Newell, a little school-teacher from Connecticut, and Arnold, a civil engineer from Massachusetts. Their little romance is picturesque and touching. The other stories of the west and east are "Friend Barton's concern," "The story of the Alcázar," "A cloud on the mountains," "The rapture of Hetty," and "The watchman."

Myra Barth, the heroine, is the sleep-walker. She is also heiress to a great estate, but when the story opens the birth of a half-brother, soon after her father's death, has deprived her of her inheritance. Consequent unhappiness brings on the somnambulistic state, and in this condition she rises at night, takes the sleeping babe from his cradle and casts him into a reservoir about a mile from her home. The child is rescued, adopted by honest cottagers, and recognized by a rascally physician who is heir to the estate after Myra. From this point there is a constant succession of plots and counterplots to prevent the recovery of the child and to keep Myra from marrying.

A young girl, Andrée Nugent, of English and French parentage, is the "ward in chancery;" her parents have been dead for several years, and she has been the barely tolerated inmate of a Bohemian pension, kept by her hard French aunt in Paris, when unexpectedly she finds herself heiress to a large fortune. Her English half-uncle, Mr. Landon, is the executor of the will, and she is obliged to go to London and live under his roof until she reaches her majority. The Landons are commonplace, respectable, well-to-do people, utterly out of harmony with Andrée's nature. The account of her uncongenial life among them, of her own special friends, her love-story, and Richard Landon's attempts to win her for her fortune, make up a quiet, readable story.

The scene is laid in Canada, in 1849. The hero, who is a Roman Catholic, is disappointed in love and determines to be a priest; after his ordination he learns that the girl still loves him who had once refused her; this throws him into a brain fever, and on his recovery, feeling that he is unfit for the priesthood as he finds his love unchanged, he goes to California, and after an absence of two years returns and marries his early love. The story is only a means of discussing various religious questions.

The author of "Poetry as a representative art" and "The genesis of art form" is professor of aesthetics in the College of New Jersey at Princeton. He holds that in art, religion, philosophy, and science the greatest exponents have resisted the influences of traditionalism sufficiently to be moved as much from within as from without, as much by their own feeling and thinking as by those of others who have preceded them and whose works surround them, by the psychologic fully as much as by the historic method. When production is at its best it is original instead of imitative.

The story is in the form of a diary. The heroine, a woman of rank and culture, had been married when a very young girl to a rich, scholarly, sceptical man many years her senior. In their not unhappy life of intellectual companionship, the old orthodox faith of her youth is completely destroyed. Left a widow at thirty, still beautiful, and yearning for an earthly happiness she has never known, she is brought in contact with a man who had professed to love her before her marriage, but who, when they meet again, is engaged to another woman. Lady Bellarmine and Victor Darrolles love each other and determine to seize their happiness regardless of the claims of others. Margaret's "surrender" finally to the right and to her old belief, in which she is strongly influenced by an Anglican priest, is well told.

Although written in 1877 this book still holds its own as the most complete picture thus far given of ancient Carthage and her two greatest men—Hamilcar Barca and his son Hannibal. The author first gives a general sketch of Carthaginian influence and civilization, then points out the main differences between Carthage and Rome, followed by the account of the great Punic Wars. He has devoted most space to the first war generally treated more briefly by historical writers. At the time of writing Mr. Smith was assistant master at Harrow.

"He and She; or, a poet's portfolio," first appeared in 1883. "She" has now become the poet's wife, and they again engage in conversations on art, literature, and theories of life and death interspersed with many lyrical poems. The little volume ends with a very touching duet, in which "She" clearly shows that "He" is all in all to her regardless of his learning and his talents, and that she is jealous of his thoughts and occupations. Includes discussions on paradise, the creation, Faust, the Arabian Nights, etc.

Dr. Winsor gives an important chapter of the geographical history of the age of American explorations. He narrates the story of the attempts of the French to go into the interior of North America, and shows how by degrees they approximated to an accurate understanding of the problem to be solved. It is the first book devoted to this topic, and Dr. Winsor's profound historical researches, and investigations of the maps depicting the St. Lawrence and vicinity three centuries ago, give very great value and interest to this book.

PICK-UPS.

A DEFINITION OF HALF CALF.—Fresh Young Lady: Don't you love books bound with the leather corners and back? Second ditto: Oh! My! Yes! You mean the kind with "the scrambled-egg sides."

"DOES LITERATURE PAY?" asked the idler. "I should say so," replied the country editor. "Every time we print a poem the author comes in and buys at least twenty copies of the paper to send away."—Washington Star.

THE BEST OF THE BOOK. — He: Which did you like best of my verses? She: Why, the one on the first page! He: Let me see. Which one was that? She: Don't you remember? The one in quotation marks."—Brooklyn Life.

BOOKSELLERS of the far West have not yet become accustomed to uncut leaves. One well-known Boston publisher has just received a letter from a customer to whom he sent a consignment of books, which read very much in this wise: "Your books have been received, but are not, on the whole, satisfactory. The covers and binding are first-class, and the lettering on the backs is very good. But, do you know, while the top edges are gilded, the bottom edges and the front are left without any gilt whatever, besides being very rough, and hardly any of the leaves are cut."—Boston Herald.

A LETTER was recently delivered at the Bible House, New York, which bore the following direction: "Mir Giovanni Diodati, Societa Biblica Americana. Italian. Nonp. 32mo. New York City." The name was not recognized as belonging to any person employed in the building, but could readily be identified as that of an eminent Italian divine who lived three hundred years ago, and whose translation of the Holy Bible into his native tongue was printed in 1607. His name happens to appear on the title-page of an Italian Testament published by the society, and the writer of the letter, who had a copy of that book and desired to obtain the entire Bible, sought to accomplish the purpose by writing to the translator and affixing the society's imprint to make sure of its reaching its destination.—Bible Society Record.

AD ASTRA PER OTIUM.

As I read over old John Dryden's verse,
The rhymes of men like William Blake, and Gay,
The stuff that helped fill Edmund Waller's purse,
And that which placed on Marvell's brow the bay.

It doth appear to me that in those times
The muses quaffed not sparkling wine, but grog,
And that to grow immortal through one's rhymes
Was 'bout as hard as falling off a log.

JOHN KENDRICK BANGS in Harper's Weekly.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 3, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

COPYRIGHT IN MUSIC.

WHILE the public generally has learned to recognize and respect the rights of authors in their literary work, considerable educational work seems still to be needed to impress upon its conscience the same sense respecting the rights of composers to their musical productions. Concerning the latter there seems to be a woful lack of the sense of justice in the minds even of those who might reasonably be expected to know better. So we learn from the Philadelphia Press that the Sunday-School Times, of all authorities, recently advised a clergyman that he had a right to reprint copyright music for the use of his congregation without permission or payment. A music publisher promptly and properly protested. As a matter of course, the minister should have known that he had no more right to appropriate a man's property-right in the music he has composed than the coat on the composer's back.

With regard to music, however, the minds of such as this minister and his adviser seem to operate differently. Time and again Sunday-school superintendents, amateur concert managers and musical societies, in preparing their programmes, wish to reprint certain music; and without compunction they proceed to do it, very often regardless of the fact that the matter they appropriate is copyrighted. And this is done almost daily with impunity, because the occasions have been rare, we might say unknown, on which the offenders have been brought to book.

In England, and on the Continent generally, such offences occur with lesser frequency, no perhaps that there is a much keener recognition in public opinion than here of the rights of brain property, but because publisher and author both are more zealous for their rights. In England, where the performance of popular songs is subject to a stricter royalty than elsewhere, it happens often that repetition is interdicted altogether; and the Press mentions the fact that Tennyson's publishers in England are always quick to interfere with the republication of those of his poems still protected by copyright in school programmes and the like.

The musical public thus far has had little or no cause to complain of lack of courtesy or generosity on the part of either publisher or composer in this country. Whenever permission has been asked the privilege of reprinting or repetition has been freely granted, excepting in rare cases, and then only for good reasons. Such a course has been of little profit to the consenting parties, and seems to have misled those who have benefited by it into the belief that it needed only the wish to possess the composer's property to justify its appropriation without further formality or compensation. It seems therefore not unreasonable that the sufferers are beginning to insist that the public shall recognize the clear principle of copyright law, that not only may the reprint of a musical composition be prevented by law, but that under certain conditions its performance or repetition in public may be protected, and that those who disregard this principle shall be brought to account.

VALUE OF THE GROLIER CLUB PUBLICATIONS.

MEMBERS of the Grolier Club, and the favored few who are able to obtain its publications at first hand, have every reason to be gratified over the evidence of the estimation in which the issues of the club are held. At the third day's sale of the library of the late George McLaughlin, of Cincinnati, O., held at Bangs & Co.'s auction-rooms, New York, in December last, the interest centred in the volumes offered bearing the arms of the club. There were a number of sharp contests and the bidders included representatives of some of the best-known book-collectors in the country. We append a list of the books sold, with the particulars:

DECREE OF STAR CHAMBER concerning Printing made July 11, 1637. 8vo. 150 copies printed. N. Y., 1884, published at $2.

Dark green English straight grain morocco; double sage colored calf, richly tooled throughout in Roger Payne style, arms of the club in their correct colors in centre of double, gilt top, uncut, in case. Sold for $82.

RUBAIYAT of Omar Khayyam, rendered into English verse by Edward Fitzgerald. 152 copies printed. N. Y., 1885, published at $3.

Persian green crushed levant morocco, handsomely tooled, gilt top, uncut, original covers bound in. Sold for $82.

IRVING, W. Knickerbocker's History of New York. With illustrations by Boughton, Drake, and Pyle, and etchings by Eno and F. Raubichuck; impressions in triplicate. 177 copies printed, 1886. 2 vols. 8vo, uncut, published at $20.
Orange crushed levant morocco, emblematically tooled, doublé of richly tooled blue crushed levant morocco, arms of the club in correct colors in centre of doublé, gilt top, uncut, in cases.

THE CHRISTIAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.

A MOVEMENT has been begun in the Catholic Church which is to be conducted on lines somewhat similar to those under which the Methodist Book Concern is carried on. It has been started by the Rev. James L. Meagher, of Cazenovia, N. Y., who has founded the Christian Press Association, which is composed of priests and lay persons, governed by a constitution approved by Mgr. Satolli, the Apostolic Delegate. The association is recommended by more than forty Catholic prelates.

In the Christian Press, which is the organ of the new association, Father Meagher tells how the work is to be carried on.

"The object of the association," he says, "is to teach truth, to enlighten men, to clear up difficulties, to remove errors, to bring about the spirit of Christian unity, to break down prejudices, to draw churches nearer, to educate our people and to spread the knowledge and the love of Jesus Christ among men. We wish to uphold the Constitution of the United States, to foster the liberties we enjoy, to teach our people to obey law, to love the American Commonwealth, to be good citizens in peace and brave soldiers in war—in a word, the association will teach men how to be contented in this world and how to gain heaven in the next."

"To do this the Christian Press Association proposes to establish a publishing house, write books, translate from other languages, publish the fathers of the Church in English, get priests to write for us, do in this country what the Abbé Migne did in France, and perhaps more, use the modern improvements for the printing and the scattering of Christian literature all over the world."

IN HONOR OF GEORGE W. CHILDS.

IMPRESSIVE services in memory of George William Childs will be held at 2 P.M. on Sunday, March 11, under the auspices of Typographical Union No. 6, in the Fifth Avenue Theatre, New York, the use of which for the occasion has been given by Henry C. Miner, the manager. Frank Damrosch, leader of the People's Singing Classes, has volunteered to furnish and conduct a chorus of 200 singers gratuitously. A large orchestra is also to be engaged.

John W. Keller, president of the New York Press Club, has accepted an invitation to give an address on the relations of Mr. Childs to the writers of the press, and Congressman Amos J. Cummings, who is a member of "Big Six," is expected to deliver a eulogy. The Rev. Dr. Joseph N. Blanchard, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of St. James, Philadelphia, of which church Mr. Childs was a member, has also been invited to speak.

MRS. JOHN BIDDULPH MARTIN (VICTORIA WOODHULL) VS. THE BRITISH MUSEUM.

THE trial of the case of Mrs. John Biddulph Martin (Victoria Woodhull) against the trustees of the British Museum, the plaintiff charging the trustees with exposing upon the shelves of their library books containing statements libelling her character, was concluded February 27. The jury brought in a verdict awarding Mrs. Martin £1 damages, but the court reserved judgment pending argument by counsel upon points arising from the jury's answers.

OBITUARY NOTES.

NORMAN L. MUNRO, the publisher of the New York Family Story Paper, etc., died on the evening of February 24, at the Hoffman House, New York City, from the effects of an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Munro was born in 1844, in the small town of Millbrook, Pictou County, Nova Scotia. At the age of twenty-five he left his father's farm and came to New York. For two years he was employed in a very subordinate position in the printing and publishing office of his brother, George Munro. By rigid economy and the strictest self-denial he accumulated a sum of money which in 1873 he invested in the New York Family Story Paper. The first issue of that paper was sent out on the fateful black Friday, September 18, 1873, from a dingy little office at 163 William Street. The paper was an unpretentious sheet, but it was not long before it began to attract attention, and in less than two years the business grew so that it was moved to 28 and 30 Beekman Street. This building was burned in 1876, and it was on this occasion that the energy which brought Mr. Munro from poverty to prosperity was called into play. Several other publications—Munro's Library, and Munro's Pocket Magazine—had been started by Mr. Munro, and at the time of the fire the editions were ready for distribution by the news companies. The papers were nearly all destroyed. Mr. Munro at once went to work to get out a second edition. Some of the papers had been saved, and, with the aid of any compositors he could find at the time, he had a new edition ready for the news companies on time. After the fire the business was moved to the building in Vandewater Street which was erected by Mr. Munro. In 1893 the upper part of this building was destroyed by fire, the damage being about $60,000. Mr. Munro's business grew steadily until it was one of the largest publishing houses in the city. The circulation of the Family Story Paper, it is estimated, is about 300,000 a week.

DR. W. F. POOLE, one of the best-known librarians in the country and head of the Newberry Library, Chicago, died at his home in Evanston, Ill., on the 1st inst., aged 72 years. Dr. Poole was born in Salem, Mass., December 24, 1821. In 1851 he became assistant librarian of the Boston Athenæum and in the next year librarian of the Boston Mercantile. From 1856 to 1869 he was librarian of the Boston Athenæum. On leaving the Athenæum he was occupied as library expert in the organization of a number of libraries including the Cincinnati and Chicago Public Libraries. In 1887 he was elected librarian of the Newberry Library in the organization of which he overtaxed his strength. Dr. Poole was a frequent contributor to the leading magazines on library matters and historical subjects. In 1853 he published the first edition of his admirable "Index to Periodical Literature," which under the editorship of W. J. Fletcher was brought down to 1883 in a third edition, and has been continued since that time in five yearly supplements to 1892 and in the "Annual Literary Index" to the end of 1893.

PROF. CARL WILHELM KNUDSEN, a well-known educator, died in South Norwalk, Conn., February 27, aged 76 years. Prof. Knudsen was deeply interested in all educational matters, and he was widely known as an advocate of reformed spelling. The system of amended spelling which he devised was simpler and less revolutionary than other proposed systems of phonetic spelling. He published a pronouncing dictionary in 1886, and also other educational books and pamphlets in the interest of spelling reform.

ALEXANDER ISAAC COTHEAL, author of "A Sketch of the Language of the Musquito Indian," etc., died in New York City February 25, aged 90 years.

STEELE MACKAYE, the author of "Haze Kirke" and other plays, and disciple of Delsarte, died suddenly in California, aged fifty years.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

QUILLER-COUCH is about to publish a short novel, entitled "The Bishop of Eucalyptus."

ZOLA has been again defeated in his endeavors to become an Academician—the successful candidate being José María de Heredia.

"SORROW AND SONG" is to be the title of a new book of essays by Mr. Coulson Kernahan, of "Dead Man's Diary" and "Strange Sins" fame.

WILLIAM HENRY BISHOP has been writing a novelette dealing with the passion for gambling. Under the title of "A Pound of Cure, a sorry Monte Carlo," it is to be published in Scribner's Magazine.

It is understood that the real name of "Iota," the authoress of the much-talked-of "Yellow Aster," recently issued in London by Hutchinson & Co., is Mrs. Caffyn, the Irish wife of a returned Australian doctor.

JOSEPH PENNELL is preparing for Macmillan & Co. a volume on "Modern Book Illustrations." It is to be included in the ex-Libris Series. Walter Crane's volume, "The Decorative Illustration of Books," is also in press.

OWEN WISTER, the author of "How Lin McLean Went East," and other stories, has been spending the late autumn and early winter in Arizona collecting material for a new series of Western tales, which will appear during the year in Harper's.

GEORGE A. HENTY has written for boys a serial story of adventure with blacks and bush-rangers in New Zealand, entitled "A Hut in the Bush." The hero is a friendless boy who, nevertheless, does some remarkable things for himself and others.

W. E. HENLEY has retired from the editorship of The National Observer in favor of Frank Harris, the editor of The Fortnightly, a well-known and successful journalist. The new editor of Black and White is Mr. Pinker, who has long been in the office.

ANDREW LANG is about to publish a new volume of poems under the title of "Ban and Arrière Ban: a rally of fugitive rhymes." He has also in preparation a book of studies in psychical phenomena and human credulity. This is to be called "The Cock Lane Ghost and Common Sense."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

LORENZ & Co., Dayton, Ohio, have begun to issue a new monthly called The Choir Leader, edited by E. S. Lorenz, which will be given up entirely to music for the choir, anthems, quartets, trios, solos, and other concerted sacred music with occasional pieces for male or ladies' chorus. Every effort will be made to secure the widest range of successful authors. The music will never go beyond the bounds of moderate difficulty. Every number will give sixteen pages of music.

THE first number of a newspaper for the makers of newspapers has appeared. Its name, The Fourth Estate, is borrowed from the words of Edmund Burke, who described the great profession of journalism as "the fourth estate more powerful than any of the other three." The new journal will be both original and eclectic, will avoid long articles, and endeavor to extract from the innumerable papers it will naturally command the meat of what is being written and said about things that concern the newspaper world. Descriptions of new methods, new processes, new machinery, and new buildings will be given with illustrations, and portraits of newspaper men are to be a prominent feature. A specialty will be made of tables presenting in a thoroughly systematized manner the advertising rates of hundreds of the daily and weekly papers and magazines. The first issue contains the history of The Evening Post. Published at 206 Broadway.

BUSINESS NOTES.

HOT SPRINGS, ARK.—C. H. Weaver & Co. have purchased the stock of books and stationery of E. A. Douglass, and will continue the business.

HOT SPRINGS, ARK.—E. A. Douglass, bookseller, has sold out.

HUDSON, MICH.—D. H. Patterson has bought the Wood book-store.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—T. O. Cramer opened a book and stationery store on February 1 at No. 1006 Main Street. Mr. Cramer occupies the whole building, which is 21 feet front by 15 feet deep, and has four floors. Mr. Cramer started in business at 1321 Grand Avenue in November, 1884, his stock being almost entirely news and periodicals. He gradually drifted into books, new and second-hand, then into school supplies of all kinds. He was the first to get the trade in second-hand school-books started. He yet owns the Grand Avenue store, which has been placed in charge of his brother, E. E. Cramer. T. I. Humble, formerly of the Hyde & Humble Stationery Company, of Wichita, Kan., will look after the stationery department of the Main Street store.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—The firm of Haygood & Fowler has been dissolved by mutual consent. Mr. W. W. Haygood, of the old firm, succeeds and will conduct a regular book and stationery business.

NEW YORK CITY.—The corporation Brentano's, publishers, booksellers, and stationers, has been succeeded by a copartnership under the same style, composed of Messrs. August, Arthur, and Simon Brentano.

OGDEN, UTAH.—W. S. Stone succeeds F. L. Horspool, bookseller.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

PROF. A. C. TRUE, of the United States Department of Agriculture at Washington, is compiling an "Index of Experiment Station Literature." His task is well under way, some three thousand cards having been printed, covering the publications of 1890 and 1891. The earlier publications are now in hand; when these are finished the index will be brought up to date. The titles are being arranged on a decimal system. The classification will comprise: 1. General sciences—physics, chemistry, mineralogy, geology, botany, fermentation, bacteriology, animal physiology, zoölogy, meteorology, and climatology. 2. Air and water. 3. Soils. 4. Fertilizers. 5. Plants. 6. Foods. 7. Animals. 8. Entomology. 9. Dairying. 10. Technology. 11. Agricultural engineering. 12. Statistics. 13. Miscellaneous.

C. F. LINNÉ & Co., Boston, have issued an index to the five parts of the Brinley Library auction catalogue, prepared by W. I. Fletcher, librarian of the Amherst College Library. It comprises eighty pages and is sold for $5. The several parts of the library were sold originally for $1 each, but a complete set, with priced lists of each part and this index, is now valued by dealers at $25.

HAIGHT & Co., Toronto, Canada, will publish shortly the first part of "The Canadian Catalogue of Books." The catalogue will be published in parts at intervals, it is hoped, of about four months from the date of the first issue.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

W. & R. CHAMBERS announce that they have in the press a "Gazetteer of the World, Topographical, Statistical, and Historical."

ELLIOT STOCK will publish immediately, uniform with the Book Lover's Library, "First Editions of American Authors: a manual for book-lovers," edited by H. Stuart Stone.

CHAPMAN & HALL, London, have in press an edition in two volumes of Hobart C. Chatfield-Taylor's novel, "An American Peasess." The American publishers, A. C. McClurg & Co., have already in press a second edition of the book.

WILLIAM HEINEMANN will publish shortly a second novel by Miss Laurence Alma Tadema, whose first book, "Love's Martyr," enjoyed a considerable success six or seven years ago, and who has published nothing since. It is entitled "The Wings of Icarus."

THE German-Austrian booksellers have combined to protest against the concession granted by the government to the Viennese Lehrerhausverein for the establishment of a bookelling business, to include the publication of educational books and works on art, and the retail sale of new and second-hand books and of educational appliances.

T. FISHER UNWIN will publish immediately, in connection with the Irish Literary Society, a volume of addresses under the title of "The Revival of Irish Literature." These will include two lectures by Sir Charles Gavan Duffy, delivered within the last two years; one by Mr. George Sigerson, on "Irish Literature: its origin and environment;" and one by Dr. Douglas Hyde, on "The Necessity for de-Anglicizing Ireland."

THE market for the more expensive editions of Mr. Ruskin's books, according to the London Literary World, has not been brisk of late, the reason being, collectors say, too frequent reissues. But that the public buy Ruskins—other than the costly editions—is clear from his publisher's statement to the Ruskin Society. "Unto this last" sells at the rate of about 1700 copies a year, and just now there is a great run on "Munera Pulveris."

WHITTAKER & CO., London, have just issued a new work by Mr. Leland, bearing upon his favorite subject, "Practical Education." It is a manual of elementary metal-work, including bent iron, repoussé, cut metal, and easy silver-work, written primarily for manual training classes in elementary and preparatory schools, but which will probably be found interesting to any one who has a mechanical bent. Mr. Karl Krall, of Messrs. Barkentia & Krall, of Regent Street, London, has revised the work while passing through the press.

THE A. J. JOHNSON CO., of 11 Great Jones Street New York, is the name of a new corporation which has assumed the business of the late firm of A. J. Johnson & Co. D. Appleton & Co. have a controlling interest in the new concern, and in that have the supervision of the new edition of "Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia," under the general editorship of Dr. Charles K. Adams, of the University of Wisconsin, of which three volumes are already printed, and the fourth may be expected next month. The work will be completed in eight octavo volumes during the present year.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers); to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned as one line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word (Cash).

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as "not having been received."

BOOK REVIEWS.

A Monthly Journal, devoted to new and current literature. Single numbers, 5 cents; annual subscription, 50 cents.
 The March number contains an article on Benjamin Kidd's "Social Evolution."

MACMILLAN & CO., 66 Fifth Avenue, New York.

The Rudolph Indexer Book.

(Patented in the United States and all Foreign Countries.)

Method of Indexing is the same as that employed in the Rudolph Continuous Indexer.

The RUDOLPH INDEXER BOOK consists of a number of card-holders of heavy cardboard with one or two columns on both sides. On the back edge of each card-holder are two double hinges by which means other card-holders may be flexibly connected or disconnected.

Independent book-covers are furnished, and a book may thus be formed of one card-holder and later increased as desired. If the book becomes too bulky it may be separated and by adding covers two or more independent books formed.

The Rudolph Indexer Case.

(Patented in the United States and all Foreign Countries.)

Method of Indexing is the same as that employed in the Rudolph Continuous Indexer.

The RUDOLPH INDEXER CASE consists of a series of card-holders placed on their edges in a drawer, and they may be turned as the pages of a book, exhibiting at each view a single-line entries.

We furnish the INDEXER CASE in one, two, four, six and eight drawers.

The capacity of each drawer is thirty card-holders. As both sides of the card-holders are used it is equal to 840 single-line entries.

The Rudolph Card Cutter.

(Patent Pending.)

This invention is for the purpose of cutting the entries or cards for insertion in the card-holders, but can also be used for many other purposes.

It is very important that all the slips to be inserted in the card-holders be cut at perfect right angles, in order the each entry will fit exactly to the others.

An unnecessary margin of only 1-32d of an inch on the top and 1-32d of an inch on the bottom of each entry will amount to 3/16th inches of waste space on each card-holder.

The cutter will cut cardboard where spacing between the printed or written lines is 1-64th of an inch.

THE RUDOLPH CONTINUOUS INDEXER.

(PATENTED IN THE UNITED STATES AND ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES.)

(FRONT VIEW, SHOWING GLASS LID RAISED.)

(REAR VIEW, SHOWING DOOR OPEN.)

THE LIBRARIAN'S DESIDERATUM. THE MOST PERFECT INDEXER.

The RUDOLPH INDEXER SYSTEM possesses many advantages which recommend it to Publishers and Booksellers—in fact, to any one who has occasion to use lists of books, names or samples of goods, photographs, etc.

It is entirely flexible, allowing any number of entries to be placed in the INDEXER at any point.

It presents to the eye at one time as many entries as six pages of the American Catalogue.

Entries are protected from being soiled by exposure or handling.

Economy of space and economy of expenditure of both time and money.

The INDEXER stands 42 inches high and is 20 inches wide by 30 inches broad.

We shall be pleased to give further information and list of testimonials from leading librarians.

HAVE JUST ISSUED:

Bill Nye's History of the United States.

With 150 Illustrations by F. Oppen. 12mo, cloth, extra, $2.00.

Though Mr. Nye has printed and sold many books compiled from his letters published in newspapers, this volume is entirely new and original, none of its contents having previously appeared. Mr. Nye has followed the actual history of the discovery and growth of the Republic, with his gentle, satirical commentaries thrown in without extra charge. He has taken out of the dry and undesirable husks of history and told in his own language the story of a nation's birth and growth. The artist has also followed the spirit of the author, and illuminated the text with the lightness of touch and humorous grace peculiar to the work of Mr. Oppen. The book is the most careful and meritorious piece of literary work ever done by this popular author. It is a rare combination of information and entertainment.

History of the Consulate and the Empire of France.

VOLUME VII.

By L. A. THIERS, Ex-Prime Minister of France. Translated from the French, with the sanction of the author, by D. Forbes Campbell. An entirely new edition, printed from new type, and illustrated with steel plates printed from the French originals. To be completed in twelve octavo volumes. Cloth, $3.00 per volume.

Fourth Edition. Now Ready.

A GENTLEMAN OF FRANCE.

Being the Memoirs of Gaston de Bonne, Sieur de Marsac.

By STANLEY J. WEYMAN, author of "The House of the Wolf," etc.

With Frontispiece and Vignette by H. J. Ford. 12mo, cloth ornamental, $1.25.

"A romance after the style of Dumas the elder, and well worthy of being read by those who can enjoy stirring adventures told in true romantic fashion. . . . The great personages of the time—Henry III. of Valois, Henry IV., Rosny, Rambouillet, Turenne—are brought in skilfully, and the tragic and varied history of the time forms a splendid frame in which to set the picture of Marsac's love and courage. . . . the troublous days are well described and the interest is genuine and lasting, for up to the very end the author manages effects which impel the reader to go on with renewed curiosity."—The Nation.

"A genuine and admirable piece of work. . . . The reader will not turn many pages before he finds himself in the grasp of a writer who holds his attention to the very last moment of the story. The spirit of adventure pervades the whole from beginning to end. . . . It may be said that the narration is a delightful love-story. The interest of the reader is constantly excited by the development of unexpected turns in the relation of the principal lovers. The romance lies against a background of history truly painted. . . . The descriptions of the court life of the period and of the factional strifes, divisions, hatreds of the age, are fine. . . . This story of those times is worthy of a very high place among historical novels of recent years."—Public Opinion.

"Bold, strong, dashing, it is one of the best we have read for many years. We sat down for a cursory perusal, and ended by reading it delightedly through. . . . Mr. Weyman has much of the vigor and rush of incident of Dr. Conan Doyle, and this book ranks worthily beside 'The White Company.' . . . We very cordially recommend this book to the jaded novel-reader who cares for manly actions more than for morbid introspection."—The Churchman.

"The book is not only good literature, it is a 'rattling good story,' instinct with the spirit of true adventure and stirring emotion. Of love and peril, intrigue and fighting, there is plenty, and many scenes could not have been bettered. In all his adventures, and they are many, Marsac acts as befits his epoch and his own modest yet gallant personality. Well-known historical figures emerge in telling fashion under Mr. Weyman's discriminating and fascinating touch."—Athenaeum.

"I cannot fancy any reader, old or young, not sharing with doughty Crillon his admiration for M. de Marsac, who, though no swashbuckler, has a sword that leaps from its scabbard at the breath of insult. . . . There are several historical personages in the novel; there is, of course, a heroine, of great beauty and enterprise; but that true 'Gentleman of France,' M. de Marsac, with his perseverance and valor, dominates them all."—Mr. JAMES PAYN in the Illustrated London News.

ANNUAL CATALOGUES, 1893.

The Annual American Catalogue for 1893 contains :

- (1) Directory of American Publishers issuing books in 1893.
- (2) Full-title Record, with descriptive notes, in author-alphabet, of all books recorded in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, 1893.
- (3) Author-, title-, and subject-index to same in one alphabet.
- (4) Publishers' annual lists for 1893.

The edition is limited, and to secure copies orders should be sent at once. The price is $3.50 half leather; $3.00 in sheets.

The Annual Catalogue for 1886 and 1887 is now out of print. But few copies of the Annual Catalogue for 1888, 1889, 1890 and 1891 are on hand.

We also supply the English Catalogue for 1893, price $1.50, paper; the Annual American and English Catalogues, 1892, can be had in one volume, half leather, $5.00.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX, ...1893...

INCLUDING PERIODICALS, AMERICAN AND ENGLISH, ESSAYS, BOOK-CHAPTERS, ETC., SPECIAL BIBLIOGRAPHIES AND NECROLOGY OF AUTHORS.

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER,

With the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1893 complements the "Annual American Catalogue" books published in 1893 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1893; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1893; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1893; (5) authors deceased in 1893. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

The new volume includes the features of the "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," originally a monthly supplement to the Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly in an enlarged form and later issued as an annual volume.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1893 forms the second supplement both to the new yearly volume (1887-1891) of Poole's Index to Periodical Literature and to the new A. L. A. Index to essays and book-chapters of Mr. Fletcher.

The new volume will more than fulfil the opinion as to the Co-operative Index expressed in following extract :

"To the literary worker its value can hardly be over-estimated; to the specialist in any branch of science or letters it is indispensable, since it places within his immediate reach many of the latest fruits of labor in the same field to every one who desires to be well informed it furnishes the means of making the most effective use of his time."

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING Co. have just ready the much-discussed series of articles on "The Experimental Novel," by Émile Zola, translated by Belle M. Sherman, who has also added a number of other essays by the author of the "Rougon Macquart" series; Tolstol's latest book, "The Kingdom of God is Within You," Christianity not as a mystic religion but as a new theory of life," translated from the Russian by Constance Garnett; and "'Lisbeth," a new novel by Leslie Keith, author of "The Chilcotes," etc.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. announce for immediate publication a work in nine chapters, entitled

"The Evidence of Salvation, or, the direct witness of the spirit," by the Rev. Dr. Everett S. Stackpole. Dr. Stackpole was first led to think of the importance of this subject while he was teaching in a theological school in Italy, and he embodied his views in a tract, written in Italian. The aim of this little manual is "to show how, through knowledge of the truth, souls may be saved from presumption, credulity, despondency, unsatisfied longing, despair, and unbelief."

STONE & KIMBALL, of Chicago and Cambridge, have in preparation a definitive edition of the writings of Edgar Allan Poe, edited by Edmund Clarence Stedman and George Edward Woodberry. It will be complete in ten volumes, illustrated with portraits, fac-similes, and other illustrations, printed on specially made paper. Hugh McCulloch, Jr., a member of the English department of Harvard University, is about to publish with Messrs. Stone & Kimball a collection of his poems, under the title of "The Quest of Heracles." The book will have a title-page from a design by Pierre la Rose, another Harvard man.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. will shortly issue "Travels in a Tree-Top," by Rev. Charles C. Abbott, the success of whose "Recent Rambles" is a guarantee of many readers for any new work; "Bill Nye's History of the United States," with illustrations by Oppen; and two medical works, one the 17th edition of the "New United States Dispensatory;" the other a new volume entitled "Pain," by J. Leonard Corning. They also announce "A Man of To-Day," a new copyright novel by Helen Mathers; "The Mystery of the Patrician Club," by Albert D. Vandam, the author of that clever book, "An Englishman in Paris;" and "The Queen of Love," by S. Baring-Gould.

LAIRD & LEE have almost ready the book William T. Stead, editor of the Review of Reviews, has written for America, under the rather sensational title—"If Christ Came to Chicago." Mr. Stead came to the World's Fair intending to stay three weeks, but stayed four months, and made a careful study of the great city at one of the most interesting periods of its history. Mr. Stead thinks Chicago interests England more than New York, Boston, or Washington, therefore he lays his scene there, although the facts and problems he describes are of universal interest in large cities. The book has been a labor of love to Mr. Stead, and will no doubt find a large reading public awaiting its scathing criticisms on modern "money-changers."

D. APPLETON & Co. have in active preparation the fourth volume of McMaster's "History of the People of the United States." It opens with the War of 1812 and ends with the inauguration of Jackson, covering the history of finance after 1814, the rise of manufacturing industries, Mormonism, the movement of population westward, and many other questions raised by the mental fermentation of the time. Another important historical work in preparation is entitled "The United States of America," which will be made up of careful studies on the natural resources, industries, commerce, education, literature, and the arts, written by distinguished specialists, and brought together under the careful editorship of Prof. N. S. Shaler. The work will be sold by subscription only.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

The basis of the plot is the attempt to substitute one man for another in order to fulfil the conditions of a will. George Ferrers, an ex-guardsmen and a bankrupt in pocket, is tempted, through his poverty, to personate another man for a few weeks, in what is represented to him to be an innocent scheme. His scheme is quite ingenious, and promises to succeed, but Ferrers falls in love with the heroine, learns the true condition of things, and revolts. Scenes and characters are English. By the author of "The heretic cat."

- Keith, Leslie, [pseud. for Mrs. Grace Keith Johnston.] Lisbeth. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. '93. 2+361 p. D. cl., $1. [722]
The beautiful, self-sacrificing, loving character of 'Lisbeth Neil' is evolved through a series of unexceptional incidents, having for their background the shabby London lodging-house, which is the girl's home, and the last bit of property left the family, through the father's bad habits and shiftless ways. The chief characters are a family of sisters (one being 'Lisbeth's' mother) and their husbands and children; they were originally from the Scotch peasant class, and have attained various degrees of comfort or the reverse through their husbands. Mrs. Mackie, whose husband has made a large fortune as a baker, is strongly portrayed in all her vulgarity and ignorance.

- The story of an unhappy marriage Douglas Colborne, a young Englishman of some means and of great social position, meets the Countess Radna in Paris, and loses his heart to her. The countess is an Austrian, of almost royal rank, is young, beautiful, enormously wealthy, and quite independent; she is spoiled and capricious, and after agreeing to marry Douglas finds the quiet English home life he asks her to lead for part of the year monotonous and unbearable. In a short time they are separated; the countess returning to Paris, Douglas remaining at his home. Douglas' life is the principal theme, although the countess' strange household and odd friends are carefully described.

- Oroutt, Harriet E. A modern love-story which does not end at the altar. Chic., C. H. Kerr & Co., 1894. c. 8-194 p. S. pap., 70 c. [739]
- The heroine is a not very young woman, devoted to art, who believes in theosophy and hates housekeeping; the hero is her brother-in-law, a widower with one child, who is the pastor of a fashionable orthodox church. They love each other, but the woman refuses to marry on the plea that she will lose her independence, and that she is unskilled to be a minister's wife. The various chapters give their many conversations a subject, her final consent and how it is obtained, history of their marriage and its results.

- Story (The) of Margrèdel: being a history of a Fifeshire family. Copy American ed. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's: 1894. c. 3+269 p. S. cl., $1.
- The little Scotch fishing town of Kirkcaldy home of the Oliphants, the family whose story is recorded. The hereditary curse of their is that the sons shall be libertines, bringing their early death to their womenkind; it has been fulfilled for generations, is fulfilled in the life of Douglas Oliphant, the eldest son, and ceases only with the family line. Margrèdel is the illegitimate daughter of Douglas Oliphant, whose existence is unknown to her father and who is brought up in Kirkcaldy's French uncle in ignorance of her birth. Her seduction for pretty Jean Oliphant, subsequent intimacy the family, and the discovery of her relationship steps to the final tragedy of the Oliphants. The description of Scotch village life in the early days of the century is graphic, and the Kirkcaldy folk are sketched with humor and realism.

- Tolstol's former volume, published in this country under the title "What I believe," and also as "Religion," evoked many essays containing much material and a series of criticisms on the principles down in the book. This material and his growing conviction that the "Sermon on the Mount" contained the religion needed to reform the world the author pounds in the light of the historical events of recent years. The doctrine of non-resistance is the keynote. Standing armies kept by Christian nations Tolstoi claims stamp the Christianity of the hour as a farcical hypocrisy.

Werner, Ernst, [pseud. for Eliz. Bürstenbinder.] A lover from across the sea. [Also] In the hands of the enemy. [Also] The fountain of youth; from the German, by Mary J. Safford; il. by Victor Peard and H. M. Eaton. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, [1894.] c. '93, '94. 4-292 p. D. (Ledger lib., no. 104.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c. [751]

Gustave Sandow, a German journalist, plays the part of lover to an American heiress, in order to gain a foothold for his unknown niece in her own father's house. His way of encompassing his purpose brings about some interesting scenes, a romantic love-story, and an unexpected conclusion. There are two other stories included—one is a sensational love-story; the other is a tale of one of the many early American discoverers.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will be the American agents of Bibliographica, the new London quarterly magazine of book-lore, recently noticed in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. After the first issue, only a limited edition of the periodical will be published.

The Literary Era, the monthly journal published by Porter & Coates, of Philadelphia, has begun to print a list of American genealogies that have been issued in book form. In the number for March nearly three pages are taken up with the letter A. The list will be continued in each succeeding number.

THE GROLIER CLUB, New York, has issued a "Chronological Hand-List of Various Editions of the Complete Angler," by Izaak Walton and Charles Cotton, with a supplement embracing other writings of Walton and Cotton, etc., 1593-1893. The list is a souvenir of the exhibition, designed to commemorate the 300th anniversary of the birth of Walton, held at the Grolier Club December 9, 1893. The exhibition included examples of every important edition of "The Complete Angler" from the first, published in 1653, to the last, which is scarcely dry from the press. (26 p. 16°, pap.)

THE CHANNING CLUB, of Boston, through their secretary, W. M. McInnes, 53 State Street, Boston, has issued a second catalogue of "Books for Boys." It is divided into three classes—one of interesting stories; one of works of history, biography, travel, science, etc.; and one of books which, through the moral principles taught, are especially suited for Sunday-schools. No book has been rejected because of doctrinal teaching, as the list is intended for all denominations; but wherever such teaching is prominent the fact is noted. Besides the necessary items of publisher and price, each title is followed by a summary of the story, or a description of the scope of the work if in the second class, thereby enabling the reader to choose intelligently. (26 p. 24°, pap., to be had on application by enclosing postage.)

Repertoire des Ventes is the title of a new journal published from No. 24 Boulevard Poissonnière, Paris. It is edited by Pierre Dauze, and divided into three sections, which may be subscribed for separately or together. Part 1 is entitled Gazette des Ventes, and will contain news of the week regarding auction sales of books, autographs, pictures, and plates, at home and abroad, with prices for the more important works. Part 2, Les Pris d'Adjudication, will be a complete price-list of Parisian auction sales, and will appear as often as part 1. Part 3, Table Alphabétique des noms d'auteurs et d'ouvrages anonymes de livres, autographes, gravures, estampes et tableaux, will give for books short titles, with name of publisher or printer, size, binding, and value of all bids above 10 fr. for autographs the name of the purchaser if possible, and all bids over 5 fr.; for engravings and etchings the names of artists and engravers, and all bids over 15 fr.; for pictures, drawings, and water-colors, the subject, size, and price for all above 50 fr. All prices will be given in part 2, so that the value of sales not reaching the figures demanded for part 3 may be looked up elsewhere. Parts 1 and 2 will appear weekly from November to May, fortnightly in June and October, and once a month during July, August, and September. Part 3 will appear in monthly instalments during July, August, and September. When ordered separately, part 1 costs 11 fr.; part 2, 25 fr.; part 3, 28 fr. per year. Together, 36 fr., 60 fr., or 80 fr., according to the paper on which it is printed.

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND-HAND BOOKS.—Francis P. Harper, 17 East 16th St., N. Y., Books and pamphlets relating to the Rebellion and slavery. (No. 62, 1413 titles.)—U. Hoepli, 37 Corso Vitt. Eman., Milan, Storia d'Italia. (No. 92, supplementing Nos. 68 and 73, 1765 titles.)—Frank Hollings, 7 Great Turnstile, W. C., London, Eng., Choice miscellaneous books. (No. 6, 399 + titles.)—George P. Humphrey, 25 Exchange St., Rochester, N. Y., Old books. (No. 36, 160 + titles.)—Nash F. Morrison, 877 Broad St., Newark, N. J., Americana, etc. (March, 562 titles.)—David Nutt, 270 Strand, W., London, Anglo-Saxon, Bibliography, Folk-lore and miscellaneous. (No. 40, 624 titles.)—Charles Ream, 26½ E. King St., Lancaster, Pa., Miscellaneous. Many relating to James A. Garfield. (No. 2, 111 titles;) also, Washington books, engravings, etc. (28 p. 8°.)—Henry Sotheran & Co., 140 Strand, W. C., London, "Price Current of Literature," Feb. 24. (No. 531.)—William Wesley & Son, 28 Essex St., Strand, London, Bibliography of the Paracelsus Library of the late Dr. E. Schubert, also, his Selection of works on alchemy. (548 + 351 titles. The library will not be sold separately.)

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 10, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

THE PROFESSION OF BOOKSELLING.

THE CIRCULATING LIBRARY.—I.

THE bookseller's circulating library has not inaptly been dubbed the "step-child of the book trade." Too often is this auxiliary treated as such, and entrusted to the tender mercies of an apprentice, or errand-boy, who is not fitted to meet the requirements made by the borrower of the one in charge of this department. Either the circulating library throws off a profit to the bookseller, or it does not. If the latter, it has no reason to exist; if the former, it must be looked after by the owner himself, or by an assistant competent in every respect. But upon whomsoever this duty devolves he must be alive to the demands made upon his stock; be acquainted with the tastes of his borrowers; have a system by which he may wait upon the subscribers without loss of time; know when books are out, who has them, and when they are due; where books in good editions are to be had cheap; when to rebind books; what to discard; how to keep his accounts straight, and a number of other things needful to make the most out of even the smallest stock of books kept for such a purpose.

While we do not pretend to be able to prescribe set rules and directions to guide the librarian in these matters, we will attempt to give a few hints which, together with such experience as he will in time accumulate, will help him over the rough places.

In the first place we will consider the location of the library. Concerning this there seems to be a reasonable difference of opinion. Most booksellers locate their circulating departments in the front of the store. This we consider a mistake for two important reasons: first, because the library in such a position takes up room which the bookseller should be able to utilize to better advantage in displaying his stock; secondly, because it is apt to keep the borrowers from coming directly into the store, and the bookseller therefore loses the opportunity for which he really keeps his circulating department—namely, to tempt his customers to buy what he may have displayed. We think, therefore, that the plan of keeping the library in the rear portion of the store decidedly the better, and more profitable from every point of view. Good light is necessary. If it cannot be had naturally, gas or electric light must be liberally provided.

The selection of books of course depends much upon the particular locality in which the bookseller resides. But wherever the library may be established it will be found necessary to begin with a large proportion of fiction. Probably five hundred books in all would be enough to serve as a foundation. The choice of this must be catholic in the largest sense of the word. Mrs. Southworth and George Eliot, Mrs. Ann S. Stephens and Mrs. Humphry Ward, Mary J. Holmes and Margaret Deland, Mayne Reid and W. D. Howells, E. P. Roe and Marion Crawford—the most commonplace, as well as the more refined authors, will probably be obliged to rest "cheek by jowl" on the shelves. As we have said at the beginning, much will depend upon the character of the community. If the library be started in a manufacturing community, and the borrowers be largely factory hands, the girls will very likely call for the old stand-bys, such as Bertha M. Clay, May Agnes Fleming, and writers of their class, while the boys will clamor for detective stories of the Pinkerton stripe, and works in that class. Even here the better books should not be overlooked. History and biography as well as books of a scientific nature should be considered, and put on the shelves when ever so slight a demand for them occurs. Indeed, if the librarian is alive to his opportunities he will soon find that he is in a position to color and direct the reading of his patrons to a not inconsiderable extent. A borrower will often present himself who is unable to decide what book to take next. Here is the librarian's opportunity. Let the book be a shade better than those that have been drawn by this borrower before. Let a word of recommendation, or a hint that will excite the interest or curiosity of the reader, go with it, and the chances are the new lead will be followed and a still higher grade be demanded in time. If the reader be a boy or young man who has gorged himself with trash, direct his reading to something better—a historical novel perhaps, or, better still, to a book affecting his trade. Rebuffs will occur, advice will be resented, but with tact good can be done, in fact has been accomplished by the librarian of an insignificant circulating library.

BOOK-LOVERS OF NEW YORK.

Octave Uzanne in the "Book-Lover's Almanac" for 1894.

OCTAVE UZANNE, one of the best authorities that book-lovers know on subjects specially interesting to book-lovers, a pupil of Paul Lacroix in bibliography, editor of the most beautiful books of contemporary France, author of several valuable manuals, and president of the Société des Bibliophiles Contemporains, gives the following opinion on the book-lovers of New York in an essay entitled "Bibliophiles et Biblioscopes," which appears in French in the "Book-Lover's Almanac" for 1894, published by Duprat & Co., of New York. The following is a synopsis of his essay:

"If something could abate the passion for books it would be philosophic observation of bibliomania, of the vanity which lurks in this religion which has, like all religions, its false priests.

"It is curious to observe that the book-lover has been entirely transformed in twenty years. The ancient type of enlightened, judicious amateur is now disappearing. At Paris his species is almost lost, and those who remain live solitary, unknown, forgotten, among the treasures which they have accumulated.

"The modern book-lover has none of the sedentary features of fifty years ago. He was then represented as a very old man, thin, dry as a mummy, living in his book-shop like a wolf in his den.

"This book-lover of other times was a comedy type, unsympathetic with the masses. Molière or Beaumarchais might have created, under the title of 'The Book-Lover,' a painting of manners not less complete than the 'Barbier de Seville.'

"He became human only at the end of the Empire. Asselineau contributed enormously to the improvement of bibliography. He dared to have regard for the present. What do you say of Bourdin, Curmer, Hetzel, and Perrotin? These editors worked for the public. They published books with a large circulation; they thought nothing of book-lovers, for these collected in their libraries only ancient books, caring nothing for the productions of their time. The new book-lover did not appear until 1872 or 1873.

"The contemporaneous book-lover who made the wealth of Morgand and Fatout, Rouquette, Conquet, and others, the terrible buyer of the editions of Jouaust, Lemerre, Ruveyre—is he to be really regarded as a serious book-lover, and not as a book-viewer?

"The second term pleases me better. The book-viewer is the false priest in the religion of books. He buys a beautiful edition, has it bound by a fashionable maker, and preserves it intact and untouched in his library, like an art object in a show-case.

"At the present hour, among one hundred Parisian book-lovers one must count about ninety book-viewers. Among those who compose the cream of bibliomania are literary men of the first rank, amateurs of curiosity, dilettante, but this world is extremely restricted. The Duc d'Aumale, Lignerolles, and Spoelberch de Lovenjoul are exceptions.

"The book-viewers are legion; they are victims of fashion, of opinion, and their taste is easily guided. The booksellers play with it easily.

"Most Parisians have books for show. In the provinces it is different. The provincial book-lovers know prints, are experts in beautiful typography; they are truly traditional French book-lovers. In England, in Germany, and in Switzerland book-viewing is exceptional. In my numerous travels I have always been impressed by the fact that French writers are more and better read in foreign cities than in their own. At London, at Munich, at Geneva, at Brussels, or at Berlin, I have spent many happy evenings in the enveloping intimacy of distinguished book-lovers. I have asked myself if our intellectual life was not more brilliant at a distance than at home. At New York, at Philadelphia, at Boston, during my recent and too hasty trip in America, these ideas were only made more intense. It is not that I expected unsophisticated people in this new world, which our old civilization persists in judging with a protective air, but I must own that despite my lack of prejudice I expected to find only indifference where I have discovered perfection in taste and judgment.

"They are not book-viewers, these intelligent amateurs, who have done me the honors of their splendid collections. These grand colleagues of the Bibliophiles Contemporains may flatter themselves that they have dazzled their president. I found there not only old acquaintances, but the best works of the present time, in extraordinary states, and bindings conceived in accordance with the exact principles which I had once enunciated.

"Whereas it takes twenty years for an idea to make its way in our country, there it is acclaimed at once. These dear trans-Atlantic colleagues are not partisans of the unbound books; they know that bibliomania exacts binding, that the taste for books must be complete.

"At Paris the bookseller does not preach the art of bookbinding. He rather turns his client away from it in the hope of selling more books to him. He thinks, as a bookseller, that all the money which goes to the bookbinder is taken from his cash-box. His energy would ruin the French art of bookbinding if it were not for the Americans.

"It is not in Paris that one may find at present the richest collections of books. It is at Chantilly, at London, and at New York. I have seen them as a book-viewer. I hope to see them again as a book-lover."

INFLUENCE OF PUBLISHERS ON LITERATURE.

"THE Influence of Publishers on Literature and Literary Productions" was the subject of an address delivered recently by the Commercienrath Eugen Marx at a meeting of the Lower Austrian Technical Union.

"The publisher is a manufacturer," he said, "in so far as he receives the work of an author's pen and makes a book of it; but he also takes the initiative when he feels that there is some want in the book world which needs satisfying. There it is that the publisher shows his skill in having his eyes and ears always open to the requirements and tendencies of the time. We all know that there are fashions in literature as well as in dress, and that not only in belles-lettres but also in the domain of science. Tales of chivalry and ghost stories have had their day, and family romance is no longer acceptable; and now we have romances of natural history as well as history, and lastly those novels which deal with contemporary, social, and political questions and events. Change reigns in all things. A new discovery is made, the public craves for information; and sensational medical pamphlets alarm the world. . . . The relations between author and publisher are sometimes strained. But genuine writers always find capable publishers and receive good pay. . . . But a book is, after all, a peculiar commodity; for it has no value until it is sold. The value of the raw material of which a book is composed sinks the more in the process of making it. The unprinted sheets may be used as waste paper for the mill; but in proportion as it becomes a book, and however handsomely it be produced, so it lessens in material value if it be not salable as a literary production. Then the only person who can make use of it is the buttermilk.

This sad end of so many literary offspring is often ascribed to the cruelty of the publisher or neglect of the reading public.

OBITUARY NOTES.

LOUIS ETIENNE DUSSIEUX, historian and geographer, died in Paris February 24, aged 79 years.

JOHN HENRY CORNELL, author of a "Primer of Modern Musical Tonality" and other works on music, died in New York City on the 1st inst., aged 66 years.

ALFRED DUMESNIL, a well-known French writer, died in Paris on the 2d inst., aged 73 years. His best-known work is "La Foi Nouvelle Cherchée dans l'Art."

CHARLES FAUVETY, the philosopher who, in collaboration with Proudhon, founded in 1848 the revolutionary journals Le Peuple and La Voix du Peuple, died in Asnières, France, February 24, aged 81 years.

DR. WILLIAM H. BURK, for a number of years an associate editor of The Philadelphia Public Ledger, died suddenly at his home in Philadelphia on the 3d inst., aged 36 years. Dr. Burk was engaged in writing a work on "The Life of George W. Childs."

JAMES MONTGOMERY BAILEY, widely known as the "Danbury Newsmen," died in Danbury, Conn., on the 4th inst., aged 53 years. After the close of the war he purchased the Danbury Times, which he conducted until he acquired the Danbury Jeffersonian in 1870. The two papers he consolidated under the name of the Danbury News. His quaint and original humor soon made him and his paper famous. He published several humorous books—"Life in Danbury," "England from a Back Window," etc.—which were well received, and delivered humorous lectures. In recent years he had done no literary work. In September, 1883, he started the Evening News.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

DR. CONAN DOYLE is coming to this country to lecture.

WILLIAM WATSON, the poet, is again ill, and rather seriously so.

COL. FREDERICK D. GRANT has prepared a new edition of his father's "Memoirs," which will be issued this year.

JOSIAH FLYNT, whose articles on tramp life will be familiar to readers of The Century, is engaged in writing a book of tramp experiences and adventures.

JOHN KENDRICK BANGS, the editor of the "Drawer" in Harper's and author of several clever books, is the Democratic candidate for mayor in the city of Yonkers, N. Y.

PERCY FITZGERALD is at work on a book to be called "The Savoy Opera," which is, of course, a history of the Gilbert-Sullivan productions. It is to be illustrated.

VERESTCHAGIN has written a new story, "The War Correspondent," dealing with the Russo-Turkish War of 1877-78, and Mr. Poultney Bigelow is translating it into the English.

JOHN C. ROPES, of Boston, has offered a prize of $250 for the best essay on "The Russian War of 1812," prepared by a candidate for a degree in either Harvard or the University of Pennsylvania.

PIERRE LOTI has gone to accumulate literary material in Egypt and the Holy Land. His plan, it is said, includes a caravan journey through the desert; and he will end his travels by a visit to the Crimea and Moscow.

THE granddaughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne, Hildegard Hawthorne, is about to publish her first book. It is to be called "The Fairest of the Fair," and is to contain a record of her experiences in Chicago last summer.

THE present Count Murat, a grand-nephew of Napoleon's King of Naples, is editing a number of his uncle's papers, which are said to throw new light on many persons who belong to the Napoleonic drama. He came into possession of the papers through the will of Count de Morbourg, who was a friend of the King of Naples.

BESIDES a volume of Renan's philological memoirs, Mme. Renan intends soon to issue a new edition of his "Henriette Renan: souvenir pour ceux qui l'ont connue." The latter work was printed privately many years ago in an edition of 500 copies. The reprint will contain five illustrations, one of them showing the birthplace of Renan in Brittany.

THE late Steele Mackay, the playwright, actor, and projector of the ill-starred Spectatorium at Chicago, was the favorite pupil of Delsarte, and heir to his system of training in expression, and left among his papers a manuscript setting forth the philosophy, science, and art of expression, based upon the principles of Delsarte. This manuscript the author's widow has requested Rev. William R. Alger, of Boston, to prepare for publication, and probably by next autumn the work will be in the hands of the public. Its scope extends beyond the limits of dramatic representation to the whole field of human expression—with pen or brush, as well as with voice and gesture. Rev. Mr. Alger is himself an orator of distinction and a writer of singular force and charm. His "Critical History of the Doctrine of a Future Life" is in its 14th edition. Its concluding chapter, which stands for the labor of three years, is pronounced by Hon. William T. Harris, commissioner of education at Washington, and one of the most competent philosophical critics living, to be the most masterly presentation of the theme in all literature. Rev. Mr. Alger's interest in the drama won for him, many years ago, the friendship of Edwin Forrest, whose biography he has written; with Steele Mackay it also led to a long and intimate friendship, whose fruit cannot but enrich the projected posthumous volume.

POSTAL MATTERS.

DIRECTIONS FOR FACILITATING THE DELIVERY OF MAIL MATTER.

Post-Office, New York, N. Y.,
February, 1894. }

THE delivery of letters through lock boxes at this office will be greatly facilitated if they are so addressed that they may be at once recognized as "Box Letters." This could, of course, be best accomplished by the addition of the box numbers to the addresses; but it is understood that it is not always practicable to induce correspondents to adopt this plan, and that they cannot be expected always to remember the proper numbers. The same object, however, can be secured by the use of the words "Lock Box" (without the addition of any number). These words in the superscription of a letter will insure its proper treatment, in transit, by clerks in railway post-offices, as well as by clerks in this office, who will place it among those intended for box delivery—thus saving the time that would otherwise be required to separate it from those intended for delivery by carriers, and, of course, facilitating its prompt delivery.

You are respectfully urged to use all means in your power to induce your correspondents to use this method of address.

CHARLES W. DAYTON, Postmaster.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CINCINNATI, O.—By the death of John M. Scudder, M.D., on February 17, the firm of John M. Scudder & Sons was dissolved, and the firm of John M. Scudder's Sons formed to continue the business as heretofore. The specialty of this firm will remain the publishing of eclectic medical books.

NEW YORK CITY.—J. S. Ogilvie has transferred his right and property in the book publishing business to the new firm of The J. S. Ogilvie Pub. Co. His son, a young man of eighteen, will be an important factor in the new company. This young man gives great promise.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Porter & Coates, who have been located for so many years at Ninth and Chestnut Streets, will soon move to the Hale Building, formerly the old Keystone Bank building, at Chestnut and Juniper Streets, the first floor of which is being handsomely fitted up for them.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The W. S. Bell Book and Stationery Co. has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000.

SAN JOSE, CAL.—E. J. Gillespie, stationer and bookseller, has sold out.

TROY, N. Y.—Herbert F. Hastings, for the past fourteen years in the employ of H. B. Nims & Co., has formed a copartnership with Herbert R. Mann, under the firm-name of Mann & Hastings, and they have purchased the book and stationery store of Smyth & Co., at 266 River Street. Mr. Mann is also a former employee of Nims & Co. The fact of their being two of Troy's representative young men, coupled with a business experience in the store of H. B. Nims, ought to bespeak for them a prosperous career. Mann & Hastings, as did their predecessor, will pay especial attention to church and Sunday-school supplies of all denominations.

WAUKON, IA.—E. N. Hancock, bookseller, has sold out.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

G. CHARPENTIER & E. FASQUELLE, Paris, announce a new illustrated edition of Zola's "Le roman expérimental" series.

SWAN SONNENSCHEIN & Co. have in press the complete "Concordance to the Writings of Milton," prepared by the late Dr. John Bradshaw, whose death occurred recently and suddenly in India. The concordance is said to be so thorough a guide to the poet that it will contain every word he has used in his writings.

E. B. TREAT, New York, has in preparation "A System of Legal Medicine," by Albin M. Lane Hamilton, M.D., and Lawrence Godkin—an illustrated volume to which many others will contribute, including Dr. Charles L. Dana, Francis M. Wellman, John E. Parsons, Judge Calvin S. Pratt, William B. Hornblower, and Judge Simeon E. Baldwin.

ROBERT CLARKE & Co. have in preparation "Recollections of Life in Ohio, from 1813 to 1840," by William Cooper Howells, with an introduction by his son, William Dean Howells; "Queen Moé and the Egyptian Sphinx," by Dr. Augustus Le Plongeon; "Judaism at the World's Parliament of Religions," and a reprint of the "Key to the Hebrew-Egyptian Mystery is the Source of Measures Originating the British In and the Ancient Cubit," by J. Ralston Shanon, which has been out of print for several years.

THE "Gutenberg House" at Mayence was burned down February 17. A statue of "Gutenberg" stood in its courtyard. Gutenberg's uncle had let this house to the inventor of "printing with movable metal types." The first presses, which Gutenberg very likely constructed at Strassburg, were put up there, and forty years ago some remainders of these presses and tools which Gutenberg had used were still to be seen in one of its cellars. The inhabitants of Mayence had so little regard for this old historic house, where the greatest invention mankind ever made had taken its rise, that they permitted it to be converted into a brewery.

CROTHERS & KORTH, New York, have just ready a work entitled "The Eucharistic Offering: spiritual instructions upon the office of holy communion, together with helps for the carrying out of the same, including a calendar for the commemoration of persons and events, a method of eucharistic preparation, intercession and thanksgiving, the office analyzed, annotated, and accompanied with devotions adapted to its several parts, an arrangement of collects, epistles, and gospels whereby the eucharistic thought proper for the day is made plain," by G. H. S. Walpole, S.T.D., professor of dogmatic theology, Gen. Theo. Sem., New York, with introduction by Morgan Dix, S.T.D., D.C.L., rector of Trinity Church, New York.

D. APPLETON & Co. are to publish "The Biography of Gen. Robert E. Lee," by his nephew, Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, in their Great Commanders series. Nearly two hundred letters written by General Lee to Mrs. Lee during the four years he was in the field will be incorporated in the work. Gen. Fitzhugh Lee was intimately associated with his uncle during the Civil War, and since has lived the life of a quiet country gentleman at Lexington, Va., excepting possibly the term he recently served as governor of Virginia. He has thought well to wait until time had healed many political wounds, and till there were readers who could judge dispassionately of the great character of General Lee, who was so much among his associates, besides the greatest general of "the Rebellion."

"CANADIAN Independence, Annexation, and British Imperial Federation," is the title of a forthcoming volume in the Questions of the Day series, published by G. P. Putnam's Sons. The author is James Douglas, president of the Copper Queen Co., of New York and Arizona. Mr. Douglas is a native of the city of Quebec; during the past twenty years he has resided in the United States, where his business interests have led him to the widest travel and where he has made a careful study of the economic and political questions of the country. Meanwhile he has paid repeated visits to Canada and kept himself in touch with the drift of Canadian public opinion. His book is certain to be a thoughtful contribution to problems which few writers have considered from both sides of the frontier.

WILLIAM HAMILTON GIBSON, of Brooklyn, the well-known artist, is an amateur naturalist of distinction. During the present season he has given lectures on the relations between flowers and insects to scores of large audiences in New York, Brooklyn, and other cities. As readers of his "Sharp Eyes" well know, Mr. Gibson has a style which renders attractive much that in the ordinary scientific treatise is dry as dust. Mr. Gibson is not only an artist but an ingenious mechanic, and among the novel features introduced in his lectures are devices by which a plant is shown in the act of growth from bud to blossom, with a working delineation of a bee or wasp in the act of fertilization. As the pictures and models are of immensely enlarged proportions, Mr. Gibson gives his audiences a better idea of what takes place in the fields and woods than most observers would detect there. In his marriage of the resources of art and mechanism to the sciences of botany and entomology Mr. Gibson in his own work illustrates the fruitfulness of cross-fertilization—a theme which in its floral aspects is one of his favorite subjects.

MACMILLAN & Co. have in preparation The Temple Shakespeare, a new edition of Shakespeare's works, two volumes of which are to be published each month; each volume is to contain a complete play carefully printed in black and red on hand-made paper, and the greatest care will be devoted to every detail of production. The text is that of the Globe edition, carefully amended from the latest Cambridge edition; the numbering of the lines is identical with the Globe, so that the frequent references to that edition will apply also to the Temple. Israel Gollancz will edit it, contributing a full glossary with a brief preface and notes, but there will be no needless discussion of textual emendation, and no æsthetic criticism. Mr. Walter Crane has designed the title-pages, and each volume will have a frontispiece in photogravure. For the use of teachers there will be an edition printed on writing-paper, with broad margins for manuscript notes. The publishers' aim has been to produce a thoroughly attractive edition of Shakespeare, printed in bold and legible type, and yet of so compact a form that it may be light to hold and convenient to carry in the pocket. The binding will be in two styles, limp cloth and paste grain roan.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as "not having been received."

ANNUAL CATALOGUES, 1893.

The Annual American Catalogue for 1893 contains :

- (1) Directory of American Publishers issuing books in 1893.
- (2) Full-title Record, with descriptive notes, in author-alphabet, of all books recorded in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, 1893.
- (3) Author-, title-, and subject-index to same in one alphabet.
- (4) Publishers' annual lists for 1893.

The edition is limited, and to secure copies orders should be sent at once. The price is $3.50 half leather; $3.00 in sheets.

The Annual Catalogue for 1886 and 1887 is now out of print. But few copies of the Annual Catalogue for 1888, 1889, 1890 and 1891 are on hand.

We also supply the English Catalogue for 1893, price $1.50, paper; the Annual American and English Catalogues, 1892, can be had in one volume, half leather, $5.00.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX, ...1893...

INCLUDING PERIODICALS, AMERICAN AND ENGLISH, ESSAYS, BOOK-CHAPTERS, ETC., SPECIAL BIBLIOGRAPHIES AND NECROLOGY OF AUTHORS.

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER,

With the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1893 complements the "Annual American Catalogue" of books published in 1893 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1893; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1893; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1893; (5) authors deceased in 1893. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

The new volume includes the features of the "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," originally a monthly supplement to the Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly in an enlarged form, and later issued as an annual volume.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1893 forms the second supplement both to the new five-yearly volume (1887-1891) of Poole's Index to Periodical Literature and to the new A. L. A. Index to essays and book-chapters of Mr. Fletcher.

The new volume will more than fulfil the opinion as to the Co-operative Index expressed in the following extract :

"To the literary worker its value can hardly be over-estimated; to the specialist in any branch of science or letters it is indispensable, since it places within his immediate reach many of the latest fruits of labor in the same field. To every one who desires to be well informed it furnishes the means of making the most effective use of his time."—Providence Press.

By EDWARD PORRITT,

Formerly London Editor of the Manchester Examiner.

The author's aim has been to make the book not only of use and interest to students of civics and of English history and contemporary politics, but also of value to American visitors to England, and to readers of English news in the American press. His accuracy and carefulness of statement may be subjected to the most critical test. The style is good and entertaining. The book cannot fail to be a welcome addition to every library. VOL. XLV., No. 11.

NEW YORK, March 17, 1894.

WHOLE No. 1155

D. APPLETON & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

Symbolic Education.

By SUSAN E. BLOW. Vol. 26, International Education Series. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

This book discusses in a practical way the foundations of the philosophy of Froebel as found in "The Mothers' Songs and Games"—Mutter-und Koselieder—and shows in a clear manner the significance of the kindergarten and its claims for the important place of corner stone of education. It is emphatically a book for mothers as well as for teachers, as it gives the desired aid and interpretation of the actions, feelings, and thoughts of infancy, and unfolds the true method of training as taught by Froebel.

A Costly Freak.

By MAXWELL GRAY, author of "The Silence of Dean Maitland," "An Innocent Impostor," etc. No. 137, Town and Country Library. 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

This story demonstrates that the author's power to hold her readers' closest attention has not diminished since the appearance of "The Silence of Dean Maitland." It is a novel which compares more nearly to that remarkable book than does any other of her writings.

Our Manifold Nature.

Stories from Life. By SARAH GRAND, author of "The Heavenly Twins," "Ideals," etc. No. 136, Town and Country Library. 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, with portrait of author, $1.00.

In these stories the author of "The Heavenly Twins" shows some of her strongest and most impressive work. The great number of readers who have been charmed with her previous books will not fail to discern herein the qualities which have gained for her such prompt and widespread recognition.

A History of the United States Navy,

From 1775 to 1894. By EDGAR STANTON MACLAY, A.M. With technical revision by Lieut. Roy C. Smith, U. S. N. In two volumes. Vol. I. With numerous maps, diagrams, and illustrations. 8vo, cloth, $3.50 per volume.

For nine years the author has devoted himself to the task of supplying the want of a complete history of our navy. His researches in France, with the assistance of Admiral Aube, Minister of the Colonies and the Marine, and in England with the aid of the late Sir Provo Wallis and others, together with the use of private papers and unpublished documents in this country, the aid of descendants of naval heroes and the suggestions of naval officers who have taken part in some of the events described, render the results of his diligent labor complete and authoritative. The appearance of this standard history is a peculiarly happy accompaniment of the development of our new navy.

(Volume II. will be published in May.)

NOTES IN SEASON.

THOMAS NELSON & SONS will issue shortly a Thumb Prayer Book for the American church," uniform with their well-known edition of the book for the English church.

Y. CROWELL & Co. announce for immediate publication a little volume containing seven essays under the title "Social Reform and the Church," by John R. Commons, professor of economics and social science, Indiana University, and secretary of the American Institute of Christian Sociology. Professor Ely, who furnishes the introduction, claims that the work will be "an excellent stimulus to popular thought" and will help "to awaken men to the true importance of the popular questions of the day."

WILLIAM R. JENKINS, of New York, is about to publish a work entitled "The Foot of the Horse," by David Roberge, who has been closely associated with Mr. Robert Bonner for 25 years in his study and practice of the art of horseshoeing. The work is said to be on a different plan from anything of the kind which has yet been presented, inasmuch that lameness and all diseases of the foot are traced to an unbalanced foot bone, and Mr. Roberge declares that all lamenesses and diseases may be prevented or cured by simply balancing the foot. The work will be fully illustrated, showing improved methods of shoeing horses, etc.

MACMILLAN & Co. have now ready the first volume of the "Complete Works of Geoffrey Chaucer," edited from numerous manuscripts by the Rev. Walter W. Skeat, who has devoted a quarter of a century to his great work. "The Romaunt of the Rose" is the beginning of the first modern edition that will contain the whole of Chaucer's works, and it is promised complete by the end of the year. "The Tempest" is the first volume of "The Temple Shakespeare," edited by Israel Gollancz, which will be issued in the order of the Folio editions at the rate of three volumes a month. "The Raiders," by S. R. Crockett, author of "The Stickit Minister," is just ready, and his former book has reached a fifth edition. Macmillan & Co. do not expect to issue Mrs. Humphry Ward's new book, "Marcella," before April 3.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish on the 24th a beautiful book on the Isles of Shoals, especially on a little garden which Mrs. Thaxter has cultivated with wonderful success. The book is called "An Island Garden," and contains twelve full-page illustrations with some smaller ones in color by Childe Hassam. At the same time will appear "Brave Little Holland, and What She Taught Us," by Dr. William E. Griffis, who has made three visits to the Netherlands, and has carefully studied Dutch and American archives for the purpose of rendering himself thoroughly competent to tell the story of the remarkable little country; "A Bird Lover in the West," covering her observations in Ohio, Utah, and Colorado, by Olive Thorne Miller, whose writings about birds have special value on account of her careful observation and her enthusiasm in her subject; "Bayou Folk," by Mrs. Kate Chopin, a volume of remarkably interesting tales of Creole and Acadian life in Louisiana, told by one who is perfectly familiar with all their unusual customs and characters, and told with very remarkable literary skill; also, "Does God Send Trouble?" a volume intended for the consolation of those who in any respect need it, by Dr. C. C. Hall, of Brooklyn. Besides these will be published an edition for 1894 of "The Satchel Guide for Vacation Tourists in Europe," revised to date; and a memoir concerning the Seabury Commemoration held at St. Paul's Cathedral, London, in 1884, by George Shea.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin (if any) the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. is price of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade on application.

Adam, G. Mercer, comp. and ed. Sandow on physical training: a study in the perfect type of the human form; comp. and ed. under Mr. Sandow's direction. N. Y., J. Selwin Tait & Sons, 1894. c. 18+24 p. pora. O. cl., $3.50. [755]

Eugene Sandow, born in Prussia in 1867 and now twenty-seven years of age, is as far as known the strongest existing man; by a carefully sustained and intelligent method of his own discovery, he has built himself up from a delicate child to be the most powerful man in the world. His exhibitions in England and in this country have awakened great interest in his methods of training. His system, which requires no elaborate apparatus, and involves no vigorous course of athletics or alteration in diet, is fully and minutely described; the incidents of his life are also given and his personality analyzed. The book is embellished with upwards of eighty half-tone illustrations from photographs by Sarony and other photographers, and by one hundred and fifty marginal illustrations by a pupil of Meissonier.

Brooks, Byron A. Earth revisited. Bost., Arena Pub. Co., 1893 [1894.] c. 3318 p. D. cl., $1.25, pap., 50 c. [761]

The story of a man who, long after death and after a varied experience in other spheres, revisits the earth in 1892, returning to his native city of Brooklyn. The changes which he witnesses that have been wrought in the way of moral material, and spiritual progress in the course of one hundred years, are minutely described. Churches and creeds have disappeared, and the "reign of righteousness is in full bloom and life." Chiefly aims to denounce the effects of real religion as contrasted with ecclesiasticism.

The ten years embraced in this volume are among the most memorable in the history of the papacy of Europe. They cover the close of the pontificate of Leo X. the brief interlude of Adrian VI., a pope of the Imperial chair, and the first years of Clement VIII. Among the great events of the period, the election of Charles V. as emperor, the peace-war, the battles of Pavia and Mohács, and the fall of Rhodes. Much of these the Empire had an important stake, but naturally the interest of the volume is concentrated on the rise of Luther and the development of the Reformation movement in Germany.

Gives a history of duplicate whist, with directions for playing it. In the chapters devoted to whist strategy, the writer says: "Several of the fundamental principles, and 'extensions of principle' of our great authorities are set aside, such as 'the invariability of the lead from the longest suit, whatever the score, the reckless giving of information, whatever the hand, the useless and confusing system of leads, erroneously called American; the assumption that the discard is always directive; the total disregard of finesse and tenace, and the refusal to acknowledge the merits of the short-suit game.'" Ample reasons are given for the rejection of these principles.

The story opens in London and changes to the West Indies, where the sugar plantation known as "Lot 13" is situated. "Lot 13" has been persistently unlucky, failing to make money under any management. Simon Berrincott, in a malicious mood, wills it to his cousin James, whom he hates, and from whom he has been separated for many years. Simon leaves a son called Bernard, and James has a daughter named Marian. These young people are the leading characters, and, of course, "fall in love" with each other. "Lot 13" becomes unexpectedly prosperous, and Bernard loses his English estate, because his father unwittingly had married Bernard's mother—his second wife—before his first wife was dead. Marian then becomes an heiress, and complications are numerous.

Gibbner, Agnes. Life in a nutshell: a story. Bost., A. I. Bradley & Co., [1894.] 4-222 p. il. D. cl., $1. [779]

When ill health compels the Rev. Stephen Balfour to resign his pastorate in Norfolk, and seek relief in an entire change of scene, his daughter Katie goes to the home of her uncle, in Penshurst: by common consent, however, she soon changes her abode for the homely face and kind hospitality of a quiet little house called the "Nutshell." Life here is contrasted with life at the Walnuts, and a sad episode in Grace Balfour's brief history is given, with the incidents in Katie's happy love-story.

Gossip, G. H. D. The chess pocket manual: a pocket guide for beginners and advanced players. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1894. 3-198 p. il. nar. D. cl., $1. [782]

"The present little work will, it is hoped, be found a useful and handy book of reference for all classes of chess-players—all for the novice, the practiced player, and even occasionally the master. It is not merely a portable guide to the openings, but also contains what is necessary for beginners to guide them safely into the labyrinth of the game, as well as endings of games in actual play, with diagrams of exceptionally remarkable and instructive positions and a collection of carefully selected illustrative games by acknowledged celebrities, some of which will be found to be brilliancies of the first water."—Preface.

Grand, Sarah, (pseud.) Our manifold nature: stories from life. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. 6+235 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 186.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c. [783]

Contents: Eugenia; The yellow leaf; Janey, a humble administrator; Boomellen, Kane, a soldier servant; Ah Man. These half dozen stories appeared originally in English magazines, where they were greatly cut down for several reasons. They are now restored to their original length and are also carefully revised. They all illustrate the advanced views of the author of "The heavenly twins" relative to marriage, heredity, etc.

Hare, A. J. C. The story of two noble lives: being memorials of Charlotte, Countess Canning, and Louisa, Marchioness of Waterford. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., 1893 [1894.] 8 v., 6+381; 4+489; 3+495 p. por. il. D. cl., $8. [784]

The work begins in the third quarter of the eighteenth century, long before the "two noble lives" came into existence. Lady Hardwicke and Lady Stuart de Rothesay, the grandmother and mother of the two beautiful women designated by the title, contribute two charming collections of prefatory letters. Lady Hardwicke's husband was Lord Lieutenant of Ireland from 1801 to 1806, and she gives some amusing sketches of Dublin society of that time. Lady Stuart de Rothesay's letters are dated from the English Embassy at Paris, and are rich in reminiscences of men and events of the period. Her daughters, Lady Canning and Lady Waterford, belonged to the second quarter of the present century. Mr. Hare gives interesting details of their childhood in France and England and of their marriages. Lady Canning's married life was spent in India during the eventful period of the mutiny, her journal being full of the thrilling scenes there enacted and of accounts of the actors in them. Lady Waterford spent her long widowhood among her husband's tenants in Ireland. With many domestic details are anecdotes and recollections of some famous people.

Lincoln, J. Larkin. In memoriam John Larkin Lincoln, 1817-1891. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 5+64 p. pers. O. cl., $3. [794]

John Larkin Lincoln was for forty-five years professor of the Latin language and literature in Brown University; he was born in Boston in 1817, and died in 1891. This volume is designed as a memorial rather than a memoir, and is edited by his son. It contains diaries written by Prof. Lincoln while a student at Columbia College, at Newton Theological Institution, and in Germany, with a number of letters from Europe. Also selected from his numerous writings are twenty-one papers of a literary character, dealing chiefly with Roman life and literature.

Pt. 1, Confession and absolution. Pt. 2, Fasting, communion, and eucharistic worship. Pt. 3, The real presence and the eucharistic sacrifice. Pt. 4, The apostolic ministry.

MacLaren, Alex., D.D. The gospel of St. Matthew. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1894. 2 v., 7+255; 7+238 p. D. (Bible class expositions ser.) cl., ea., $1. [796]

A new series of works especially designed for Sunday schools and Bible classes, consisting of expositions of the International Sunday-School Lessons. They are grouped and arranged under the books of scripture which they relate, and form a very fairly complete commentary on the particular portion of scripture. Dr. MacLaren is not only a thorough Biblical scholar, but he is an expositor who preaches living truth from heart and conscience. It is believed that the books will be found most useful to teachers and superintendents who have to deliver addresses to children, to pupils in Bible classes, and for private reading.

MacLay, Edgar Stanton. A history of the United States navy from 1773 to 1893; with technical revision by Roy C. Smith. 1st v. V. 1. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 523+575 p. il. maps, diagrams, O. cl., $3.50. [797]

For nine years the author has devoted himself to the task of supplying the want of a complete history of our navy. His researches in France, with the assistance of Admiral Aube, Minister of the Colonies at the Marine, and in England with the aid of the late Sir Provo Wallis and others, together with the use of private papers and unpublished documents in this country, the aid of descendants of naval heroes and the suggestions of naval officers who have taken part in some of the events described, render the results of his diligent labor complete and authoritative. In addition to the spirited illustrations of Mr. J. O. Davis, there are many carefully prepared diagrams of important battles, showing the respective positions of the ships throughout the contest, and there are also small maps of the scenes of naval operations.

Marsan, Bentrice. Her shadowed life. A romance of St. Augustine. Chic., E. J. Weeks & Co., [1894.] c. '93. 250 p. il. D. (The Lucile ser., no. 3.) pap., 50 c. [798]

A hasty secret marriage, subsequently concealed, is the cause of the unhappiness which is the pleuritic portion of the heroine. Believing herself a widow she marries again, only to find that her first husband is living and that she is involved in a course of deceit which is successfully maintained until a second widowhood brings freedom. The scene is chiefly St. Augustine.

Mr. Nye has followed the actual history of the discovery and growth of the republic; the events are presented in a dry, satirical way entirely his own, his comments being full of humor. In spite of the fact that the volume is simply designed to be entertaining, and is an illustration of the author's peculiar vein of soul, one may also derive some information from it.

"The motive of this volume is a desire to restore the primacy of certain conceptions which are in danger of disappearing from our modern thinking, and to reform others which, as I think, have been wrongly or inadequately conceived. Reflection has led me to dissent from monistic pantheism on the one hand, and from agnosticism on the other—two of the leading tendencies in the thoughts of our century—and to seek a metaphysical basis for philosophy that may adequately ground a rational theory of knowledge and being."—Author's Preface.

"The first volume of the 'Memoirs' [see notice, Weekly Record, P. W., Dec. 3, '93] told briefly the story of the Revolution, and, at greater length, that of the Directory, the Consulate, and the Empire up to the Russian campaign. The second volume might be entitled 'The empire's fall.' Beginning with that most fatal victory on the banks of the Moskova, Pasquier follows the emperor step by step along the lamentable pathway that led him out of the lurid glare of Moscow's flaming capital to dark night and Fontainebleau and abdication. Then the return of the Bourbons is described and their doings up to the promulgation of his charter by Louis XVIII."—New York Times.

This book is the outcome of observations and experiences of the author as a newspaper man in England, extending over seventeen or eighteen years of a journalistic career which began in boyhood with the reporting of the proceedings of town councils, county courts, etc. It describes the various departments of municipal and national life in Great Britain in a series of chapters whose subjects are: government; the poor law system; elementary education; the administration of justice—criminal and civil; the collection of imperial taxation; Parliament and the constituencies; the procedure of legislation in Parliament; the State departments, the Church of England and non-conformity; the military, naval, and civil services; labor legislation in all its phases, the land and its owners, and the daily press and its influences. Written primarily for American readers and students.

The story opens in Kentucky at the "Romer Place," in the year 1861, with a discussion between Paul and Harry Romer on the slavery question; the brothers' opposite views lead the one afterward to join the Confederate forces, the other to enter the Union army. Their war experiences and their love-stories are the leading themes.

Dr. Wood, who is professor of gynecology in the Cleveland Medical College, says in his preface: "An ideal text-book, according to my conception, is one which should not only embody in concise form for the specialist the most advanced teachings of the American and European schools of gynecology, but should present these teachings in such a way as to enable the student of medicine and the non-specialist to obtain at least an intelligent knowledge of the subject without exhaustive research." Such a work he has aimed successfully to present. He has devoted much care to diagnosis, especially to the diagnosis of abdominal tumors. He has introduced more than the usual number of illustrations and clinical cases and omitted the usual chapters devoted to diseases of the breast and diseases of the rectum.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 17, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help therunto."—LORD BACON.

THE PROFESSION OF BOOKSELLING.

THE CIRCULATING LIBRARY.—II.

THE particular locality in which the bookseller resides, as stated before, must determine his choice of fiction for his circulating library, if it is to fulfil its purpose and attract the public to his store. A country community will always care more for books of which they have heard people speak all their lives than for the newest and latest publications, news of which will probably take some time to reach them in their busy, unliterary lives. The opening of a circulating library is always hailed with delight, and when the old favorites are found well represented the bookseller will make for himself a constituency that will easily suggest to him in what direction his nucleus should be developed to retain its popular character, or to furnish special borrowers who have proved worth pleasing.

Fiction being always most in demand, especially by women who form the chief reading public of busy towns, we have made up a short list of novels which have enjoyed great popularity in their day and are still always called for at libraries. We do not pretend to cover the fiction a bookseller should try to keep on his shelves and make his patrons desire. We have merely trusted to the memory of an inveterate novel-reader, who, glancing back quickly over the past twenty-five years, has jotted down the titles of books which have all been talked about and eagerly read and are just as sure of meeting the tastes of a new generation. Of course if a bookseller can afford to have complete sets of Dickens, Thackeray, George Eliot, Walter Scott, Bulwer, Cooper, and others, he will do well to make a show of standards. We have only given the most popular of the greater novelists' noted books. Other books must depend upon the demand, and we should consider a lot for the same book from three or four regular patrons sufficient to justify adding it to the library.

THE END OF THE SUIT OF MARTIN v. THE BRITISH MUSEUM.

THE news that the verdict in Mrs. John Edulph Martin's suit against the trustees of the British Museum, awarding the plaintiff 20s., has been set aside, and that the High Court of Justice has given judgment for the defendants, will no doubt greatly relieve the minds of many English librarians and library committees of a new and deepened sense of their responsibilities. If the verdict had been allowed to stand, nothing in the eye of the law, was to be taken for granted. It would not have sufficed that a book came from a respectable publisher. It would not have done to plead the difficulty, almost amounting to impossibility, of reading all the additions to a large library; apparently even statutory authority would not have protected. It is right and proper, of course, that private reputation should be safe-guarded, and books containing libellous matter certainly ought not to reach the hands of readers. It is just here that the troubles of the librarian come in. Libels may lurk in innocent-looking works—in novels, for example, and the best biographies—and how is the unlucky librarian to discover that there is no word of libellous import in the books he adds to his collection? The simple answer is by reading them. The British Museum receives annually some 95,000 books, and to read these the services of 110 readers would be necessary. Counting newspapers, etc., the total reaches nearly 320,000. Yet the managers were to be held responsible for every line in every book issued to the public, for with them, as with newspaper editors, ignorance was to be no plea! The finding of the jury was so manifestly unreasonable that it could not be expected to stand.

N. Y. NEWSDEALERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT AND BENEFIT ASS'N.

THIRD ANNUAL DINNER.

THE third anniversary dinner of the New York Newsdealers' and Stationers' Provident and Benevolent Association was discussed on the evening of the 13th inst. at the Hungaria, Union Sq., New York City. About eighty members were present, Thomas F. Martin occupying the chair. Nearly all branches of the newspaper business were represented. At the head table sat John Swinton, of the New York Sun, and David A. Munro of The North American Review. Chief among the toasts on the list were "Our Bread and Butter" (the daily papers) and "Our Meat and Pudding" (the weeklies and magazines). In some of the speeches reference was made to the movement now on foot to establish news-booths under the stations of the elevated railroads, and it was shown that the feeling of these representative dealers present was strongly opposed to the scheme.

Among those seated at the tables were T. Martin, A. Beggs, J. E. Ledwith, W. P. Maher, R. Grant, R. Grum, H. Bonnett, T. Lunt, P. I. McGrath, B. Haag, N. Frank, W. Schriever, T. J. McBride, S. M. Perkins, P. J. Mack, J. I. Jackson, J. Rudolph, G. B. Bancker, J. Eck, J. E. McBride, J. Brennan, W. H. McKiernan, W. H. Decker, D. G. Davis, S. Weinberg, H. Merten, H. Hansler, L. Jonas, H. Malkan, M. Singerman, and A. Michelman.

OBITUARY.

CALEB S. BRAGG.

CALEB S. BRAGG, senior member of the American Book Co., and one of the foremost school-book publishers in this country, died suddenly on March 8 while in the train en route from New York to his home in Cincinnati. He was accompanied by his son and daughter-in-law, and was ill but for a few minutes, his death being attributed to Bright's disease. Mr. Bragg was born in Sydney, Maine, in 1823, and began life as a teacher. When about twenty-five years old he went to Ohio as a travelling salesman for W. B. Smith & Co., the founders of the great Cincinnati school-book house, which, through a succession of changes, is finally known as the Cincinnati branch of the American Book Co. A short time later he severed his connection with this house to become a member of the firm of Ingham & Bragg, of Cleveland, who were also booksellers and competitors of the Cincinnati house. In 1872 Mr. Bragg returned to Cincinnati as the junior member of the firm of Wilson, Hinkle & Co., which had succeeded W. B. Smith & Co. The firm then consisted of Mr. O. J. Wilson, now retired, and Anthony H. Hinkle, whose death occurred ten years ago, and whose place in the firm was taken by his son, Mr. A. Howard Hinkle.

In 1875 this firm was succeeded by the firm of Van Antwerp & Bragg, and the business, which had steadily grown to enormous proportions, was continued under this firm-name until 1890, when it was taken into the reorganization of school-book publishing houses consolidated as the American Book Company. With this change Mr. Bragg and Mr. A. Howard Hinkle were elected Cincinnati directors, and Mr. Bragg was made managing director of the Cincinnati branch. About a year ago Mr. Bragg concluded to retire from active business life, and to enjoy the handsome competency which he had accumulated during his business career.

He was succeeded in the Cincinnati branch by Mr. W. E. Thalheimer. Last December, however, it was found that the New York office of the company was much in need of a manager of the agency department, and as this had been Mr. Bragg's business since his connection first began with the Cincinnati house, he was finally prevailed upon to come to New York and assume the duties for awhile.

He was returning to his home in Avondale, near Cincinnati, after an absence of two months, when his death occurred.

While in Cleveland Mr. Bragg was also actively interested as an agent of Charles Scribner's Sons, and especially worked to introduce throughout the State, Guyot's Geography, which was then a new publication. In the early school-book wars in Ohio, in which W. B. Smith & Co. pushed vigorously McGuffey's readers and Ray's arithmetic, he took an active part, particularly so because the New York firms engaged in publishing school-books were in active competition then to introduce their books in his market of the growing West. He was conceded to be the best-posted school-book man in the State, and he was personally acquainted with all the prominent educators.

He leaves a widow and one son, C. C. Bragg, Charles, the other son, having died about a year ago.

Mr. Bragg was a man of liberal culture and education, his chief characteristics being his knowledge and insight of men, his executive ability and management. He was generous, kindly, and a liberal contributor to religious, educational, and charitable institutions, having long been an elder in the Avondale Presbyterian Church, and always evincing a warm interest in its work. He always took pleasure in encouraging young men starting in business, and many institutions have been recipients of his generosity. But while generous in thus extending assistance and in his contributions, he was prudent and careful in his business, and had accumulated a very comfortable estate, approximating nearly $1,000,000. His funeral was held on the 11th inst. at Spring Grove Cemetery, Cincinnati, and was attended by a large number of friends, associates, and acquaintances.

OBITUARY NOTES.

SIR JAMES FITZJAMES STEPHEN, author of a "Digest of Criminal Law" and other important legal works, died in Ipswich on the 11th inst., aged 65.

ANNIE WOLF, who may be better known by her pseudonym "Em'ly," died on the 7th inst. at the University Hospital in Philadelphia. She left her inherited mss. to A. P. Sissett, Jr.

PROF. LUDWIG AUGUST FRANKL, the well-known Austrian poet, died in Vienna on the 11th inst., aged 84. His best-known works are "Andreas Hofer in Song" and Grillparzer's biography.

GEORGE COOPER CONNOR, the Masonic author, died at his home in Chattanooga, Tenn., March 9. At the Denver Encampment of Knights Templar, Major Connor's ritual was unanimously adopted, and it is now the text-book of that order. His Knights of Malta ritual has been adopted by the Grand Lodge of Tennessee, and is pending for adoption before the next encampment at Boston.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ALBUQUERQUE, NEW MEXICO.—Bullock, Baker & Co., booksellers, it is reported, have been attached for $27,000.

DULUTH, MINN.—W. S. Albertson, bookseller, has made an assignment.

EUREKA, CAL.—It is reported that W. T. Bonsteel, bookseller, is seeking to compromise with his creditors.

NEW YORK CITY.—George H. Richmond & Co. have removed to 22 East 16th Street, where they will continue their business of publishing and bookelling.

NEW WHATCOMB, WASH.—Bradley & Sherman, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—The Edward P. Judd Company, a joint stock corporation, in which Edward P. Judd holds ninety shares, and Anne C. Fifield and R. H. Lewis five shares respectively, succeeds to the book and stationery business conducted since 1877 under the firm-name of Edward P. Judd, at 848 Chapel Street.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Annie C. Chapman, doing business at 915 Pennsylvania Avenue, under the style of the Metropolitan Book Store, made an assignment to W. S. Lambert, of 410 5th Street, N. W. Liabilities are estimated at $8204.73; assets at $5437.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish Stanley Weyman's "Under the Red Robe."

THE issue of the English Library, which was started by Heinemann & Balestier as a rival to the Taschenbuch series on the Continent, has been suspended.

GINN & Co. will publish next month in their College Series of Latin Authors the "Dialogus de Oratoribus" of Tacitus, edited by Prof. Charles E. Bennett, of Cornell.

CASELL & Co. will issue shortly G. A. Sala's "Things I have Seen and People I have Met," a collection of papers which have appeared serially in the Daily Telegraph and elsewhere.

THE very important lectures on art delivered during the winter by Mr. John La Farge at the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York, will be revised by the author, and published in book form possibly next fall.

THE first publication of the Columbia University Press, for which Macmillan & Co. are publishing agents, will be a volume of "Classical Studies in Honor of Professor Drisler." The issue of this series of papers by former pupils of Professor Henry Drisler will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his connection with Columbia College.

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY has bought the property at 144 Nassau Street from David and Charles Banks. The lot is 21.1 x 47 feet. The Society by this purchase thus acquires a plot of about 8500 square feet with a frontage on Nassau Street of 100 feet and on Spruce Street of 84.6 feet. A twenty-story stone building will be erected on the plot.

A. C. McCLEURG & Co., Chicago, will publish immediately "In Maiden Meditation," by E. V. A. This dainty and attractive book might be called with "The Reveries of a Bachelor"—"a book of the heart." As that admits us to the innermost thoughts of the man, so this gives us a glimpse of thoughts which pass through a woman's mind when "In maiden meditation, fancy free."

THE list of "Private Libraries in America," now being compiled by G. Hedeler, publisher of the Leipzig Export Journal, already includes 500 considerable libraries, but he still desires to obtain, from owners with whom he has been unable to communicate, brief details as to the extent of their treasures and the special bent of their collections. Mr. Hedeler's address is No. 3 Poststrasse, Leipzig.

WE are pleased to note that Mr. F. E. Grant, the well-known bookseller of 7 W. 42d Street, New York, is recovering from the effects of an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Grant was taken ill on the 2d inst., and on the 6th his physician decided to remove the vermiform appendix, which was done successfully. Mr. Grant promptly recovered from the shock, and is now in a fair way to be about again shortly.

FUNK & WAGNALLS Co. have just ready the twelfth and concluding volume of their Columbian Historical Novels, by John R. Musick. It is entitled "Union: a story of the great Rebellion," and while merely a story of the Civil War, laying special stress on the period from 1860 to 1864, it summarizes the chief episodes of our history down to the year 1894, and thus makes this series of historical novels inclusive of the leading events of American history from voyage of Columbus to the present day; like predecessors, it is fully illustrated.

D. C. HEATH & Co. have in press a "Lectory Course in Physiological Psychology," Dr. E. C. Sanford, of Clark University. A fitted edition of the first six chapters of the will be brought out at once. These chapters cover the Dermal Senses, the Static and Kinesthetic Senses, Taste and Smell, Hearing, Vision in general, and Sensations of Light and Color. Chapters to follow treat of the Seeing of Direction and Motion, Weber's Law, Reaction Time, Action and Reaction Times, Association, Memory, Attention, Voluntary Motion, etc. The author's aim has been to give directions for experiments covering as far as practicable all the facts and methods of experimental psychology.

THE WATCH AND WARD SOCIETY, of Boston, recently caused the arrest of B. Lewis, a dealer, of 250 Hanover Street, on the charge of selling obscene literature. Lewis was indicted on seven counts, but the jury, after a long deliberation, could find him guilty on only one count—namely, selling "The Arms of Love" and "Crimson Kisses." Lewis has appealed to the Superior Court. Count Zuboff, who was rested on the charge of issuing obscene material in putting forth his last book, "Violet," was acquitted on the 12th inst. Alexander McCauley, a South End Washington Street newsdealer, has also been indicted on a charge similar to the foregoing for selling a Worthington edition of the "Decameron."

FREDERICK WARNE & Co. will issue immediately a translation of a very popular novel by the celebrated Hungarian writer, Maurice Maeterlinck, "In Love with the Czarina;" also a third story by Henry Herman (author of "His Ancestry" and "One Traveller Returns," etc.), entitled "Dead Man's Secret." They have now issued a new edition, the fourth, of "Electricity and Life," by John B. Verity, with many illustrations and a new and very interesting chapter on electric cooking and heating, a branch of this wonderful science likely to attract great attention in the near future; also, a book on "Puzzles" of every conceivable variety—arithmetical, quizzical, and curious—dissecting puzzles, matches and wire, etc., by Ange Lewis, who, as "Professor Hoffmann, the jurist," is well known to all interested in the domain.

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & Co. will publish April 1, under the title of "Joanna Trullinger," a novel by Miss Annie E. Holdsworth. It is one of the most popular of the younger English novelists, and who in this new story has taken the now widely-agitated question of Indian rescue work among fallen women with power and at the same time with delicacy. The book presents a possible solution of the question but is primarily a well-planned and interesting novel. C. L. Webster & Co. have transferred rights in Bliss Carman's first volume of poems, "Low Tide on Grand Pré," to Stone & Kimball of Cambridge and Chicago. The first edition of the book, which appeared only a few months ago, has already been exhausted, and a new handsome edition will soon be brought out. Stone & Kimball, who we believe are known to be two undergraduates of Harvard, will take degrees at the close of the present college year.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Ads for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 20 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the words [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as "not having been received."

* * This edition of Chaucer, by one of the greatest authorities on early English literature, represents the unremitting labor of a quarter of a century. It is the first modern edition which contains the whole of Chaucer's works. A complete commentary is furnished, whilst in the notes every difficulty has been considered. The glossary is of exceptional fulness.

THE TEMPLE SHAKESPEARE.

IN SMALL INEXPENSIVE VOLUMES.

Edited by ISRAEL GOLLANCZ, M.A. With concise preface, full glossary, and such brief notes as are requisite for the thorough elucidation of the text, which is that of the Cambridge Edition, the lines being numbered as in the Globe Edition, line for line. Each volume to have a photogravure frontispiece—either one of the accepted portraits of Shakespeare, or some topographical illustration connected with his life—and a title-page by Walter Crane, with a different and appropriate vignette to each. Printed in red and black on hand-made paper. Imperial 32mo, cloth, gilt top, 45 cents; paste grain roan, gilt top, 60 cents.

VOLUME I. NOW READY.

The Tempest and two other volumes will be issued each month, the order of publication being that of the Folio Editions.

SOCIAL EVOLUTION.

By BENJAMIN KIDD. 8vo, $2.50.

The scope and importance of this volume may be gathered from some of its chapter-titles as follows:

The Outlook.

Conditions of Human Progress.

The Central Feature of Human History.

The Function of Religious Beliefs in the Evolution of Society.

Western Civilization. Modern Socialism.

Human Evolution is not Primarily Intellectual, etc., etc.

"The name of Mr. Benjamin Kidd, author of a very striking work on 'Social Evolution,' is, so far as we know, new to the literary world; but it is not often that a new and unknown writer makes his first appearance with a work so novel in conception, so fertile in suggestion, and on the whole so powerful in exposition as 'Social Evolution' appears to us to be."—The Times, London.

A Complete Revelation of the Secrets of Cheating at Games of Chance and Skill.

By JOHN NEVIL MASKELYNE.

With 4 Plates and 62 Illustrations in the Text. Crown 8vo, Cloth, Ornamental, $1.50.

CONTENTS: I. Introductory—II. Common Sharps and their Tricks—III. Marked Cards and the Manner of their Employment—IV. Reflectors—V. Holdouts—VI. Manipulation—VII. Collusion and Conspiracy—VIII. The Game of Faro—IX. Prepared Cards—X. Dice—XI. High Ball Poker—XII. Roulette and Allied Games—XIII. Sporting-Houses—XIV. Sharps and Flats—Postscript.

. This book will constitute a complete exposure of the methods and devices employed in cheating at the present day, and a revelation of the whole of the secrets of the modern gaming sharp. It will be a work absolutely unique of its kind, nothing at all approaching it having ever before been published in any language.

Apart from its value as a warning to those who are addicted to any form of gambling, it is a book which will prove, it is hoped, of the utmost interest to the general public, showing, as it does, the capabilities of trickery. Swindling of any kind is only rendered possible by the fact that the public have so little knowledge of what can be accomplished by unfair means, and this applies more particularly perhaps to unfair practices in play than to any other subject.

WILL PUBLISH SATURDAY, MARCH 24 :

An Island Garden.

By CELIA THAXTER, author of "Drift-Weed," "Among the Isles of Shoals," etc. With twelve full-page illustrations in color ; and several smaller ones, by Childe Hassam. In a handsome octavo volume, very attractively bound, $4.00 net.

Mrs. Thaxter, who has spent a large part of her life on Appledore, the largest of the Isles of Shoals, describes the flower-garden by her cottage, which is one of the chief attractions of the islands and the wonder of thousands who visit them every summer. The illustrations reproduce the beauty and the blazing splendor of the garden, and the corner within the cottage where the hostess welcomes and charms those whom she delights to host.

Brave Little Holland, and What She Taught Us.

By WILLIAM ELLIOT GRIFFIS, D.D., author of "Japan," "The Lily Among Thorns," "Martha Calbraith Perry," etc. With illustrations. 16mo, $1.25. In Riverside Library for Young People, small 16mo, 75 cents.

Dr. Griffis has made three visits to the Netherlands, and by careful study of Dutch historians and also Dutch-American archives has amply prepared himself to tell the noble story of Holland, and to show the influences which that country exerted upon the Colonial, Revolutionary, and Constitutional founders of American order and liberty.

Does God Send Trouble?

By CHARLES CUTHBERT HALL, D.D., of Brooklyn, author of "Into His Marvellous Light." Crown 8vo, $1.00.

This book is an attempt, founded on an interpretation of the New Testament, to break from the influence of that religious phraseology which attributes calamity, suffering, sickness, and death to the will of God. While wholly evangelical it is a radical departure from the beaten track, and its tendency is to invest the subject of consolation with fresh beauty and sweetness.

A Bird-Lover in the West.

By OLIVE THORNE MILLER, author of "In Nesting Time," "Bird-Ways," "Little Brothers of the Air," etc. 16mo, $1.25.

In this Mrs. Miller relates, with even more than her customary enthusiasm and charm, her delightful experiences and observations in Ohio, Utah, and Colorado. The freshness of the field, the new varieties of her beloved "little brothers of the air," and her positive skill in describing their habits, give to her new volume an interest even greater than that of her previous books, good and engaging as those were.

Bayou Folk.

By KATE CHOPIN. 16mo, $1.25.

Under this title Mrs. Chopin includes several tales drawn from life among the Creoles and Acadians of Louisiana. They are faithful, spirited representations of unfamiliar characters and customs, but picturesque and altogether worthy of description and literary preservation. The dialect of these semi-aliens is given, but not at such length as to be tedious ; and it distinctly aids in imparting to the stories a genuine "local color." These stories are quite unlike most American tales, and cannot fail to attract much attention.

Crawford, F. Marion. Katharine Lauderdale; il. by Alfred Brennan. N. Y.: Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. '93. 2 v., 4+332; 4+336 p. il. por. S. cl., $2. [851]

With this novel Mr. Crawford begins a series which deals with the fortunes of two American families, the Lauders and the Ralstons, in the same manner as the stories of the Saracinescas were given us. The love and jealousy, the strife and intrigue, the romance and commonplace, which enter into their lives are graphically pictured in a thoroughly American atmosphere. The background of this volume is New York City; the characters belong to the "400"; Jack Ralston, the hero, is a "failure" from a business point of view, and is addicted to drink. A secret marriage he enters into with his cousin Katharine Lauderdale is the motive. The author indulges in many philosophical remarks about heredity, the drink habit, etc., etc.

"In that the aim of this little volume is the stimulation of an observant love of nature, and especially the increase of knowledge about our plants, it is similar to 'How to know the wild flowers.' But in each book this has been attempted in so different a mood and manner that I feel confident that neither encroaches upon the province of the other. The present classification—if a word so suggestive of technicalities can be used—is 'according to season' and incidentally, locality, enabling the reader to start upon each tour of discovery with so clear a notion as to what he may expect to find, and where he may expect to find it, as materially to increase the chances of a successful expedition."—Preface.

The material embraced in this work first appeared as a serial in The Metal Worker. The author acquired proficiency in copper-working through a long apprenticeship and many years of actual labor at the bench. The instruction he gives is therefore entirely practical. A special feature is the illustrations, which add not only to the interest but to the value of the text, as they show the work in all stages of progress and illustrate all the appliances, patterns, and tools. The work is divided into sections, each treating a separate topic, and is thoroughly indexed. The style of writing is exceedingly simple and the descriptions of work go into the smallest details.

Gage, Simon H: The microscope and microscopical methods. 5th ed. rev. and enl. and il. by 103 figures in the text. Pt. 1 of the microscope and histology. Ithaca, N. Y., Comstock Pub. Co., 1894. c. 7+165 p. il. O. cl., $1.50. [864]

Remains in general plan like former editions—that is, definitions and discussions are followed by laboratory experiments, in which the student makes the demonstrations for himself. It is printed only on the left-hand page, thus leaving the right blank for notes. The figures have been increased from about 50 to 103 and have been distributed in the text instead of being collected into plates. In matter, the book has been increased from 96 to 165 pages; this is due in part to the elaboration of the old text and in part to a wholly new chapter, "On photo-micrography and on photographing natural history specimens in a horizontal position with a vertical camera." The author "hopes that the book as it now appears may, while remaining strictly elementary, still more fully meet the needs of those who wish to use the microscope for serious study and investigation."

- The time is in the "sixties" just after the war: the place, the barracks of regular U. S. troops in a southern city; the officers and their wives, and the "hangers on" of a camp, the characters. The incidents illustrate the lights and shadows of military life, and are evidently drawn from actual knowledge and experience. Lieut. Waring, the hero, and his colored servant Ananias, are deliciously humorous; Ananias fully deserving his name. An escapade of Waring's, which leads to an accusation of murder, is well worked up.

This volume completes the series of "Columbian historical novels." It begins with the events leading up to the Rebellion, reviews Buchanan's administration, and shows the weakness of his character. Lincoln then takes his place and steers the helm of the ship of state successfully through the storm of four years' civil war. A deep mystery and an intricate plot in the narrative, and in which the central figure is Elsie Cole, is finally worked out at the close of the story, which ends with John Wilkes Booth making love to Maggie Mitchell, his proposal and his rejection; the assassination of President Lincoln, and the death of Booth. The romance of the narrative ends with the year 1865. Following is a full and complete statement of leading events in our country's history down to 1894.

- The chapters, beginning with the rally in the Asturias, treat of the rise of Castile and the temporary union of Castile and Leon, of the story of the Cid, of the rise of the smaller states, the rise of Aragon, the victories over the Moors, the reign of Pedro the Cruel and the great civil war, of the dynasty of Trastamara, of the age of chivalry, of the marriage of Ferdinand and Isabella, of the Inquisition, and the capture of Granada. Mr. Watts has found his sources among the chronicles of the early Christian writers as well as among the narratives of the Moorish historians.

Ralph Spencer, a wealthy Californian, in an exploring journey to the North Pole is represented as finding a tubular passage, which leads into the centre of the earth. This region, he discovers, is called Centralia, and that it possesses many strange customs and views. With some romantic incidents, comparisons are made with our own system of government, very much to our disadvantage.

Westall, W: For honor and life: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 4+260 p. D. cl., $1.25. [942]

This brilliant military tale is of the hairbreadth escapes and adventures in and around Paris of one of the brave Swiss Guard who resisted the attack on the Tuilleries, occurring early during the French Revolution, and ending in the massacre of August 10, 1792. It ends happily, after a situation that makes the strongest possible climax to the story.

Wentworth, G. A., and Hill, G. A. An examination manual in plane geometry.

Bost., Ginn & Co., 1894. c. 3+138 p. D. cl., 55 c. [943]

The aim of the authors has been to give some elementary but much needed instruction in the art of handling original theorems and problems, and to supply a series of graded test-papers in geometry which can be used not merely as tests of knowledge actually obtained, but also as a means of developing and strengthening the power to originate and carry on a logical train of thought.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Tourney is a new magazine devoted to the discussion of sociological subjects. It is published at Fort Collins, Col., and edited by Grace Espy Patton. The first (March) number contains several interesting papers.

THAT famous London book-store of Robert Dodsley, called "Tielley's Head," where Johnson, Pope, and other literary lights of the seventeenth century gathered, is delightfully re-described by Austin Dobson in Scribner's for April.

THE ALPHA PUBLISHING CO., 212 Boylston Street, Boston, has assumed the publication of Babyland and Our Little Men and Women, formerly published by D. Lothrop Company. The company will also act as advertising and subscription agents for The Pansy.

AFTER a private existence of seven years The Hobby Horse has been granted a new lease of life, and will continue to be issued quarterly in a limited edition to subscribers only. It will be under the editorship of Herbert P. Horne, and besides its illustrations the magazine will contain articles upon literature, music, painting, sculpture, architecture, and the decorative arts; poems; essays; fiction; and original designs, choicely printed in quarto form upon hand-made paper. The American market will be supplied by Copeland & Day, 69 Cornhill, Boston.

A NEW magazine called the Midland Monthly is issued at Des Moines, Iowa. Mr. Johnson Brigham is the editor, and he hopes to make his magazine truly representative of the Middle West, which for some reason has not as yet achieved the literary recognition its native talent has merited. The first two numbers contain stories by Octave Thanet and Hamlin Garland, who have both done much to bring the West to its desired place in literature.

THE first issue of the first Greek newspaper to be printed with Greek types in the United States made its appearance in New York City March 3. Its name is Atlantis. It has four pages, and is well printed. It appeals not only to the Greeks, but to those Americans who are studying the language of the ancient Greeks. The Atlantis is printed in modern Greek, a knowledge of which will aid the student of the tongue in which Homer sang. The Atlantis will print full information about the findings in the various excavations made about Athens by the different schools there. It is published under the auspices of the Greek Society of this city. The advertisements are in English. Haik is the title of another Greek journal published from 202 W. 23d Street, New York.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 24, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE NEEDS OF THE NEW YORK POST-OFFICE.

THE shortcomings of the New York Post-Office in the matter of prompt and careful delivery of mail matter have long been a grievance of the publishing trade in New York, and it is therefore to be hoped that Postmaster Dayton will succeed in his efforts to obtain relief. "Nearly all [the mails to and from the other countries of the world are despatched from or received at the New York office," according to the last report of the Postmaster-General, and the postal revenues derived from the New York office are far in excess of the expenditures for the service of the office. Yet the business of the establishment cannot be conducted with efficiency or promptitude, on account of the insufficiency of the appropriation made for its support, and the mode in which that appropriation is applied by the Post-Office Department. The interests of the whole community are seriously injured by the lack of proper postal facilities here at New York.

To supply that lack Postmaster Dayton has brought all available pressure to bear upon the functionaries at Washington. "We are hampered," he says, "in every branch of the service," and he supports this statement with facts which ought to command the attention of the House and Senate postal committees. The transactions of the New York office are of surpassing magnitude; over one billion pieces of mail matter are handled there every year; it is the clearing-house for the money-order business of the United States; its registry department is far larger than that of any other office in the country; its revenues and accounts are enormous; through it are transmitted all the stamps, the value of which runs up to many millions a year; and the forces in its employment are large. Yet the allotment out of its revenues for its own support is but 36 per cent., while that of Philadelphia is 49; that of Baltimore, 55; that of Boston, 41; that of San Francisco, 45; and that of many other offices, nearly as large.

THE statute prohibiting the sending to a debtor a postal-card on which is written a demand for a debt having been construed in so many and various ways, the Postmaster-General has given an opinion on the matter that is certain to be of general interest. Two postal-cards were submitted to him. On one was written "Please call and settle account, which is long past due and for which our collector has called several times, and oblige." The other contained these words: "You owe us $1.50. We have called several times for it. If not paid at once we shall place with our law agency for collection." The Postmaster-General, on the decision of an eminent judge, stated that the first card was mailable and that the second was not. The logic of this decision is that whenever a threat, direct or implied, is written upon a postal-card, the latter under the law is unmailable.

A NEW FRENCH BOOK-TRADE CATALOGUE.

IN 1859 Charles Reinwald, of Paris, undertook to furnish an annual catalogue of all French books issued in Paris and throughout the world for the benefit of the book trade of France, and still more for the book trade of foreign countries. It seemed that such a useful undertaking, bound to further the sale of French books in foreign countries, would be appreciated and supported. This did not happen, however. From 1858 to 1869 Reinwald published his catalogues, the one for the latter year not appearing until 1872. Reinwald proposed compiling a combination catalogue for the years 1870 and 1871, and then to continue the annual regularly in future. But the volumes did not appear. After six years Otto Lorenz, the bibliographer, who assisted Reinwald from the beginning of his scheme, decided to risk the great undertaking once more, and brought out the "Catalogue annuel" for 1876. In his preface Lorenz pointed out the absolute necessity of such a catalogue, but although it seems incredible, he also came short of the needed support, and could not bring out the catalogue for the following year. That an enthusiastic bibliographer like Lorenz, who had for many years proved his devotion to his art by the publication of the "Catalogue général de la librairie française," should become discouraged speaks volumes for the lack of appreciation, even in France, of the true value of bibliographical work. And now a third attempt is made by D. Jordell, who has compiled the "Catalogue annuel de la Librairie Française pour 1893," which has just been published by Per Lamm (Librairie Nils-son), again showing that there are still men full of the courage of their opinions and willing to do needed work which may wait long for tangible appreciation. It is to be hoped that a fourth attempt will not become necessary.

It is interesting to compare the three undertakings with one another and also with the official Journal général de l'imprimerie et de la librairie. Reinwald's first catalogue for 1858 contained about 4000 titles, and the issue for 1869 about 400 more. Lorenz's catalogue for 1876 included 4500 titles, while the alphabetical list of the Journal Général contained about 13,000. In the new catalogue for 1893, the Journal Général gives about 14,000 titles, of which D. Jordell has only accepted about 6000 as legitimate titles of books and pamphlets, rigidly excluding all such publications as only have an ephemeral use and duration of importance. Mr. Jordell who will be remembered as the editor of the continuation of Lorenz's "Catalogue Général de la Librairie Française," (1840-1885) has planned his work strictly on the lines of the Reinwald and Lorenz catalogues, but in place of the classified index he has made an alphabetical list of titles and an alphabetical list of subjects, referring from the catchword to the author's name.

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY.

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY has removed to 10 East Twenty-third Street, New York, from the building which has been its home from the beginning. This removal has elicited some interesting facts as to the early work and later development of the society. It was organized, as already mentioned, in 1825, for the avowed purpose of diffusing Christian knowledge and promoting religious living and sound morality by the issue of publications "calculated to receive the approbation of all evangelical Christians;" among its chief organizers were Dr. Spring, of the Presbyterian Church, Dr. Milner, of the Episcopal Church, Dr. Payson, of the Congregational Church, Dr. Sommers, of the Baptist, and Dr. Milledoler, of the Dutch Reformed Church. How well the society has fulfilled its purpose may be inferred from the numbers of certain books it has put in circulation. It may be interesting to know that it has issued 472,767 copies of "Pilgrim's Progress," 512,000 of Baxter's "Call to the Unconverted," 832,877 of "New Drops," 400,000 New Testaments, with notes, 141,000 Nelson "On Infidelity," 141,000 Pike's "Persuasives to Early Piety," 181,000 Doddridge's "Rise and Progress of Religion in the Soul," 263,550 Baxter's "Saints' Rest," 339,240 "Songs for Little Ones at Home," and 223,260 Bible dictionaries. The society employs annually about 150 colporteurs, who carry its publications to the foreign-speaking and tenement-house population of the large cities as well as to the more remote country communities; it publishes seven periodicals, two of them in German; while for its foreign constituency it issues many books and tracts in German, French, Welsh, Dutch, Norwegian, Danish, Swedish, Hungarian, Finnish, Bohemian, Polish, and Hebrew.

THE AMERICAN PATERNOSTER ROW.

WITHIN an incredibly short space of time Fifth Avenue, from Tenth to Twenty-third Streets, has attracted to itself and its immediate vicinity almost the entire wholesale book trade—indeed at the present there are but two important exceptions—Harper & Brothers and D. Appleton & Co., and of these the latter may be expected to locate themselves in that neighborhood probably within a year. Among the later arrivals are Charles Scribner's Sons, on the east side, between 21st and 22d Streets, whose handsome new building will be ready for occupancy about the 1st of May. The Presbyterian Board will become the neighbors of the Methodist Book Concern, having purchased the property at the N. W. corner of 20th Street and Fifth Avenue. The American Baptist Publication Society will occupy the first floor up in the new building at the N. E. corner of 21st Street and Fifth Avenue, adjoining Scribner's. Hamilton Gordon, the music publisher, will occupy the new building nearing completion on the east side, of Fifth Avenue two doors above 20th Street. The Merriam Company (formerly the Price-McGill Co.) will take the store at present occupied by Charles L. Webster & Co., at 67 Fifth Avenue. Webster & Co. will remove to the floors above. J. Selwin Tait & Sons are rapidly getting into shape in their new quarters at 65 Fifth Avenue. The American Tract Society has just removed its headquarters to 10 East 23d Street.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

THE WAVERLY PUB. CO. vs. H. RIDER HAGGARD.

JOSEPH A. ARNOLD, president of the Waverly Publishing Company, has brought suit in the United States Circuit Court to recover $10,000 damages from H. Rider Haggard.

In June, 1892, the Waverly Publishing Company issued a reprint of Haggard's story, "Nada, the Lily." Haggard's publishers, Longmans, Green & Co., of No. 15 East Sixteenth Street, secured a temporary injunction restraining the Waverly Company from selling the book, on the ground that it was copyrighted. The case was argued in the United States Circuit Court of New Jersey and the injunction vacated. Now, Mr. Arnold, to whom the Waverly Company has assigned its claim, brings suit for damages sustained while the sale of the book was interfered with. The suit was brought in the Court of Common Pleas, but was a few days ago removed to the United States Circuit Court.

Mr. Arnold said to a Mail and Express reporter:

"The case involves the constitutionality of the International Copyright law. There is a clause in that law which gives the President, whenever he is satisfied that a country grants substantially the same copyright privileges to the citizens of the United States that it does to its own citizens, power to proclaim copyright to the citizens of that country, in the United States.

"It gives the President judicial power in deciding whether a country grants substantially the same privileges to our citizens that it does to its own, and it is on this ground that the constitutionality of the law will be questioned. In my opinion the works of no foreign author have been legally copyrighted since the International Copyright law went into effect."

BOOK PRODUCTION IN BOHEMIA.

THE Society of Bohemian Publishers and Booksellers began the issue in Prague in December last of Knihkupecky oznamovatel, a fortnightly book-trade journal, edited by Jos. M. Hovorka, a well-known Bohemian writer and bookseller.

In a recent issue Mr. Hovorka prints the following statistics of the book production in Bohemia during the last fourteen years: In 1880 1126 works were printed, of which 200 were books, the remainder pamphlets, music, periodicals, and daily and weekly journals. Ten years later the number grew to 2154, of which 1499 were books and 438 periodicals. In 1893 the number of books amounted to 1517; the periodicals 507, and musical compositions 419, making a total of 2443—a remarkable showing for a country in which the freedom of the press is a mere name.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ANNISTON, FLA.—W. F. Allen has sold one-half interest in his book and stationery business to D. F. Constantine, Jr.

ASHLAND, OHIO.—D. W. Brandt has purchased Bailey's book-store.

BATH, ME.—John O. Shaw, bookseller and stationer, whose stock was recently burned out, would like to have catalogues and price-lists to aid in selecting his new stock.

BOSTON, MASS.—The receiver of D. Lothrop Company has just paid the first 25 per cent. of the claims against the company. It is reported that in time the company expects to pay every cent of its indebtedness.

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—Judgment has been rendered against Adam Becker, bookseller, for $1000.

DETROIT, MICH.—Herman Reif, the well-known bookseller and stationer, celebrated on March 3 the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of his business. The day was also the sixtieth anniversary of his birth and the fortieth anniversary of his arrival in Michigan.

MOBILE, ALA.—S. Bidgood's book and stationery store was destroyed by fire on the night of the 17th inst.

NEW YORK CITY.—Bowden & Smith have removed to 744 Broadway, where they will continue their business in second-hand books.

NEW YORK CITY.—Emile Amblard, of the firm of Amblard & Meyer Brothers, has brought suit against his partners, Louis and Paul Meyer. We understand that the action is intended rather to effect a dissolution of partnership and to obtain an accounting than to prove bad faith, as has been hinted at in certain newspaper reports. The Messrs. Meyer claim to have offered Mr. Amblard a bond, with proper securities, to pay at maturity all creditors' claims in full, provided Mr. Amblard retires from the firm.

NEW YORK CITY.—The following removals are reported to take place May 1: John Ireland, to 1192 Broadway; M. W. Jones, to 13 East 17th Street; Van Cleeve-Andrews Pub. Co., to 13 East 17th Street.

OMAHA, NEB.—Evan Wyman, bookseller, has sold out.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

DR. GEORGE SANTAYANA, of the Department of Philosophy at Harvard, is about to publish a volume of verse.

ROBERT BUCHANAN has just finished a novel, "Yorkshire working-class life, which he calls "Rachel Dene."

M. ZOLA's novel, "Lourdes," will be published serially in the New York Herald, beginning April 15 and running through the Sunday for probably three months.

A LIFE of the late Lucy Larcom is being prepared by the Rev. Dulaney Addison, of Ley, Mass., who asks for the loan of letters in possession of her friends that may be of use to him.

THE real name of Henry Seton Merriman, whose novel, "With Edged Tools," is now being published anonymously through The Cornhill Magazine, is H. S. Scott, the author of "The Lamp."

THE name of the author of "The Margrédél," which was withheld during its publication in Blackwood's and from the title page of the book, is now announced to be Storror Meldrum.

F. MARION CRAWFORD has written a novel, to be published in the Lady's Pictorial during the latter half of this year. The second in Mr. Crawford's series of novels illustrating New York life will be published in the fall and be entitled "The Ralstons."

DR. CONAN DOYLE, who is still a physician at a private hospital, has practically completed his new novel, which will be entitled "The Stark Monro." Dr. Doyle meditates publishing his long-accumulated collections of medical stories and papers in the fall. Some of them have already appeared serially in the Idler.

DAVID CHRISTIE MURRAY has nearly completed a one-volume novel, "A Capful of Nails," which deals with the life of the nail-makers, founded on fact. It will first appear in serial form. Mr. Murray is also engaged on a series of detective stories, à la "Sherlock Holmes," the first of which is shortly to be commenced in the Woman's.

PROF. E. B. POULTON, who occupies the Chair of Zoölogy at Oxford, has recently delivered courses of lectures on "Mimicry in Nature" at the Lowell Institute in Boston, at Cornell College in New York, and in a circle of other colleges. His discourses—illustrated with great artistic skill, and delivered with rare charm of manner—have created widespread enthusiasm. Prof. Poulton's theme has been admirably presented in his "Colors of Animals," the first of the International Scientific series—a title which imperfectly suggests the scope of his work.

NOTWITHSTANDING all rumors to the contrary, Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes has definitely decided that he will not give his memoirs to the public during his lifetime. In a recent conversation Dr. Holmes remarked: "I work at the pen an hour or two each day, and am making satisfactory progress. That is, I have about half completed of all I shall write. Then I will place the manuscript in the hands of my publishers, and they will keep it in their safe."

shall have passed away. My belief has always been that a man's memoirs should be distinctly posthumous, and I shall carry out that belief in my own case."

As soon as Coulson Kernahan (the author of "A Dead Man's Diary") has his volume of essays, "Sorrow and Song" (a title, by the way, used by Henry Curwen about twenty years ago for some of his "literary struggles"), out of hand, he proposes setting to work on a volume which is to bear the singular title of "Dead Faces." It is to be a "somewhat uncanny book," says the London Literary World, "and likely to be quite out of the common. A few of the studies will be entirely supposititious, but in some the reader will be brought in imagination to stand by the death-bed of real persons (Heine, the German poet, and Pranzini, the French murderer—though his death-bed was the scaffold—for instance); and from that standpoint a light will be cast as it were over their past lives, and some attempt made to lift the curtain of the future."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE CHARLES H. SERGEL CO. will shortly publish a "History of Bohemia," by R. H. Vickers.

THE biography of Sir Richard Owen, which his grandson has been writing, is to be published in England in May.

STONE & KIMBALL, of Chicago and Cambridge, have adopted the short-discount system, and will allow only 25 per cent. to the trade.

THE rumor that the publication of Heinemann & Balestier's English Library has been discontinued is officially contradicted in London.

It is estimated that in England 5,071,000 copies of books are published in a year, which are sold at a total of £760,650 or an average of three shillings a copy.

THE JEWISH PUBLICATION SOCIETY OF AMERICA (Philadelphia) will shortly bring out the third volume of Graetz's "History of the Jews," and "Papers of the Jewish Women's Congress," Chicago.

THE WASHINGTON PUB. CO., Washington, D. C., announce a book entitled "The Show at Washington," describing life at the national capital by two correspondents—L. A. Coolidge and J. B. Reynolds.

It has been decided that in 1896, 1898, and 1900 there shall be no Bampton Lectures. The reason is that the property which provides the endowment will in those years itself need the income for improvements.

WE notice that Ludwig Rosenthal, of Munich Bavaria, has for sale a good copy of the first edition (Harrisse No. 22) of Vesputius' "Mundus Novus" (circa 1502), one of the rarest early books on America, which is offered for $2500.

LONGMANS, GREEN & CO. will shortly publish the "History of Trade Unionism" upon which Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Webb have long been closely engaged. Previous work by both writers in the field of social science will make many persons look forward with especial interest to this book.

THE annual dinner of the London Booksellers' Society has been fixed to take place on April 14 at the Holborn Restaurant. The Lord Mayor has intimated his intention of being present on the occasion and taking the chair, and he is to be supported by several authors of note and many leading publishers.

THE COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS' CLUB will give a smoker on the evening of the 27th inst., to which every one who wishes may go. No invitation is needed—use Mr. Knott's name and it will be "O. K." The club has suspended its initiation fee for the present, with the result that 200 solid men have joined the club since the first of the year.

CHARLES MITCHELL, the pugilist, alleges that the book published by Dick & Fitzgerald, entitled "Manual of Boxing, by Charley Mitchell," has been placed on the market wholly without his assistance, knowledge, or consent. His lawyer, Louis J. Grant, has applied to Judge McAdam at Special Term of the Supreme Court for a temporary injunction against the further sale of the book.

H. GREVEL & CO., London, have just published "Rare Book-Plates (Ex libris) of the xvth and xvith Centuries," by Albert Dürer, H. Burgmair, H. S. Beham, Virgil Solis, Jost Amman, etc., edited by Frederick Warnecke, the edition limited to one hundred copies; and they have in press, in a limited edition, "Art in Book-Plates," illustrated by forty-two original ex-libris, printed in colors in the style of the little masters of the 16th century, by Josef Sattler.

THE Numismatic and Antiquarian Society of Philadelphia has changed its headquarters to the School of Industrial Art. Prof. Fenollosa is giving the same series of lectures on Japanese art at the Pennsylvania Academy which he has been delivering in New York at the Berkeley Lyceum. The dates are March 5, 9, 12, and 16, in the afternoon. A club like the Grolier has been founded, called the Philobiblion. It will republish rare books and hold special exhibitions for bookworms and bibliomaniacs.

KING & LEONARD, Dublin, Texas, call attention to a neat compilation entitled "Citations of the Colorado Supreme and Appeal Court Reports," designed to show what cases have been mentioned in subsequent cases and to refer the practitioner and the judge to every case in which a former opinion has been cited, thus showing the present value of every decision as an authority and enabling the practitioner to present all of the authorities on any subject and the judge to ascertain readily the weight of authority. The volume is interleaved so the citations may always be kept up to date. Many commendations from important law firms have pronounced this book very useful.

DR. ISAAC K. FUNK's appeal for a new trial in his unsuccessful libel suit against the New York Evening Post has been denied at the General Term of the Supreme Court. The prevailing opinion of the court written by Presiding Justice Van Brunt and concurred in by Justice O'Brien, is that the judgment below be affirmed on the waiving by the defendant of the extra costs allowance of $750 granted by Justice Lawrence at Circuit. The only question presented to the General Term was as to the right of the appellant, Dr. Funk, to a reversal on the ground that upon the evidence and the charge of the trial judge he was entitled to a verdict for nominal damages at least.

The American Literary Gazette and Publishers' Circular.

PUBLICATION OFFICE, 28 ELM STREET (NEAR DUANE), NEW YORK.

VOL. XLV., No. 13.

NEW YORK, March 31, 1894.

WHOLE No. 1157

In Preparation for the RIALTO SERIES.

A FLOWER OF FRANCE.

A Story of Old Louisiana. By MARAH ELLIS RYAN, author of "Merze," "In Love's Domains," "Told in the Hills," "A Pagan of the Alleghanies," and "Squaw Elouise."

"A Flower of France," Marah Ellis Ryan's forthcoming novel, is a work of extreme and well-sustained interest. The old days of Spanish and French occupation of Louisiana are portrayed with the irresistible vigor distinctive of this author. Based on a foundation of revolution and murder a tender love-story is reared, characterized by a charming delicacy of touch and warmth of coloring, and saturated with the spirit of a romantic past.

THE TWO-LEGGED WOLF.

From the Russian of N. N. KARAZIN. Illustrated by the author. A romance of modern Russian military life. Nature and man, war and peace, are treated with the vivid realism characteristic of the best Slavonic literature of to-day. The incidents of wild adventures and hard-fought battles lose none of their interest from being founded on fact.

The Red House.

By "THE DUCHESS."

His Will and Hers.

By DORA RUSSELL.

Latest Additions to the RIALTO SERIES.

In paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

Review of the World's Religious Congresses of the World's Congress Auxiliary of the World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago, 1893. Edited, with explanatory notes, by Rev. L. P. MERCER, Member of General Committee. This is the only work published on this subject that is both suitable for popular reading and for the use of the student. Illustrated with numerous portraits.

Michael's Crag.

By GRANT ALLEN. A profusely illustrated edition of this popular author's last work.

"Exceptionally fascinating reading." . . . The silhouette illustrations "are remarkably vivid as to become unique."—Boston Ideas.

"An admirable story."—N. Y. Recorder.

Memoirs of a Physician.

By ALEXANDER DUMAS.

Joseph Balsamo.

By ALEXANDER DUMAS. These translations of these famous works are exceptionally vivid and true to the original text, and retain in a marked degree the charming literary style of the author.

The Heir of Redclyffe.

By CHARLOTTE M. YONGE. This volume is a carefully revised edition of the author's most charming work. The many illustrations by Kate Greenway are of the highest artistic merit.

Important Notice!

SALE OF THE Jones Collection of Autograph Letters, Portraits, and Views,

ON Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, April 24th, 25th, and 26th, 1894, at 2:30 in the Afternoon and 8 o'clock in the Evening, will take place at the Autograph Book Auction Rooms of Thomas Birch's Sons, 1110 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa., under the management of STAN V. HENKELS, Auctioneer. This valuable and extraordinary collection of Autograph Letters, Engraved Portraits and Views, was formed by the late

COL. CHAS. COLCOCK JONES, LL.D., Historian of Georgia, and embraces a set of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence, including the rare names of Button Gwinnett and Thos. Lynch, Jr., the series of the Members of the Continental Congress, Presidents of the Continental Congress, Presidents and Vice-Presidents of the United States, Rulers and Governors of Georgia, Chief Justices, Associate Justices, and Attorneys-General of the United States, Generals in the Revolutionary War, and many interesting letters of other eminent personages, both American and foreign.

The collection of Engraved Portraits and Views of New York, Boston, St. Louis, Baltimore, Niagara Falls, Mount Vernon, and other interesting localities throughout the United States, is the most important that has ever come under our observation, whilst the Broad-sides contain many that relate to the Revolution, and which are of the utmost rarity.

In the Collection will also be found many scarce maps, as well as quite a long list of Georgia and South Carolina Continental Paper Money, containing many rare varieties.

The Catalogue enumerates so many important items, that it would be impossible for us to draw special attention to them singly. We have therefore added an Index, and a glance at it will more readily convey an idea of the character of the whole.

A handsome illustrated Catalogue can be procured by sending 10 cents for postage, with name and address, to STAN V. HENKELS, 1110 CHESTNUT ST., PHILADELPHIA, or to

JOS. F. SABIN, 80 NASSAU ST., NEW YORK,

Pearl Dishbrowe tells Sabrina Eastwood, an heiress of a cherished plan to help people, which, however, lack of means prevents her from carrying out. Sabrina becoming enthusiastic over Pearl's idea, furnishes not only the means, but a grand old house for the furtherance of the scheme, which, in accordance with Pearl's fancy, is called "In the king's country." The story tells how Sabrina and Pearl co-operated in their work, what came of it, and finally gives a romantic incident in the life of the heroine.

Edwinson, G: The electrician at home: with diagrams and explanatory sketches. ed. by Francis Chilton-Young. N. Y., Ward, Lock & Bowden, Ltd., 1894. 126 p. 8°, cl., 40 c. [964]

V. 1 contains the introductions to the Old Testament; v. 2, to the New Testament. These introductions form part of the large eight-volume Bible commentary, of which Bishop Ellicott was editor. They are reprinted in this shape, that they may more easily come within the reach of young divinity students. The introductions are well up to date, and cover all the books of the Bible, and are written by men of very wide knowledge and fame.

Farjeon, B. L. A fair Jewess. N. Y., The Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 4+896 p. D. cl., $1. [966]

A young woman who had been betrayed and deserted is found starving, with a babe of a few days, by a poor but warm-hearted doctor, in a London lodging-house. She is induced, through certain reasons to give up her child, marry a rich man, and go out with him to Australia. The child is amply provided for, and becomes the daughter of a Jewish family named Cohen. They give her a parents' love and tenderness, and raise her in their faith, though she is a Christian. The power of heredity is shown in her subsequent career. In the character of her supposed father, Aaron Cohen, a very noble and honorable type of Jew is represented.

Foster, R. F. Foster's duplicate whist: a complete system of instruction in whist strategy. N. Y., Brentano's, [1894.] 7-245 p. S. cl., $1.25. (Corr. price.) [967]

Fowler, Frank. Portrait and figure painting; with three col. pl. showing progressive stages in oil painting. N. Y., The Cassell Pub. Co., [1894.] 3+68 p. O. (The Art Amateur handbooks ser.) cl., $2.50. [968]

Garrigues, H. J., M.D. A text-book of the diseases of women. Phil., W. B. Saunders, 1894. c. 3+690 p. il. col. pl. O. cl., net, $4; slip, net, $5. [969]

An exhaustive book on the diseases of women other than those covered by the special science of obstetrics. It is wholly practical, avoiding theoretical discussions and treating the pathology very briefly. Anatomy is treated discursively, because the text books as yet have not satisfactorily described this branch except in the science of gynecology, and most of the large encyclopedic works are beyond the reach of the general practitioners and students for whom this work is specially intended. The chief object has been to give models of treatment as practised in America. Many of the illustrations come from the writer's own operations, dissections, and microscopical examinations. Dr. Garrigues is by birth a Dane. He is Prof. of Obstetrics in the New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital, and holds many other highly responsible posts as consulting obstetrician.

Gilman, E. W., D.D. Living though once dead. N. Y., T. Whittaker, 1894. 17 p. D. pap., 10 c. [970]

An Easter sermon.

Gray, Maxwell, [pseud. for M. G. Tuttle.] A costly freak. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 2+298 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 137.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c. [971]

The scene is an English country parish, in which a young athletic, worldly, good natured rector is trying to please his patrons by introducing ritualism. The hero of the book is the old, low church, spiritual man, who has spent his days as curate-in-charge. Given for a new article of chancel furniture disappear, and circumstantial evidence is puzzling for many months. The curate's wife and daughter and the rector's young girl cousin are remarkably well-drawn characters.

Griffis, W. Elhot. Brave little Holland, and what she taught us. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 6+252 p. il. D. cl., $1.25. Same, 16*, (Riverside lib. for young people.) cl., 75 c. [972]

Three visits to the Netherlands, and a careful study of Dutch historians and also of Dutch-American archives were the preparations made for writing this history of Holland. Its chief aim is to show the influence which that country exerted upon the Colonial, Revolutionary and constitutional founders of American order and liberty. The language is simple, and the narrative within the comprehension of young readers.

Hall, C. Cuthbert, D.D. Does God send trouble? An earnest effort to discern between true Christian tradition and Christian truth. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 4+98 p. D. cl., $1. [973]

Dr. Hall dedicates this volume "to all who sorrow over the sorrows of humanity." Its five chapters treat "The problem of Consolation," "The relation of God to natural law, to chastisement, and to discipline," "The historic atonement and the punishment of sin," "The will of God and the tendency of nature," and "The duty, the comfort and the power of prayer." The tone is inspiring and the style attractive.

Herron, G. D., D.D. The Christian society. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., 1894. c. 4+158 p. D. cl., $1. [974]

Five lectures delivered before the students of Michigan University, Ann Arbor, at Princeton, N. J., at the Union Theological Seminary, New York City, and at other universities. Their subjects are 1. The scientific ground of a Christian sociology. 2. The Christian constitution of society. 3. The gospel of Jesus to the poor. 4. The message of Jesus to men of wealth. 5. The political economy of the Lord's prayer.

Higginson, Mrs. S. J. The Bedouin girl. N. Y., J. Selwin Tait & Sons, 1894. c. 3+347 p. il. D. cl., $1.25. [975]

The Haj caravan had just started on its annual pilgrimage from Bagdad to Mecca, when Obeyd Alee, a young Turkish official, travelling as the guest of the prince in command of the caravan, was surprised at an untimely hour, by the sudden entrance into his tent of a beautiful Bedouin girl, who was flying from an Arab sheikh, who would forcibly make her his wife. Obeyd rescues Feydeh, as the girl is called, places her under the protection of a good man, who educates her. Feydeh becomes a beautiful woman, and loves her first benefactor. Her story is one of love, jealousy, and intrigue, with scenes from eastern life, as the women of the Orient know it at present.

Hinkley, Willard H. The book of Daniel; its prophetic character and spiritual meaning. Bost., Massachusetts New-Church Union, 16 Arlington St., 1894. 2-192 p. D. cl., $1.25. [976]

By the pastor of the church of the New Jerusalem, Brookline, Mass.

Lee, Mary Holland, Margaret Salisbury. Bost., Arena Pub. Co., 1894. c. 6+249 p. D. pap., 50 c.; cl., $1.25. [981]

Margaret Salisbury, an orphan, and the ward of a wealthy southerner, only awakens to the consciousness of the psychic power she possesses when she decides to visit a friend in New England. While staying in the vicinity of Rockport, a Miss Appleton from Boston, sees ing that she can make Margaret subservient to her by exercising hypnotic influence, brings her power to bear on the girl. The results of her machinations are seen not only in the life of Margaret but in the life of the hero.

Lyttelton, Arthur Temple. College and university sermons. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 337 p. 8°, cl., $1.75. [982]

McCarthy, Eugene. The leaping ouananiche: what it is, where, when, and how to catch it. N. Y., Forest and Stream Pub. Co., 1894. c. 4-65 p. il. O. pap., 50 c. [983]

The word "ouananiche" is a new one but recently in use among anglers, as it represents a new member of the salmon family, found in a new section of country (Lake St. John and its tributaries in the province of Quebec), and is a fish but little known, even at present. This is a handbook telling about the modes and merits, the charms and rewards of ouananiche fishing, with specific information concerning the fish, and definite instructions in the art of its enticement.

Matteson, Andre. The principles of self-government applied to townships, cities and villages. Chic., The Legal Adviser Pub. Co., 1893. c. 48 p. D. flex. cl., 30 c. [984]

Bost., Ginn & Co., 1894. 16+212 p. D. (International modern language ser.) cl., 85 c. [985]

Miller, Mrs. Harriet Mann. (Olive Thorne Miller.) A bird-lover in the west. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 4+278 p. D. cl., $1.25. [986]

These studies were all made, as the title indicates, in the west: part of them in Colorado (1891), in Utah (1892), and the remainder (1892) in what the writer calls "the middle country," being southern Ohio and west only relatively to New England and New York. They give most interesting sketches with many details of the birds of these regions, their habits, appearance, etc.

Murray, Rev. Andrew. Be perfect! A message from the father in heaven to his children on earth: meditations for a month. Author's ed. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1894.] 2-156 p. 8. cl., 75 c. [987]

A Bible text is given for each day of a month in which the word "perfect" occurs, a short exposition of its meaning following.

Weitzel, Mrs. S. W., ["Sophie Winthrop," pseud.] From time to time: a book of verse. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1894.] c. '92. 64 p. D. pap., 40 c. [1001
These poems were mostly contributed to The Outlook. They have been brought together in the present form by Mrs. Weitzel's husband, as a memorial of a woman of rare gifts and character. The Outlook says: "Mrs. Weitzel was one of those whose thought found its value in its fidelity to life, and it would be difficult to find any piece of verse from her pen which does not in one way or another touch upon the deeper experiences of humanity. Pure thought, high aspiration, and a considerable gift for musical expression characterize this memorial volume, of which the best thing that can be said is that it not inadequately expresses the spirit and the life of its author."

(See "Description.")

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 31, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE SPRING OUTLOOK.

ALTHOUGH business is wearily slow in picking up, yet it is moving, with a favorable turn toward confidence and an enlarged demand for goods to meet the requirements of the people whose needs are beginning to make themselves felt. In brief, the conviction that the country has "turned the corner," in a business sense, is gaining ground, and the prospect is decidedly brightening. Though the spring and summer may bring with them but doubtful proof of this, hopes are generally entertained that by fall business may put itself into something like normal condition.

As it is, the book trade through all the panic has suffered less than almost any other branch of trade from which we have had reports. Publishing activity during the past six months, or, more strictly speaking, up to within two months, has been without abatement; if anything, it has been a trifle more than normal. Since the beginning of February there has been a tendency to put on the brakes, which can but be considered a healthy sign.

We think there has been decidedly too much unhealthy activity in the publishing world here as well as abroad. A few weeks ago we gave a glimpse of the conditions of the book trade and literature in France. They are not much better in England, nor anywhere else, excepting possibly in Germany, where a rigid trade organization, and more conservative and scientific publishing methods, generally, tend to preserve the equilibrium.

The tendency of modern publishing, as in other trades, has been towards over-production, without regard to the capacity for consumption. This has brought about a congestion that has entailed unnumbered hardships upon the bookseller, has rendered the public apathetic, and is beginning to react on the publisher. So, for instance, during the past season the publishers have had no trouble in disposing of the new books—the fads of the hour—while their best books of previous seasons rested idly in their bins. There is no overlooking the fact that books require leisure to read, and that the publisher who markets a few books well will in the end fare better than the one who indifferently tumbles many into the market.

As will be seen in the classified lists and descriptive summary, as well as in the advertising pages of this Spring Announcement number, a famine of books is by no means impending. Almost the usual quantity is in preparation, and a careful reading of the list leads to the conclusion that the quality is fully up, if not beyond, last year's standard, which had already improved on that of former years. Juvenile literature, which swells the quantity of publications during the year most noticeably, takes no place in Spring Announcements, and almost all dainty books and holiday literature are as yet unnamed volumes. Biography, history, education, political and social science, and, of course, fiction, will have many additions of notable quality. Several valuable works of reference and solid books of science will also encourage the bookseller to invest his capital profitably. The advertising compares even more favorably than last year with the announcements, and makes one of the most representative lists of the publishers preparing new books that we have had for several seasons. It is fair to say that the unrepresented publishers, with but one or two exceptions, have really decided to wait for more propitious times before incurring new expenses.

It has been suggested by a number of dealers that those answering wants in our "Books Wanted" column use, as often as possible postal-cards of a uniform size, the one now manufactured by the government ($3\frac{1}{2} \times 5\frac{1}{2}$ in.) being in most cases ample for a considerable number of titles. When the bids take up more room than a postal-card affords, they should be written on half-note paper and folded to the size of a No. 6 envelope and endorsed with name of sender. Such bids could be more easily filed away for future reference than the varying ones now received written on letter and half-note paper and the three sizes of postal-cards which will probably be current for some time to come. It has also been suggested that if a uniform code of signs—such as n for new, g for good, w for worn, p for poor condition—were adopted much space and time could be saved in describing the books offered. The following sample is offered: a a standard to be adopted, whether the bid is made by postal-card or slips of the size of a postal-card:

n, new ; g, good ; w, worn ; p, in poor condition.

ANOTHER ORIGINAL EDITION OF POE'S "TAMERLANE."

THE American Press Company, of Baltimore, has made a remarkable literary "find." It is a copy of the exceedingly scarce original edition of Edgar Allan Poe's first volume of poetry, entitled "Tamerlane and Other Poems." Until the spring of 1892 only one copy was known to be in existence, and that was the imperfect one in the British Museum. In April, 1892, C. F. Libbie & Co., of Boston, at an exciting auction sale, sold to Dodd, Mead & Co. a perfect copy of this rare book for $1850. Dodd, Mead & Co. sold the book for $2500 to a private buyer, who sent it to Paris to have it bound at a cost, we believe, of $300.

The copy just discovered by the American Press Company, of which Mr. Eugene L. Didier, author of a life of Poe, is the leading spirit, was picked up in a second-hand book-store in Boston over sixty years ago, and has remained in the possession of the then purchaser ever since. It is in an excellent state of preservation, and is worth its weight in gold ten times over. The book is a sixteenmo of 40 pages (about 4½ x 7½ inches) and has the following title:

TAMERLANE AND OTHER POEMS.
By a BOSTONIAN.

"Young heads are giddy, and young hearts are warm,
And make mistakes for manhood to reform."—COWPER.

BOSTON:
CALVIN F. S. THOMAS, PRINTER.
1827.

Collectors have an opportunity to secure this literary treasure for $1625 before it is put on the market. After that the price will be raised several hundred dollars.

AN ENGLISH SOCIETY OF ILLUSTRATORS.

A SOCIETY of illustrators has just been organized in London. The wonder is, says a writer in the New York Post, "that one was not instituted sooner, for the close competition in English illustrated journalism and the prevailing standard, which is the outcome of the average English editor's preference for cheapness, made such an association eminently desirable some years past. The object of the society is to accomplish for illustrators what the Society of Authors is supposed to do for writers, i. e. to protect their interests and defend their rights, lending them the strength that always comes from union. All the most distinguished black and white men in the country have already joined it, and as it is hoped to give the organization something of an international character, it ought to appeal to Americans as well as to Englishmen. The main objects are reduced to three heads. First, there is to be an endeavor to secure the making of contracts and agreements between editors and illustrators, such as are made between editors and authors, and to give the illustrator some share of responsibility in the reproduction of his work. Secondly, there is to be an effort to amend and perfect the present artistic law of copyright, which is still in the haziest and vaguest condition, and thus to place some restriction upon the indiscriminate use of clichés. Third, to take in hand the publication of illustrated catalogues of current exhibitions in order to do away with some of the abuses which the artist suffers under the present system. And, fourth, to hold occasional shows of drawings of the great illustrators, and generally, by such reminders of what good work can be done, to raise the art to the dignity it once enjoyed. Surely, these are legitimate and important ends with which every intelligent editor and publisher as well as artist, must be in sympathy."

DESCRIPTIVE SUMMARY OF THE SPRING ANNOUNCEMENT.

THE descriptive summary which here follows presents as usual, in its alphabetical arrangement by publishers, a survey of the entire field, so far as the necessary information is at hand. Other books, not yet fully determined upon, will find mention in subsequent issues. In our announcement lists proper, the books will be found arranged by classes, while the advertising pages will afford further detailed information as to prices, sizes, styles, etc.

THE AMERICAN BOOK CO.'s spring announcements will be found under the heading Education, Language, etc., in the classified list preceding this department.

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY have in preparation "Assyrian Echoes of the Word," by Rev. Thomas Laurie, who tells in interesting fashion of the progress that has been made in the field of Assyrian archæology and the results obtained; he aims to show that many of the royal inscriptions and many of the incidents of daily life recorded on the Assyrian tablets illustrate and confirm the records of Scripture, and are thus "echoes of the word." They also announce "The Starry Skies," a popular account of the wonders of astronomy, by Agnes Giberne, written for young people and intended as a companion volume to the same writer's "Sun, Moon, and Stars" and "Among the Stars;" "Rachel's Farm," a breezy country story for boys and girls, by Annette L. Noble; and a dainty little booklet by Mrs. George A. Paull, called "Consolation for Mothers with Empty Arms." The revised and enlarged edition of "American Heroes on Mission Fields," announced last year, will be brought out this spring. The society has recently begun the publication of a series of paper-covered religious stories, sold at four cents each; the series is entitled Books for Everybody. This house, after having been established for sixty-nine years—or since its organization in 1825—at 150 Nassau St., New York, has recently removed to 10 E. 23d St., directly opposite Madison Square.

D. APPLETON & CO. have several valuable historical works, either just ready or almost ready to be issued, among the most notable of which are "Memoirs of the Baron de Meneval, Private Secretary of Napoleon I.," a man of the pen, not of the sword, but who came so closely in contact with Napoleon to the close of 1815 that he is able to shed new light on many features of the Napoleonic campaigns. It is the grandson of the Baron de Meneval whose privilege it has been at last to present to the world these fascinating pictures of Napoleon's daily life. The manuscript memoirs left by his ancestor have been intelligently prepared for the press, and the publication, awaited with deep interest by those who have learned of the existence of this work, is now close at hand. It will be published in three volumes with portraits. The second volume of Mr. Edgar Stanton Maclay's "History of the United States Navy" will close the War of 1812, describe the various incidents of consequence in our naval records down to 1861, present a full naval history of the Civil War, and describe the building up of the new navy; and special events, like the disaster at Samoa, and, more recently, the part taken by the navy in Brazil. In his study of naval actions in the Civil War the author has been aided by Admiral Jouett, and other officers who shared in the actions described. "General Washington," the new volume in the Great Commanders series, is by General Bradley T. Johnson, a Virginian, who will be found a most competent biographer and well-equipped critic in dealing with Washington on the military side, while his comprehension of Washington's personality sheds much light on the understanding of his hero as a man. In fiction the announcements are very interesting. There will be a new novel by the author of "Dodo," of which the title is not yet made public; "A Daughter of To-Day," by Mrs. Everard Cotes, who as Sara Jeannette Duncan has secured herself a waiting audience; "Cleopatra," the novel of Egyptian life on which Dr. Georg Ebers has been engaged for many years, a modest self-distrust having held him back until he had mastered his theme and reached the full development of his powers; "The Trail of the Sword" and "The Trespasser," by Gilbert Parker, a story now running in Lippincott's; "Red Diamonds," by Justin McCarthy; "Outlaw and Lawmaker," by Mrs. Campbell-Præd; "Dust and Laurels," by Mary F. Prenderel; "A Beginner," by Rhoda Broughton; and "A Yellow Aster," the successful English story written under the pseudonym of "Iota" by Mrs. Caffyn. Among the further announcements we briefly note a new edition, thoroughly revised, of Smith's "Classical Dictionary;" "Creatures of Other Days," by the Rev. Dr. H. N. Hutchinson, author of "Extinct Monsters;" "Aërial Navigation," by J. G. W. Fijnje, translated and revised by Col. George E. Waring, Jr.; "Evolution of the Public School System in Massachusetts," by G. F. Martin; "Symbolic Education," by Susan E. Blow; and the long-expected "Life of Dr. Edward L. Youmans," by John Fiske.

A. C. ARMSTRONG & SON will bring out during the spring the seventh series of their Expositor's Bible. The six volumes of this series will comprise "The Epistle to the Romans," by the Rev. H. C. G. Moule; "The Second Book of Kings," by Ven. Archdeacon Farrar; "First and Second Books of Chronicles," by Rev. Prof. Bennett; "The Book of Psalms," third and concluding volume, by Rev. Alexander Maclaren; "Second Epistle to the Corinthians," by Rev. James Denny; and "The Book of Numbers," by Rev. R. A. Watson. They have just ready the first five volumes of a most useful series of Bible Class Expositions, by Rev. Dr. Alexander Maclaren, specially designed for Sunday-schools and Bible classes, and consisting of expositions of the International Sunday-School Lessons, grouped under the books of Scripture to which they relate. The present series comprises "The Gospel of St. Matthew," in two volumes, "The Gospel of St. Mark," "The Gospel of St. Luke," and "The Gospel of St. John;" they should prove admirable not only for Sunday-school teachers and superintendents, but for private reading and as a commentary on the portions of Scripture treated.

ARNOLD & CO. announce that they have purchased the plates of William Hardcastle Browne's "Bible Heroes," and are now making a new edition of the book, which will be brought out in improved form. They are also preparing a new edition, from type, of John Crombie Brown's "Ethics of George Elliot's Works," which has been out of print for about two years.

THE BAKER & TAYLOR CO. will publish in April "With the Wild Flowers," a "rural chronicle of our flower friends and foes," by E. M. Hardinge, who describes in a delightfully simple and chatty manner the flowers of each season of the year, carrying the reader "through the spring, summer, and autumn, from pussy-willows to thistle-down;" "The Amateur Aquarist," by Mark Samuel, the aquarist of Columbia College, a capital manual, full of useful information for any one starting or possessing an amateur aquarium, and containing complete instructions as to management and details of care; and "Christianity Practically Applied," the report of the Proceedings of the Evangelical Alliance of the United States, held at Chicago in 1893, to be issued in two volumes. One volume will be devoted to the doings of the General Conference, the other to the Sectional Conference, and together they will form an admirable exposition of contemporary methods in this field of religious work. This house has just issued "The Friendship of Jesus," an Easter booklet, by Rev. Frank Samuel Child.

BAKER, VOORHIS & CO. will have several important books in their special field, full titles of which will be found elsewhere in this issue, under the heading Law.

BENZIGER BROS. will shortly publish "The Data of Modern Ethics Examined," by Rev. John J. Ming, S. J., of Canisius College, and "The Means of Grace," a popular exposition of the sacraments, the sacramentals of the church, and of prayer, adapted from the German of Rev. Herman Rolfus and Rev. F. J. Brändle, by Rev. Richard Breman, LL.D.

ROBERT BONNER'S SONS announce three new novels: "A Princess of the Stage," a romantic love-story, from the German of Nataly von Eschstruth, telling of the transformation of a hoydenish little country girl into an elegant young lady; "Countess Obernau," an adaptation from the German, by Julien Gordon; and "The Gun-Bearer," a story of the great rebellion, by E. A. Robinson.

BRENTANO'S have three new books on whist: "Duplicate Whist and Whist Strategy" and "American Leads and How to Lead Them," both by R. F. Foster, and both exhaustively treating the specialties of their subject, bound prettily in appropriate board covers, uniform with the author's former "Whist Manual;" and "Modern Scientific Whist," by C. D. P. Hamilton, a digest by a practical whist player, that will be appreciated by beginners for its simplicity and clearness, and by an expert for its comprehensiveness; beautifully printed in red and black, with upwards of 500 illustrations. Brentano's also announce "The Epicurean," a complete encyclopedia of the culinary art, by Charles Ranhofer, the chef at Delmonico's, New York City.

THE BURROWS BROTHERS CO. have in press for early publication a new limited edition of the famous "Lincoln and Douglas Debates" of the Illinois campaign of '58. The volume will also include the speeches made by Lincoln and Douglas before the debates at Chicago, Springfield, and elsewhere, as well as the two great speeches made by Lincoln in Ohio in 1855. The edition, which will be limited to 750 each of copies, will be printed from type at the University Press, Cambridge, on fine laid paper; the volumes will be royal octavo, bound in brown. This publication will be especially welcome, as the original (1860) edition of the "Debates" is now so scarce that the book is almost unobtainable.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING CO. announce "The Life and Later Speeches of Chauncy E. Depew," to be issued in a regular edition and an autograph édition de luxe, limited to one hundred numbered copies, signed by the author. "The Story of Our Planet," an important work by Prof. T. G. Bonney, of the London University College, fully illustrated and supplied with maps and six colored plates; "Portrait and Figure Painting," a thorough exposition of the fundamentals of the subject, by Frank Fowler; and two valuable contributions to Biblical literature—"New Light on the Bible and the Holy Land," an account of some recent discoveries in the East, by Basil T. A. Evetts, formerly of the Assyrian Department of the British Museum, and "Pico Introductions to Books of the Bible," in two volumes, covering the Old and New Testaments. A number of new novels are in preparation, they comprise: "Broken Links," a love-story by Mrs. Alexander; "The Awkward Squad, and other stories," by Shan F. Bullock; "A Fair Jew," by B. L. Farjeon; "The Iron Pirate," a stirring sea story, by Max Pemberton; "The Man's Black," by Stanley Weyman; "The Romance of a Transport," by W. Clark Russell; "The Story of a Modern Woman," by Ella Hepworth Dixie; and "Young Sam and Sabina," by "Tom Cableigh." "Cassell's Complete Pocket Guide to Europe" will be brought out in an edition for 1894, revised up to date.

ROBERT CLARKE & CO. have in preparation "Recollections of Life in Ohio from 1815 to 1840," by William Cooper Howells, father of William Dean Howells, who furnishes an introduction. Although primarily personal memoirs, Mr. Howells' recollections relate to a most interesting period in the history of the state, and narrating, as they do, the experiences of a family of Quakers, transplanted from the English border of Wales and confronted with all the northern hardships of the backwoods, they cast considerable light on the picturesque, if uncomfortable, conditions of "settlement" life at the close of the pioneer epoch. The book will be issued in a limited edition. They also announce "Queen Maat and the Egyptian Sphinx," by the archaeologist and Egyptologist, Dr. Augustus Le Plongeon, a careful collection of evidence tending to show that traces of the civilization and science of the ancient Mayas of Central America are to be found in India, Egypt, and other distant regions; "Judaism at the World's Parliament of Religions," containing the papers read at the Jewish Denominational Congress, the Jewish Women's Congress, the Jewish Presentation at the Parliament and the Parliament proper, covering the latest phases of Jewish thought and forming a valuable contribution to Jewish literature in this country; and a reprint, in a limited edition, of J. Ralston Skinner's "Source of Measures," a curious treatise on the origin of the British inch and the ancient cubit. This book, first published in 1875, has for some years been out of print; the new edition will include a supplement of sixty-three pages to the original work, printed in 1876 by Mr. Skinner, for private distribution.

W. B. CONKEY CO., Chicago, have devoted themselves most successfully to the manufacture of books that are to perpetuate the memories of the great Columbian Exposition. They are to bring out the official edition of "The Congress of Women Held at the Woman's Building, World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago, 1893," illustrated with numerous portraits, which will give the biographies, addresses, and other matters of interest prepared under the judicious editorship of Mary Kavanaugh Oldham Eagle, Chairman of the Committee on Congresses of the Board of Lady Managers; and "The Photographic World's Fair and Midway Plaisance," with 217 magnificent illustrations, in which every detail of the great enterprise can be followed and enjoyed. They have already issued "The World's Parliament of Religions."

COPELAND & DAY have from the start issued books which in typographical details and the minutiae of manufacture have maintained an admirable standard. One of their handsomest new publications will be a series of designs by Walter Crane, illustrating Shakespeare's "Tempest," printed on Japanese silk paper; mounted on cardboard, and issued in a portfolio, each set signed by Mr. Crane; of this only two hundred copies have been made for America. Oscar Wilde's one-act tragedy, "Salome," has been translated by the author from his French version, recently issued in Paris, and will be brought out in a limited edition, with a cover-design and ten full-page illustrations by Aubrey Beardsley. They will also have a volume of essays by John Davidson, entitled "A Random Itinerary with a Ballad," for which a frontispiece and title-page have been designed by Lawrence Housman; "Cuckoo Songs," by Katherine Tynan Hinkson, with cover-design and title-page by Housman; "Poems," by John B. Tabb, with cover and ornaments designed by George Edward Barton; a volume of poems by Dr. Richard Garnett, with a title and half-title, by Illingworth Kay; a third edition of Richard Le Gallienne's "English Songs;" and a third edition of Francis Thompson's "Poems," with cover-design and frontispiece by Lawrence Housman.

THE F. A. DAVIS CO. will bring out several important works, full titles of which are given under the heading Medicine, Hygiene, in the classified list, elsewhere in this issue.

DICK & FITZGERALD announce "Hyrum, the House of Wisdom, or Solomon's House," a masonic manual in the form of a narrative describing the progress of a candidate through the three masonic degrees of the blue lodge; the latest changes in masonic ritual have been accurately followed, and the book is written in symbolic masonic cipher; it is specially intended for the guidance of initiated Masons.

DODD, MEAD & CO. have several new books in preparation. "The Poets and Poetry of the Century," their encyclopædia of modern poetry "covering the area of greater Britain and the limits of the nineteenth century," is issued in eight volumes, completing the scheme of the work from George Crabbe to Rudyard Kipling. This cyclopædia is edited by Alfred H. Miles, and the plan is to represent each poet in his variety, giving such biographical details as will illustrate the verse, and supplying a critical summary of each writer's work. The critical and biographical notices are by foremost writers, such as Dr. Furnival, Austin Dobson, J. Addington Symonds, Robert Bridges, and others, and the work bids fair to be a most voluminous and important anthology. "The Journal of Martha Pintard Bayard" will be interesting to lovers of biography and history. It is edited by S. Bayard Dod, and will be issued in an attractive little sixteenmo volume. Mrs. Bayard's journal covers the period from 1794 to 1797, and is an excellent picture of London life at that time. She was the wife of Samuel Bayard, who was appointed by Washington agent of the United States in the British Admiralty courts under the Jay treaty, and consequently was brought in intimate contact with many of the foremost statesmen—American and English—of her time; the pages of her journal bristle with notable names, whose owners are described with lucidity and force. They also announce "Courage" (Vaillance), a new book by Charles Wagner, author of "Youth," who treats in his earnest and enthusiastic style of the attributes that go to make up the quality of courage; "Intentions," Oscar Wilde's little volume of essays, is to be brought out in a new cheaper edition; and there will be a handsome large-paper edition of Dobson's "Proverbs in Porcelain," illustrated by Bernard Partridge, with impressions of the illustrations on India paper, beautifully printed and bound. In fiction there will be "Bogland Studies," Jane Barlow's charming pictures of Irish life, brought out in a new revised edition, uniform with her "Irish Idylls;" "Links in a Chain," a novel by Margaret Sutton Briscoe, and "The Lone House," a new story from the pen of Mrs. Barr; while the many young girls who have followed Miss Finley's "Mildred" through half a dozen volumes of varied experiences will welcome the seventh volume in the Mildred Series, to be called "Mildred's New Daughter." A work deserving special mention will be Charles A. Hildeburn's "Bibliography of New York Imprints," uniform with his "Pennsylvania Imprints," of which only 350 copies will be issued, and which will be invaluable to collectors of America.

WILLIAM DOXEY, San Francisco, will publish "Doxey's Guide to San Francisco and Surroundings, and to the Pleasure and Health Resorts of California," by Arthur H. Barendt, a careful and comprehensive account of the history, characteristics and chief points of interest of San Francisco and of the most attractive regions of California and Southern California, which should be specially useful to intending tourists.

E. P. DUTTON & CO. announce a revised edition, with all the notes, of Archdeacon Farrar's "Life of Christ," in which the author says in his preface: "I have done my best to improve and amend this edition in many ways, and have added not a few points of interest." The balance of the former edition without the notes will be reduced after the new edition is on the market. George H. Hepworth's two little books, "Hiram Goli's Religion" and "They Met in Heaven," are selling briskly, and booksellers may be sure they can sell these books if they will only show them and suggest their drift to customers. The Preachers of the Age series has now grown to eighteen volumes, all of which are published in uniform 12mos with photogravure portraits.

JAMES H. EARLE, Boston, has in preparation a volume containing the reports, papers and proceedings of the "International Congress of Sunday Rest," one of the Chicago World's Congresses, held in the interest of establishing a common basis toward a "world's rest day," and attended by representatives of the Protestant, Catholic, and Jewish faiths, as well as by leading workers in many fields of labor. He also announces "A Promise Fulfilled," a volume of autobiographical reminiscences, by the evangelist A. B. Earle; "A Brand from the Burning," a collection of sermons by W. A. Dunnett, the "singing evangelist," "From Shadow to Sunlight," a volume of twenty-two short stories by "Mizpah"; "Counter-currents," by Rev. Dr. Williams; "Chords of light," a year-book compiled by Effie E. Blodgett, containing daily selections of poetry and Bible verses for a year, and "Success and Its Achievers," an account of the lives of some successful men, by William W. Thayer, to be added to the Log Cabin Series.

GEORGE H. ELLIS has three books by Protap Chunder Mozoomdar, entitled "The Spirit of God;" "Heart Beats," a book of meditations, with portrait and biographical sketch of the author; and a new edition of "The Oriental Christ," all three books that cannot fail to give readers of whatever religious conviction a deep insight into the real meaning of religion as sense of duty, love and service.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY will shortly publish "Isabella of Castile," by Gen. O. O. Howard, who writes interestingly of the life and times of the Spanish queen; "John Brown and His Men," by Col. R. J. Hinton; and "Five-Minute Object Sermons for Children," preached before the main sermon on Sunday mornings, by Rev. Sylvanus Stall. Three of Charles Barnard's pleasant and useful books on gardening, farm management, and elementary agriculture, will be reissued early in April; they are "Talks About the Soil in its Relations to Plants and Business," "Talks About Our Useful Plants," and "Talks About the Weather."

GINN & Co. will shortly publish the "Biological Lectures" delivered during 1893 at the Marine Biological Laboratory at Wood's Holl by eminent investigators, which cover the latest developments in the field of biology, also an exposition of "The Technique of Sculpture," by William Ordway Partridge. They announce for publication during the spring a number of important educational works titles of which will be found in the classified list preceding this department, under the heading Education, Language, etc.

FRANCIS P. HARPER, New York, will issue early in April John Hennege Jesse's "Memoirs of King Richard the Third and Some of His Contemporaries," to be brought out in a handsome two-volume edition, containing the full text of the rare original. He has also in preparation a complete and thoroughly revised edition of Major Zebulon M. Pike's "Expeditions and Discoveries through the West and Southwest, during the years 1804-1806-1807," carefully edited by Dr. Elliott Coues, to be issued uniform in style with the recent Coues' edition of Lewis and Clark's Expedition, which has met with prompt and deserved success.

HARPER & BROTHERS have in preparation a goodly array of books, to be published during the spring and early summer. The third volume of George William Curtis' "Orations and Addresses," edited by Professor Norton, is now in press; it will comprise the "Historical and Memorial Addresses," among which are some of Mr. Curtis' most memorable utterances, and will contain a fine photogravure portrait, and the fourth volume of the illustrated edition of J. R. Green's "Short History of the English People" will complete one of the most remarkable pieces of book-making of the past few years. From an anonymous writer will come "The Jewish Question and the Mission of the Jews," a thoughtful contribution to one of the most interesting questions of the day; the unknown author studies the Jew as a type, as an influence and as a "problem" of growing importance in the history of civilization, and pleads not only for tolerance, but for fraternity and for the securing of a wider liberty of thought and action to the Hebrew race. "Portraits in Plaster, from the Collection of Laurence Hutton," will be the title of a little volume describing Mr. Hutton's fine collection of the death-masks of famous men, illustrated with reproductions of some of the more remarkable of the masks. There will also be two capital books of description—"Our English Cousins," by Richard Harting Davis, and "The Wee Ones of Japan," by Mae St. John Bramhall. In the first are gathered the graphic papers on English life which appeared during the past year in Harper's Magazine; in the second Mrs. Bramhall tells how the Japanese baby looks, acts, is cared for, disciplined and amused; she has a fresh and sympathetic feeling for the "wee ones" she describes, which gives a special charm to the book, and the many excellent illustrations by C. D. Weldon add not a little to its interest. For the young housekeeper—and for her older sisters as well—there will be a most useful little manual called "The Expert Waitress," in which Anne Frances Springstead describes the duties of a skilled waitress and gives many helpful hints as to the care of dining-room and pantry, the best ways of caring for silver, lamps, etc., and the many details that go to make up good housekeeping. The fiction promised is especially attractive. There will be a new volume of short stories by Thomas Hardy, grouped under the striking title of "Life's Little Ironies;" "Cadet Days," a capital tale of West Point life by Captain Charles King, who writes con amore of the drills, the studies, and the jolly escapades at the big "military academy;" "Out of Step," a clever story of New York and Boston life, in which Maria Louise Pool traces the married life of the heroine of "The Two Salomes;" "Pembroke," Miss Wilkins' remarkable novel of New England life—said by some critics to be her finest work—which appeared as a serial in Harper's Weekly; "The Phantom of the Footbridge, and other stories" of Tennessee life, by Miss Murfree (Charles Egbert Craddock); "Pastime Stories," by Thomas Nelson Page; "Perlycross," R. D. Blackmore's long-expected novel; "An Interloper," a story of English life by that pleasant writer, Mary Frances Peard; and "For Honor and Life," by William Westall.

D. C. HEATH & Co. announce several new text-books and school manuals, full titles of which are given in the classified list in this issue under the heading Education, Language, etc.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish during the spring Duruy's "Modern History (1453-1789)," translated by Prof. Edward Grosvenor, of Amherst College, and to be issued uniform with the same writer's "Middle Ages;" also a little volume of "light reading," entitled "A Suburban Pastoral, and other stories," by Prof. Henry A. Beers, of Yale, which will be brought out in companion form to Jerome's "John Ingerfeld." Their other forthcoming books are educational, and the titles are given under the heading Education, Language, etc., in the classified list preceding this department.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co.'s spring publications may properly include some which have quite recently appeared, notably Mr. Winsor's "Cartier to Frontenac," a book of no small value in the department of geographical history, especially as it is illustrated by many maps and charts; "A Poet's Portfolio: later readings," by W. W. Story, the composite genius, who is both sculptor and litterateur, and who in this book shows to his best advantage as a writer of prose and verse; a volume of excellent short stories, named from the leading story, "In Exile," by Mrs. Mary Hallock Foote; another book of short stories by Gertrude Smith, entitled also from its initial story, "The Rousing of Mrs. Potter, and other stories," and still another of the best of Bret Harte's recent productions, "A Protégée of Jack Hamlin's, and other tales." To these should be added "A Symphony of the Spirit," containing poems of high hope and consolation, edited by Geo. S. Merriam, and, just issued, a beautiful volume by Celia Thaxter, entitled "An Island Garden," describing Miss Thaxter's quite remarkable garden at the Isles of Shoals, illustrated with colored designs by Child Hassam; "Brave Little Holland, and What She Taught Us," a book of no little value relating to the history of Holland and her contributions to American liberty and order, by Rev. W. E. Griffis; "Bayou Folk," a book of capital short stories of the Creoles and Acadians of Louisiana, by Mrs. Kate Chopin; "A Bird-Lover in the West," giving in attractive style the observations of Olive Thorne Miller on birds in Ohio, Colorado, and Utah; a book of discourses intended to give a new attractiveness to the idea of consolation by Dr. C. C. Hall, of Brooklyn, who names his volume "Does God Send Trouble?" Other books yet to appear are "Samuel Longfellow, a Memoir and Letters," in one volume, also "Sermons and Essays," by Dr. Longfellow, in another volume, both edited by Rev. Joseph May, of Philadelphia; the sixth volume of Sargent's superb work "The Silva of North America," with fifty plates in every volume; "Folk-Tales of Angola," some fifty or more stories of African folk-lore, collected by Heli Chatelain, for nine years U. S. Consul at Loanda; a volume of poems by Langdon Elwyn Mitchell; "The White Crown, and other stories," a volume of bright and readable tales by Herbert D. Ward; the fourth volume of Lieut. Fewkes' "Journal of American Ethnology and Archaeology;" a new and cheaper edition of Congressman Walker's pithy book on "Money, Trade, and Banking;" and, probably, the story "His Vanished Star," by Charles Egbert Craddock, which recently ended a prosperous serial career in the Atlantic Monthly. In the Riverside Paper series Mr. Bynner's excellent historical novel, "Zachary Philps," has just appeared, and Mrs. Burnham's "Mistress of Beech Knoll" will be added in April.

WILLIAM R. JENKINS has in preparation a work entitled "The Foot of the Horse," by David Roberge, who has been closely associated with Mr. Robert Bonner for twenty-five years in his study and practice of the art of horseshoeing. One of the most novel and interesting features of the book is the statement that lameness and all diseases of the foot are traced to an unbalanced foot bone, and Mr. Roberge declares that all lamenesses and diseases may be prevented by simply balancing the foot. The book will be fully illustrated, showing improved methods of shoeing horses, etc., and its preparation has been the life-work of the writer. This publisher will also issue several new books in his specialty of French fiction arranged for school reading; full titles of these will be found in the classified list in this issue, under the heading Education, Language, etc.

THE JEWISH PUBLICATION SOCIETY announce the third volume of Prof. H. Graetz' "History of the Jews," covering the period from the completion of the Babylonian Talmud to the banishment of the Jews from England in 1290. They will publish in April the "Papers of the Jewish Women's Congress," held at Chicago, September 4-7, 1893.

LEE & SHEPARD announce a new book by the ever-popular Amanda M. Douglas, to be called "In the King's Country;" with the sub-title "a Christian Endeavor story," which will present some helpful and interesting phases of C. E. work. To the Good Company series will be added "May Martin," "The Green Mountain Boys," "The Rangers, or, the Tory's daughter," and "Locke Amosden," all by Judge D. P. Thompson; also "The Lectures, Orations, and Letters of Wendell Phillips," in two volumes. They have in preparation part 3 of Charles F. King's "The Land We Live In," which forms the fifth book of the excellent Picturesque Geographical Readers; "The Script Primer," a series of easy reading lessons for little children by Frances E. Oliver; and a new, revised, and enlarged edition of Baron Nils Possé's "Swedish System of Educational Gymnastics."

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY announce a New Illustrated Popular Edition of Prescott's works, with Kirk's notes, to be brought out in sixteen volumes, and to contain many full-page illustrations. Their handsome edition of Thiers' "History of the Consulate and Empire of France" is nearing completion, seven volumes having been issued, with six to follow; and they have in preparation the "Memoirs of General William Nelson Pendleton, D.D.," by Susan P. Lee. Dr. Charles C. Abbott, the genial lover of nature, whose "Recent Rambles" won him many friends, will have a new book, entitled "Travels in a Tree-Top," in which he will discourse on his favorite subject with fine perception. New fiction promised during the spring includes "Burgo's Romance," by T. W. C. Speight; "The Mystery of the Patrician Club," by Albert D. Vandam; "The Queen of Love," by S. Baring-Gould; "A Man of To-Day," by Helen Mathers; and "Waring of Perli," Captain King's stirring story of army life, which originally appeared in Lippincott's Magazine. They also announce a "Dictionary of the Active Principles of Plants," by Charles E. Sohn; "Quail-tive Analysis," translated by John Marshall; and several important medical works, titles of which are given in the classified list, elsewhere in this issue, under the heading Medicine and Hygiene. A new edition of Charles and Mary Lamb's "Tales from Shakespeare" will be brought out, the two volumes being issued in one; and uniform with this will be a new edition of Harrison S. Morris' "Tales from Shakespeare," supplementing and completing the work of the Lambs. This house has just ready "Bill Nye's History of the United States," a unique contribution to American history, with all dry and undesirable husks omitted, which is capitally illustrated by F. Oppen, and is really a remarkably clever piece of fooling.

LOVELL, CORYELL & Co. announce two new books—"How Like a Woman," a novel by Florence Marryat, telling the story of a girl who defies the conventionalities of society and sets aside Mrs. Grundy's precepts to follow the instincts of her own heart; and "Mr. Bailey-Martin," a piquant picture of the modern English snob, by Percy White, a young British novelist, who portrays the weaknesses and foibles of his subject with keen satire and telling humor. They will bring out during the spring new issues of Jackson's "Bayreuth of Wagner;" Kufferath's "Parsifal of Richard Wagner," translated from the French; and George Gros-smith's humorous story of London life, "The Diary of a Nobody;" also a new edition of Geikie's "Life and Words of Christ," to be issued in attractive shape for the Easter trade.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have a long list of books in varied departments of literature, nearly all of which are of notable interest. Lovers of travel will welcome W. G. Burn Murdoch's "From Edinburgh to the Antarctic," an illustrated journal made by Mr. Burn Murdoch, the artist, during a voyage in a whaling barque belonging to the Dundee Expedition of 1892-93, in which, besides reproducing with his pencil the natural beauties and characteristics of the surroundings, he describes the many incidents of life on board a sailing ship in a long ocean voyage, and the perilous experiences in Antarctic ice; Mr. Murdoch's journal is supplemented by the "science notes" made by the three naturalists of the expedition. There will also be "On the Wallaby," a book of travel and adventure in Australia, by Guy Boothby, the title being derived from the Australian slang expression "on the wallaby," meaning "on the march," and generally applied to persons tramping the bush in search of employment. "Memorials of St. James' Palace," by Rev. Edgar Sheppard, chaplain to the Queen, is historical as well as descriptive, being an account of the chief beauties and characteristics of "St. James's," fully illustrated. In literature proper there will be a new work on the "Junius" controversy, called "Last Words on the Junius Question," by H. R. Francis; "Shakespeare Studies, and other essays," by Thomas Spencer Baynes; and "The Idylls of Theocritus," translated into English verse by J. H. Hallard. Two new books by Mr. Lang are announced: a volume of poems with the happy title of "Ban and Arrière Ban: a rally of fugitive rhymes," and "The Cock Lane Ghost and Common Sense," a series of papers dealing not only with the famous spectre of Cock Lane, but with haunted houses, wraiths, and various other phases of ghostcraft in general. Bjornstjerne Bjornson's drama, "The Gauntlet," has been translated by Osman Edwards, and is said to be the first of this writer's plays to be submitted to an English audience; it is a picture of Norwegian family life, in which the heroine throws down the gauntlet to society, to claim that "a man should live as strict a life as a girl." There will also be a new three-volume edition of Lord Lytton's poems, comprising "The Wanderer," "Lucile," and "Selections." Forthcoming fiction comprises "Under the Red Robe," by Stanley J. Weyman; "Doreen, the Story of a Singer," by Edna Lyall; "The Thing That Hath Been, or, a young man's mistakes," by A. H. Gilkes; "A True Relation of the Travels and Perilous Adventures of Mathew Dudgeon, Gentleman," telling, in autobiographical form, a story of the adventures and captivity of a London merchant about the middle of the seventeenth century; and a new cheaper edition of "Lay Down Your Arms." The contributions to religious literature are especially noteworthy. A full list of titles is given in the list in this issue under Theology, Religion and Speculation. Among the many other books announced by this house, we briefly note "Practicable Socialism," a volume of essays on social reform by Canon and Mrs. Barnett; "Papers and Addresses on Work and Wages," by Lord Brassey; "A History of Trade Unionism," by Sidney and Beatrice Webb; "Further Recollections of a Busy Life," by J. Kerslev Fowler; "The Letters of Harriet, Countess Granville, 1810-1845," edited by her son, Hon. F. Leveson Gower; the second volume of James Hamilton Wylie's "History of England Under Henry IV.," of which the third and concluding volume will be issued within the year; "The Elements of English Constitutional History," by F. C. Montague, designed specially for University Extension students; "Sharps and Flats," a complete exposure of the many and varied methods and devices employed in cheating at games of chance and skill, being a most useful revelation of the secrets of the modern gaming sharp, by John Nevil Maskelyne; "Studies of Nature on the Coast of Arran," by George Milner; "Parliamentary Government in the British Colonies," by Alpheus Todd; "The History of Marriage, Jewish and Christian, its Relation to Divorce and Certain Forbidden Degrees," by Rev. Herbert Mortimer Luckock, Dean of Lichfield; "Christopher Columbus and the Participation of the Jews in the Spanish and Portuguese Discoveries," by Dr. M. Kayserling; and "The Camel, its Uses and Management," by Major Arthur Glyn Leonard. Half a dozen new scientific books are in preparation, the titles of which may be found in the classified list under the heading Arts and Sciences. Additions will be made to several of the series published by this house. New volumes in the Fur and Feather series will be "The Grouse" and "The Pheasant," each by A. J. Stuart-Wortley; "The Hare and the Rabbit" by Gerald Lascelles, and "Wild Fowl," by Hon. John Scott-Montagu; "The Mohammedans, 1001-1761 A.D.," by J. D. Rees, will be added to Epochs of Indian History; the Advanced Science Manuals will have a volume on "Human Physiology," by John Thornton, M.A.; "The Elements of Music," by T. H. Bertenshaw, will be the first part of Longman's Music Course; and a new series of College Histories of Art will be begun under the editorship of Prof. J. C. Van Dyke, of Rutgers College, who will furnish the first volume of the series, dealing with "The History of Painting," and illustrated with many reproductions of famous and representative pictures.

A. C. McCLURG & Co. will have three new books this spring. They are: "In Malden Meditation," a little volume of essays on woman's moods, caprices, and dreams—thoughts "grave and gay," suggested by dances or dinners, church services or weddings—daintily printed and bound; and two volumes in the pretty Elizabethan Library, "Green Pastures," a collection of extracts made by Alexander B. Grosart from the works of Robert Greene, one of the sweet but little known singers who flourished in the later years of the sixteenth century, and "The Poet of Poets," love-verses from the minor poems of Edmund Spenser, representing some of his choicest, imperishable work. The selections from Spenser are also made by Mr. Grosart, who as editor of the series has shown fine critical perception.

MACMILLAN & Co. have many books of great literary and scientific value in active preparation. Their publications run through the list elsewhere in this issue under almost every classification. There are upwards of a dozen strictly educational works, covering many departments of learning. There are nine volumes in preparation which will complete their new and popular edition of the "Works of Charles Dickens," noteworthy for containing all the original illustrations, and for the very valuable introduction written for every volume by the younger Charles Dickens. They have just ready Marion F. Crawford's new novel, "Katharine Lauderdale," and will publish almost immediately Mrs. Ward's anxiously-expected novel, "Marcella." Of special literary interest will be "American Book-Plates," by Charles Dexter Allen, corresponding secretary for the United States of the Ex Libris Society, a guide to the study of book-plates, with fifty illustrations; two new volumes in Henry Craik's admirably edited "English Prose Selections," with critical introductions by various writers, and general introductions to every period; "Specimens of French Literature," edited by G. Eugène Fasnacht, covering French literature from Corneille to Victor Hugo, and containing literary appreciations by the most eminent French critics; "Criticisms on Contemporary Thought and Thinkers," a series of essays selected from The Spectator, by Richard Holt Hutton; "History of Anglo-Saxon Literature," translated from the German of Richard P. Wülcker, by R. W. Deering and Dr. C. F. McClumpha; and many others on the borderland between students' hand-books and library helps, which will be found either under Education, Language, etc., or under Literary Miscellany in the preceding list. Medical works of great importance will be found under the heading Medicine, Hygiene, etc. Volumes of poems are classified under Poetry and Drama; several psychological works, under Mental and Moral Philosophy. Among works of description and travel are "The Gypsy Road: a journey from Krakow to Coblenz," by Prof. G. A. J. Cole; "Life in Ancient Egypt," translated by H. M. Tirard, from the German of Adolf Erman; and "Town Life in the 15th Century," by Alice Stopford Green, in two volumes. Among other new works of general interest will be "The Life and Art of Joseph Jefferson," by William Winter; "Sermons on the Acts of the Apostles," by F. D. Maurice;

"Western Europe in the Fifth and Eighth Centuries," two volumes by the late E. A. Freeman; and many more. Special attention is called to the new Temple Shakespeare, of which the first volume, containing the "Tempest," is now ready. The Macmillans have also been chosen as the publishers for Columbia University, and will publish several Columbian volumes during the year.

THE MERRIAM Co., successors to Saalfield & Fitch, will publish immediately translations of Teller's "My Uncle Benjamin" and "Belle Plante and Cornelius."

THOMAS NELSON & SONS will publish shortly the Oxford edition of the "Thumb Prayer Book" for the American Church, in which larger print will be used than in any miniature edition yet published, as the peculiar quality of the genuine "Oxford" paper, which the Nelsons alone can procure from the paper mills of the Oxford Press, renders it possible to compress an incredible amount of matter into the tiny shape. Every imaginable style of binding has been devised for the dainty books, lists of which can be procured from the New York house on application.

JAS. POTT & Co. will soon issue the Bedell Lectures for 1893, on "The Witness of the Church to Pure Christianity," by Rev. W. A. Leonard, Bishop of Ohio. They have now in press "The Bishops' Blue Book, 40 A.D. to 1800 A.D.," by Rev. J. Sanders Reed, a careful and thorough study of the historic episcopate, which should prove a valuable addition to the literature of the subject; "The Catholic Religion," a manual of instruction for members of the English Church, by Rev. Vernon Staley, who enforces the dogmatic and doctrinal teaching of his church in earnest language and with unflinching boldness; and two preceding works of the same writer—"Plain Words on the Holy Catholic Church" and "Plain Words on the Incarnation"—which have met with approval and success in England. The first volume of Gettle's "Hours with the New Testament," covering "The Gospels," was issued some time since and will be followed in May by the second volume, which treats of "St. Paul;" these volumes cover the Sunday-school lessons for 1894. "The Parliament of Religions," a timely address on the great religious gathering at Chicago last summer, by Rev. Morgan Dix, of Trinity Church, New York, has just been published in pamphlet form.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have some very important books in biography and history in active preparation, including volumes on "Newton Booth, of California: His Speeches and Addresses," edited with introduction and notes, by Lauren C. Crane; "James Henry Chapin, a Sketch of His Life and Work," by George Sumner Weaver; "Oliver Cromwell," by Samuel Harden Church, comprising a narrative of his life, with extracts from his letters and speeches, and an account of the political, religious, and military affairs of England during his time; "The Writings and Correspondence of Thomas Jefferson," in ten volumes; "The Life and Correspondence of Rufus King," edited by his grandson, Charles R. King, to be completed in five volumes; volume 2 of the "Writings of Thomas Paine," edited by Moncure D. Conway; "Cicero, and the Fall of the Roman Republic," by J. L. Strachan-Davidson, the tenth volume in studies of their writers, edited by A. B. Simonds; "The Best Recent Books," a supplement to William Swan Sonnenschein's volume, published in 1891, bringing the list down to the end of 1893; "Tennyson: His Art and Relation to Modern Life," by Stopford A. Brooke; "Random Roaming, and other papers," by Augustus Jessopp; "Piers Plowman, 1363-1399," a contribution to the history of English mysticism, by J. J. Jusserand; the second part of "The Empire of the Tsars and the Russians," by Anatole Leroy-Beaulieu, whose work will be completed in three volumes; "Studies in Medieval Life and Literature," by E. T. McLaughlin, of Yale University; "A Modern Wizard," by Rodrigues Ottolengui, author of "An Artist in Crime;" "A Sheaf of Poems," by George Perry; the 5th group of the pretty Ariel Shakespeare; and a new and cheaper edition of Stephens' "Hours in a Library." Three or four important medical works are announced, titles of which appear in the classified list under the heading Medicine, Hygiene, etc.; and several works of social and political interest are also grouped there under the heading of Political and Social Science. Of religious interest will be the vol. 6 of "The Papers of the American Society History," "The Apostolic Age of the Christian Church," translated by James Millar from the second and revised edition of Carl von Weizsäcker's important work; and "The Life and Teachings of Jesus," a critical study by Arthur K. Rogers. Among the very newest announcements of this house are "The Lives of Twelve Bad Men," edited by Thomas Seccombe, of Balliol College, Oxford, and composed of original studies of the lives of noted scoundrels from various hands; "Prince Henry the Navigator" (of Portugal), by C. R. Beazley, in The Heroes of the Nations; and "Canadian Independence, Annexation, and British Imperial Federation," by James Douglas, in The Questions of the Day Series.

RAND, McNALLY & Co. have a new novel by Marah Ellis Ryan, the talented author of "A Pagan of the Alleghanies;" "Told in the Hills" and other strong books, which will be entitled historical events in India. The work is in three handsome octavo volumes, with traits and many illustrations. This announces a new edition of Mrs. Norton's of La Garaye," printed on hand-made with portrait and etched title-page, art bound. They will also issue "The Key Grave," by W. Robertson Nicoll; "Wit Body Do They Come?" by Joseph Merri son; "Be Perfect," a book of meditation a month, by Rev. Andrew Murray; a nation of Rev. J. M. Neale's translation Bernard's hymn, "The Celestial Country several full-page illustrations; "Now I Down to Sleep," William Oland Bour position of "the prayer of childhood in ture and song," in a new enlarged editi a new revised edition of "College Oxfor

They will also p second edition, carefully revised, of D Dennis' "Foreign Missions After a C which the author now believes has bee accurate to the last degree, and worth ceptance as an authority.

GEORGE H. RICHMOND & Co. will pt April "The Damascus Road," a new s Leon de Tinsau, copyrighted and brot by special arrangement with the autho for sale; and a new edition of James L. Ford's clever "Hypnotic Tales," first published two or three years ago.

ROBERTS BROTHERS will, during the spring, bring out several volumes of their Columbian Knowledge Series, which they have had in most careful preparation for many months. The series is edited by Prof. David F. Todd, of Amherst, and the initial volume on "The Total Eclipse of the Sun" is written by his wife, Mrs. Mabel Loomis Todd. Sixteen volumes of this series are already planned, which will furnish information on their subjects up to date of the most advanced knowledge of the Columbian year. Their precise succession is not quite certain, but the volumes now under way include "Public Libraries in America," by William I. Fletcher, Librarian of Amherst College, than whom there is none more fitted to tell of the public library movement, its history and significance, laws, relations to the people, management, classification, cataloguing and other minor details, which will be beautified by fine views of eighteen of the handsomest and most important libraries in the country; "Stars and Telescopes," by Prof. Todd, being the seventh edition of "Celestial Motions," by William Thynne Lynne, with extensive additions; and "Aerial Locomotion," and "Our Coal, and How to Conserve It," by authors not yet named for publication. Two fascinating books devoted to out-door life may be looked for in "By Moorland and Sea," by Francis A. Knight, author of "By Leafy Ways," who has made his own illustrations; and "Wayside Sketches," by Eben J. Loomis, full of observations of nature in America, as seen in the birds, brooks, buds, etc. A new volume on art is also announced, to be entitled "Art for America," written by William Ordway Partridge in the form of essays upon the true education and the false, as an American school of sculpture, the outlook for sculpture in America, etc. Miss Wormeley has also nearly finished another of her remarkable translations of Balzac, which is devoted to his famous story of "Catherine de Medici."

GEORGE ROUTLEDGE & SONS have prepared several new volumes for their series of Lubbock's 100 Best Books; they are Lord Lytton's translation of the "Odes and Epodes of Horace"; Wordsworth's poetical works, illustrated by Birket Foster, Wolf, and Sir John Gilbert; the "Plays of Aristophanes, Sophocles, and Euripides," translated by Frere; and Gray's poems and Pope's "Essay on Criticism." They will bring out Abbé Prévost's "Manon Lescaut" as one of the dainty pocket-size volumes of the Nilumbo Library; and have added some thirty volumes of standard literature, chiefly fiction, to their Hearth and Home Library.

W. R. SAUNDERS has in press "The Nurses' Dictionary of Medical Terms and Nursing Treatment," compiled by Honnor Morten, and intended for use as a convenient and accurate reference-book, to be consulted by the bedside or in the ward.

THE SCHULTE PUBLISHING Co. will issue early in April, by authority of the Publishing Committee of the International Congress of Anthropology, held in Chicago in connection with the other World's Congresses of the Columbian Exposition, the "Memoirs" read before the congress; these will form a large octavo volume, fully illustrated, and containing about forty important papers on physical anthropology, archaeology, ethnology, folk-lore, religions, and linguistics; it will be sold by subscription. They have in preparation a new edition, the fourth, of ex-Governor William Larrabee's book on "The Railroad Question"; a fifth edition of Art. Young's remarkable satire, "Hell up to Date"; and "The Giant Cyclopedia," by K. L. Armstrong, the latter to be sold only by subscription.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have several important works in preparation. "The Sherman Letters" is one of the most noteworthy. It covers a correspondence between General William Tecumseh and Senator John Sherman, beginning with General Sherman's West Point days and extending to February, 1891, and is unique in furnishing a familiar and intimate record of and commentary upon the events of American history during this period, and the various actors in them, by two persons, themselves participants and men of unusual power and penetration. The fraternal discussion is often from opposite standpoints—a fact which lends it special interest, and the men and measures of the war epoch, the growth of public sentiment, and the gradual formulation of principles which finally triumphed in the new Union are clearly and graphically described. Somewhat similar interest attaches to General Dabney Herndon Maury's "Recollections of a Virginian in the Mexican, Indian, and Civil Wars," which will have an introduction by Thomas Nelson Page. General Maury's varied military service brought him in contact with many eminent men, regarding whom he has an abundant supply of racy anecdotes, while, besides describing his diversified personal experiences with vivacity and humor, he gives an admirable picture of the courtly life of old Virginia and touches more seriously upon the thoughts and emotions to which the war gave rise. Of the "Pasquier Memoirs," the second volume has just been issued, and the third is promised during the early summer. There will also be "Josiah Gilbert Holland, a Memoir," by Mrs. H. M. Plunkett, a life-long friend of Dr. Holland, who describes with affectionate zeal his early struggles, his prompt successes in education and literature, his estimate of his own achievements, and the sources of his strong and lasting influence with the "plain people." Mrs. William Starr Dana, whose charming book on "How to Know the Wild Flowers" was one of the successes of last summer, will have an equally delightful narrative called "According to Season," in which she describes the wild flowers which the stroller in field and wood may find at each season of the year, and which admirably supplements her first and more comprehensive work. There will also be a new book by Dr. Charles A. Stoddard, who, after travelling "Across Russia," and describing "Spanish Cities," now turns his steps "Beyond the Rockies," and gives us the benefit of his observations, experiences, and reflections during a journey by the southern route to California, for whose beauties and wonders he has a keen and appreciative eye. Two or three new books in lighter vein are promised. Robert A. Bridges, the "Droch" of Life will have a delightfully original little volume called "Overheard in Arcady," made up of a series of dialogues, originally printed in Life, between the famous characters in the stories of Howells, James, Aldrich, Stockton, Davis, Crawford, Kipling, Meredith, Stevenson, author's other books. This house has also in preparation a second edition of "The Life and Letters of Dean Stanley," and they have just issued "Basal Concepts in Philosophy," an important contribution to philosophic literature, by Prof. A. T. Ormond, of Princeton, and "The Chess Pocket Manual," a convenient and admirable little handbook, intended not only for the beginner but for the more expert chess player.

JOHN M. SCUDDER & SONS have several medical works in preparation, titles of which are fully given elsewhere under the heading Medicine and Hygiene.

CHARLES H. SERGEL COMPANY have in press for immediate issue a "History of Bohemia," by R. H. Vickers. They also announce two new novels, "A Yellow Aster," by "Iota"; "Mam'zelle Beauty," by Miss Marian Crawford, a new American writer of the Bertha M. Clay "school," and a new paper-covered edition of Souvestre's "Attic Philosopher in Paris."

SPON & CHAMBERLAIN announce a number of new books and new editions in their special field of mechanical science and useful arts; full titles will be found under the heading Arts and Sciences, in the classified list preceding this department.

STONE & KIMBALL have in preparation a number of books of unusual literary merit, which will be brought out in fine limited editions, with all the accessories of good paper, tasteful printing and appropriate decoration. Poems and selections of verse make up almost the entire quota. Grant Allen will have a little volume of lyrics with the quaint title "The Lower Slopes: reminiscences of excursions round the base of Helicon, undertaken for the most part in early manhood," with a title-page by J. Illingsworth Kay. The "Plays" of John Davidson, comprising "An Unhistorical Pastoral," "A Romantic Farce," "Bruce," "Smith," and "Scaramouch in Naxos," will form a small quarto volume, with frontispiece and cover-design by Aubrey Beardsley. "A Lover's Diary" is the title of a collection of sonnets by Gilbert Parker by Dante Gabriel Rossetti. In prose it be "Arthur O'Shaughnessy, his life works," by Louise Chandler Moulton; Adams' "Essays in Modernity;" and a tion of Hamlin Garland's "Prairie Folk form with "Main-Travelled Roads" and Songs." All of the books bearing the is this new firm are models of good taste i making. In the case of nearly every ready mentioned, besides the regular from fifty to seventy-five copies will be out in limited "de luxe" style.

J. SELWIN TAIT & SONS announce it paper-covered series, in which they w out some excellent books. Their // Series will have for its first two issues " of the Bishop," by John Strange Wh "Told by the Colonel," W. L. Alden's c of clever and amusing tales; the A? Series will start with "Americans in E stinging description of American life first published last summer, "What Om Thinks," Mrs. H. Holt Cahoon's clew on social and domestic life, and "Cav in Tent and Field," by Mrs. O. B. Boy in the Idler Series will be issued "M Crosby's Niece," by Ella C. Hurlbut Doomsdwoman" and "Before the Gring a story of California life, by Gertrude . They will also bring out Knauff's "Phy ture" in a substantial twelvemo. The volumes are announced as just ready National Library of 200 Best Books: " of the Breakfast-Table," "Elsie Venner, of the Seven Gables," "The Lady of it took," "The Marble Faun," Bret Harte Lowell's poems, Longfellow's poems, nyson's poems. These are all copyright can books, now issued in uniform sh new illustrations made especially for th and handsomely bound in half calf.

THE UNIVERSALIST PUBLISHING HO in press "Back to the Old Testament Religion of the New," a treatise on the Old and New Testaments and thei pool, who describes Indian life, from a missionary standpoint, with interesting detail and personal earnestness; two new novels, "The Monk of Mar Saba," by Joseph Hocking, and "The Fool of Fate," by Mary H. Tennyson; and two useful manuals for students of electrical science, "The Electrician at Home" and "Electrical Apparatus for Amateurs," both edited by Francis Walton-Young.

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & CO. have in press for early publication "Joanna Tralli, Spinster," a new story by Annie C. Holdsworth, one of the younger English novelists. It deals with the question of individual "rescue work" among fallen women, and the difficult subject is said to be handled with delicacy as well as with power, while the possible solution of the problem suggested has a considerable element of practicality. This will be shortly followed by Mark Twain's new story, "Tom Sawyer Abroad," in which "Hock Finn," the irrepressible, describes the remarkable experiences of himself, Tom Sawyer, and Nigger Jim, in a trip abroad, made in an extraordinary conveyance and attended with even more extraordinary happenings.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has in preparation several important contributions to religious literature. He announces as nearly ready the Boyle Lectures from 1892-93; these lectures, by Rev. Alexander J. Hamilton, are on "The Ascent of Faith, or, the grounds of certainty in science and religion," and trace the gradual process of reasoning, logical and moral, which may lead from established scepticism to certainty of faith. They will be followed by "Labor and Sorrow," a volume of sermons by Canon Knox-Little; "The Hebrew Twins," a "vindication of God's ways with Jacob and Esau," by the late Dr. Samuel Cox, editor of The Expositor; "The Oblation and the Invocation," an essay on this portion of the communion office, by Rev. R. B. Fairbairn; and "Lay Readers, their Organization and Work," by Rev. H. B. Restarick. There will be three new volumes in the Theological Educator series of useful little manuals—"The Theology of the Old Testament," by Rev. Prof. W. H. Bennett; "The Theology of the New Testament," by Rev. Prof. W. F. Adeney; and "Christianity and Evolution," by Rev. Prof. Iverach. Two new books for children are promised, "Aschenbroedel," a touching little Easter tale by Mrs. George A. Paull, and "A Four-Leaved Clover," by Rev. H. F. Darnell.

WILLIAM WOOD & COMPANY have several valuable books in preparation, of which the full titles can be found under the heading Medicine, Hygiene, etc., in the classified list in this issue.

OBITUARY NOTES.

REV. NARCISSE CYR, author of "Cruel Persecutions of the Protestants in the Kingdoms of France," etc., died in Springfield, Mass., on the 18th inst., aged 71 years.

COMMANDER VERNER LOVETT CAMERON, the distinguished African explorer, was killed on the 26th inst. by a fall from a horse while hunting on Baron Rothschild's estate of Soulbury, Bedfordshire, England. He was fifty years old, and was the first European to cross the entire breadth of the African continent. He published several books relating to his travels, and also a number of stories of adventure for boys. His best-known works are "An Essay on Steam-Tactics," 1865; "Across Africa," 1876; and "Our Future Highway," describing a trip through the Euphrates Valley, 1880.

FRANCIS G. PRATT, JR., of the firm of Perry, Mason & Co., publishers of the Youth's Companion, who died at his home in Boston on the 19th inst., was born in Middleboro 43 years ago. He was the son of a Congregational minister. He graduated from the Bridgewater normal school, subsequently attended Phillips Academy for a year, and in 1871 went to Boston to enter the employ of Lee & Shepard. After being there a short time, he went to the Youth's Companion as assistant to Mr. Ford. He was admitted to the firm, and at the time of his death had been connected with the Companion for over 17 years.

GEORGE TICKNOR CURTIS, the venerable lawyer, died on March 28 from heart-failure, following an attack of acute pneumonia. Mr. Curtis was born in Watertown, Mass., in 1812, and was the nephew of the once renowned professor of languages in Harvard College. Among his works, besides the life of Webster, are the standard text book of "Curtis on Patents," "History of the Constitution of the United States," a treatise on "Copyright," a book on "Admiralty Law," one on "Equity and Precedents," a biography of President James Buchanan; "Creation or Evolution;" and a novel entitled "John Charaxes."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

ANATOLE FRANCE is putting the last touches to a novel which will begin to appear in the April numbers of the Revue de Paris. It is to be called "Le Lys Rouge," and is a study of cosmopolitan society in Florence, somewhat after the style of Bourget. One of the heroines is English, and aesthetic.

GENERAL D. H. MAURY, of Virginia, who has had many unusual and interesting experiences in military and civil life, is about to publish a book of reminiscences. It is to be entitled "Recollections of a Virginian in the Mexican, Indian, and Civil Wars," and will have an introduction by Mr. Thomas Nelson Page.

"GEORGE EGERTON," author of "Keynotes," is now said to be a native of Ireland. According to the New York Tribune, she is a "Miss Dunne, the daughter of a gentleman who has been for many years an Irish official, and a cousin of Frank Power, the correspondent of The London Times, who was killed when making his way from Khartoum with General Gordon's last despatches." It was first reported that the author was a Mrs. Clakmonte.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Patent Office News is the title of a new weekly journal devoted to the interests of inventors and manufacturers of patented articles. Its offices are at 1113 O St., N. W., Washington, D. C., and 114 Fifth Ave., New York.

WHAT is called by The Cosmopolitan the "most interesting literary event of the age" is the publication, in its April number, of a Corsican story by Napoleon. It is from "a ms. prepared by Napoleon when a boy and confided to his uncle, Cardinal Fesch."

Harper's Young People issues under date of March 31, a complete illustrated story, separately bound, as an Easter present to its subscribers. The story is called "Across the Range," and is written by the well-known author of "Toby Tyler," Mr. James Otis.

THE Springfield Daily Republican celebrated its fiftieth birthday on March 27, by the publication on its new press of a twenty-two page number, devoting several pages to a history of the growth and progress of the paper and the community in which for half a century it has wielded so great an influence.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

DR. CYRUS ADLER has extracted from G. Fumagalli's "Bibliografia Etiopica" the titles of all works relating to the Falashas, a little-known but interesting connection of the House of Israel. The list was first printed in the American Hebrew and may now be had separately.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—T. B. Ventres, bookseller and stationer, will remove on the 15th of April to 597 Fulton Street, opposite Flatbush Avenue, where he will be more in the centre of business than at his old stand.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Koelling & Klappenbach have had their Dearborn Street store flooded, and their stock of books, stationery, etc., completely ruined by water. They have removed their offices temporarily to 100-102 Randolph Street, near Dearborn, where they will, as soon as the necessary improvements can be made, open up a new store. Their manufacturing department—printing, binding, blank-books, etc., as also their subscription and import department, suffer no delay whatever, and all orders will be executed with usual promptness.

EUREKA, CAL.—W. T. Bonstell, bookseller is reported to be seeking a compromise with his creditors.

LENORA, KAN.—McManus Brothers, booksellers, have sold out.

SAN JOSÉ, CAL.—M. M. Haas Co. has succeeded F. A. Taylor, bookseller, at So. South First Street.

SEATTLE, WASH.—A consolidation of the book and stationery business of T. H. Calbert & Co. and the printing and publishing business of the Sunset Publishing Company, has recently been effected, and the joint business is now incorporated under the name of The Calvert Company.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

STONE & KIMBALL have secured the services of Mr. Bliss Carman as their literary adviser.

THE second novel in Matthews & Lane's series, in which "Keynotes" was the first volume, will be "The Silver Faun," by Mrs. Emery.

THE Russian society of booksellers and publishers, which has been in existence for ten years, has decided to open a school for booksellers in St. Petersburg.

BANGS & Co. will sell on April 17 and following, by order of the receiver, Joseph J. Little, the entire stock of books, bound and in sheets, stereotype plates, etc., of the late Worthington Company.

THE STUDENT PUBLISHING Co., Hartford, Conn., has just issued "The Triple Tradition of the Exodus," by Rev. B. W. Bacon, in which the author carries further the work of popularizing the results of the higher criticism of the Pentateuch begun in his "The Genesis of Genesis."

SONNENSCHN & Co., London, will publish shortly a pamphlet by Frederick Rogers, president of the Vellum Binders' Trade Society, entitled "The Arts of Bookbinding." It is, in substance, the lecture recently delivered by him at South Place Institute, but there are notes and additions.

A. LAHURE, Paris, has just issued under the title of "La Reliure" a collection of a dozen articles on the art of bookbinding in the present and in the past, by Emile Bosquet, the well-known bookbinder. It is illustrated with portraits of modern French bookbinders and photogravures of recent covers.

GUSTAV E. STECHERT will market in this country a German work on the language of the Zimshian Indians in Northwestern America, by Dr. A. C. Count von der Schulenburg, with ethnographical introduction, grammar, specimen extracts, and vocabulary. The tribes in question inhabit the rocky north coast of British Columbia.

ONE of the autograph sales of the last year was of an early ms. by Tennyson, which was never published. It was written in 1823, and was entitled "Mungo, the American. A Tale by Alfred Tennyson. Showing how he found a sword, and afterwards how it came to the possession of the right owner, after the space of two years."

"DIRECT LEGISLATION," now in its 11th thousand, has served to broaden the interest felt throughout the United States in the Initiative and Referendum of Switzerland. James W. Sullivan, its author, in the course of a recent lecture tour, addressed the Legislature of New Jersey at Trenton, students of Cornell University, and of Dickinson College, in his native town of Carlisle, Pa.

J. H. ED. HEITZ (Heitz & Müdel), Strasbourg, have in preparation the seventh and eighth volumes in his "Repertoire bibliographique strasbourgeois," containing respectively Jean Knobloch 1500-1528, and Matthias Schürer 1508-1521; and the second part of "Der Initialschmuck in den elsässischen Drucken des xv. und xvi. Jahrhunderts" (Decorative initials in the Elsass prints of the 15th and 16th centuries) covering "Die Zierinitialen des Johannes Gruniger 1483-1531."

COUNT TOlstoi has just repeated his public declaration that he does not give anyone the exclusive or even the preferential right of publishing his works and translating from them. "I offer it indiscriminately," he says, "to all those publishers who find the publication of my works or their translation desirable." This statement is called out by the facts that he often receives requests for an exclusive right of publication, and that certain foreign publishers ascribe to themselves this exceptional right and contest it with others.

"L'EXISTENCE," by C. Greppo, just issued by L. Sauvaltre, Paris, has been pronounced by Gaston d'Hailly in an eight-page review in La Revue des Livres et du Théâtre to be an epoch-making book. M. Greppo asks why, when all have eyes to see, ears to hear, and a mind to comprehend the truth, so few seem to realize the facts of existence, why they are and whence they are. He takes high religious and moral ground. A chapter entitled La Predation (Injustice and robbery) treats the question of government with a master-hand. Anarchy, in its generally accepted and real meaning, is most eloquently defined. The book is intended for the general public, and is said to be a model of clear thinking and simple expression.

STAN V. HENKELS, the well-known collector and auctioneer, announces two important sales to take place at Thos. Birch's Son's rooms, 1110 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia. The first is that of the large and important law library of the late Hon. Furman Sheppard, of Philadelphia, which includes complete sets of American and English reports and a collection of 600 criminal trials. The second and most important is the valuable and extraordinary collection of autograph letters, portraits and views formed by the late Col. Charles C. Jones, historian, of Georgia. It embraces a set of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence, series of Members and Presidents of the Continental Congress, Presidents and Vice-Presidents of the United States, and a number of others now rarely to be found for sale. The portraits and views are almost of equal importance with the autographs. Fuller particulars will be found in Mr. Henkel's advertisement, elsewhere in this issue.

FIFTY-ONE volumes of Napoleon's St. Helena library are about to be sold by the Messrs. Sotheby in London. On the death of Napoleon his effects in St. Helena were sent home and divided among his brothers. Jerome Bonaparte received, besides other things, this box of books, and presented them, with an autograph letter, to Baron Stölting, one of the gentlemen in his service. The baron lent them to his wife, who married again, died as Frau von Wledburg, and left the books to her adopted daughter, Fraulein Malvine Fischer, of Arolsen, Waldeck, Germany, by whose instructions they are now offered for sale. The autograph letter sent by Jerome Napoleon to Baron Stölting accompanies the books. These books include the "Histoire de France," by Velly, Villaret, and Garnier, in thirty volumes; the Duc de Sully's "Mémoires," in eight volumes, with a cardinal's arms in gold on the sides; the "Vie" of the Duc de Villars; the "Histoire" of the Vicomte de Turenne; and an odd volume of "Gil Blas."

Recollections of a Virginian. In the Mexican, Indian, and Civil Wars. With portrait and with introduction by Thomas Nelson Page. 12mo, $1.50.

The author of this volume, who was a favorite nephew of the famous scientist, Matthew Fontaine Maury, has had an active and adventurous life, the narrative of which is full of interest. His service in the Mexican, Indian, and Civil Wars brought him in contact with many eminent men of whom he tells no end of racy anecdotes, while he had many unusual experiences which he describes with the vivacity and humor of a true raconteur.

Josiah Gilbert Holland. A Memoir. With portrait and illustrations. 12mo, $1.50.

Mrs. Plunkett was a life-long and intimate friend of Dr. Holland, and had exceptional opportunities for studying his personality and character. She has drawn largely upon Dr. Holland's record of his own aspirations and achievements, thus giving her work an agreeable autobiographic flavor and presenting an attractive portrait of an altogether remarkable man.

According to Season. Talks about the Flowers in the Order of their Appearance in the Woods and Fields. 16mo, 75 cents.

"This most charming series of papers cannot fail to stimulate an observer's love of nature. It is a fitting supplement to Mrs. Dana's previous book, and the two constitute one of the most truly delightful descriptive studies of nature which has made its appearance in recent years."—Boston Advertiser.

Fourteenth Thousand.

A Selection of Fifty Plates from "How to Know the Wild Flowers." Printed on special paper, suitable for coloring by hand. The set in a portfolio, $1.00, net.

The Pasquier Memoirs. The Revolution. The Consulate. The Empire. With portraits. In 3 vols., 8vo. Vol. II, 1812-1814, now ready, $2.50; Vol. I, 1789-1812, $2.50.

"Its value is great. The author brings before us and illustrates with peculiar clearness the characteristics of an extraordinary time. He gives us vivid and thoughtful sketches of the First Empire."—From Edinburgh Review.

On the Offensive. An Army Story. 12mo, $1.25.

Mr. Putnam's new story is varied and adventurous in character, including among its exciting incidents a hunting trip and an expedition against the Indians. The story has a thread of sentiment and presents with rare fidelity an interesting picture of Army life on the plains.

By the same Author. IN BLUE UNIFORM. 12mo, $1.00.

Basal Concepts in Philosophy. 12mo, $1.50.

An important work in which an attempt is made to reconsider and restate the fundamental ideas of philosophy, in view of the vital issues of the present state of culture, with the purpose of unifying the conflicting elements of life, and of supplying to knowledge and belief an immutable ground.

Well-Known Books.

Beyond 'the Rockies. A Spring Journey in California. Illustrated. 12mo, $1.50.

This new book by the author of those two popular volumes of travel, "Across Russia" and "Spanish Cities," describes Dr. Stoddard's observations, experiences, and reflections during a journey by the southern route to California, to all the beauties and wonders of which he brings an appreciative mind and a fresh eye. It has the same charm of style and substantial value as his other books.

Overheard in Arcady. With 65 illustrations by O. Herford, F. G. Attwood, and A. E. Sterner. 12mo, $1.50.

There is something very novel, original, and attractive in the plan and execution of Mr. Bridges' book. It is made up of a series of dialogues, originally printed in Life, between the famous characters in the stories of Howells, James, Aldrich, Stockton, Davis, Crawford, Kipling, Meredith, Stevenson, and Barrie. In each case the characters created by the novelist discuss his works with candor, sympathetic appreciation, wit, and humor; and the abundant illustrations give the book an added value.

Salem Kittredge, and Other Stories. 12mo, $1.00.

This volume of short stories will confirm the impression which was made by Prof. Perry's first book, "The Broughton House," that he deserves to stand among the leaders of the younger school of American novelists. Some of the nine stories depict phases of European life and others deal with American subjects. All, however, have a characteristic charm both of substance and of style.

Ardis Claverden. 12mo, $1.50.

Charles Scribner's Sons have recently acquired the rights of this volume and now issue it in uniform style with the author's other famous books. The heroine, Miss Ardis Claverden, is one of Mr. Stockton's most charming creations; while the scene of a large part of the story, the eastern slope of the Virginia Blue Ridge, with its original life and characters, is described with a delicate and humorously sympathetic touch.

The Chess Pocket Manual. A Pocket-Guide for Beginners and Advanced Players. 16mo, $1.00.

This little book is not merely a portable guide to the openings, but also contains what is necessary to carry beginners safely into the labyrinths of the game, as well as endings of games in actual play, with diagrams of instructive positions and a collection of illustrative games by celebrities.

Wet Days at Edgewood. With Old Farmers, Old Gardeners, and Old Pastors. By DONALD G. MITCHELL. New and cheaper edition in preparation.

My Farm at Edgewood. A Country Book. By DONALD G. MITCHELL. New and cheaper edition in preparation.

An attractive reissue of Ik Marvel's popular out-of-door books, appropriate for spring and summer reading.

In the Footprints of Charles Lamb. By B. E. MARTIN. With bibliography by E. D. North. Cheaper edition. Illustrated. 12mo, $1.50.

"All lovers of Lamb must desire to read this entertaining and sympathetic record."—New York Tribune.

This indispensable guide and authority has been carefully and thoroughly revised upon basis of the new Pharmacopoeia. The volume contains 1974 pages, reset from new type, with a number of original illustrations. Matter rendered obsolete by the lapse of time has been eliminated, and in its place editors have incorporated the newest remedies and latest information furnished by the advancement of pharmaceutical and medical science. The price of the volume remains the same as heretofore. Imp. 8vo, cloth, $5.00; sheep, $4.00; half Russia, $5.00. Patent Index 50 cents additional.

TRAVELS IN A TREE-TOP.

By Dr. CHARLES CONRAD ABBOTT, author of "Recent Rambles." There is sure to be originality and interest in any book written by Dr. Abbott. Whether he tells us of what he finds in the top of a bromeliad stalk; of what he sees from his high perch among the leaves; whether he narrates amusing stories about wood-fiddlers and a Quaker grandfather, or the kitchen door of his old home in boyhood times; whether he sends for us a dinner among the Indians before Columbus "arrived," or reminds us how the bean and buckwheat August develop into honey and buckwheat cakes for these cool mornings—he is equally genial and deft. The volume is printed on fine paper, and in outward appearance is both rich and dainty. Tall 12mo, gilt decorated edges, $1.25.

BILL NYE'S HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES.

With 150 illustrations by F. Oppen. Mr. Nye has taken out all the dry and unmistakable husks of history, set in his own language the story of a nation's birth and growth. The book is the most careful and useful piece of literary work ever done by this popular author, and is a rare combination of information and amusement. The artist, by his humorous sketches, has added to the attractiveness of the volume. 12mo, cloth, $2.00.

History of the Consulate and the Empire of France. Vol. VII.

By L. A. THIERRY, ex-Prime Minister of France. Translated from the French with the sanction of the author, by D. Forbes Campbell. An entirely new edition, printed from new type, and illustrated with thirty-six steel plates printed from the French originals. To be completed in twelve octavo volumes. Cloth, $2.00 per volume.

MACMILLAN & CO.'S NEW BOOKS

TO BE READY NEXT WEEK:

A NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHOR OF "ROBERT ELSMERE."

MARCELLA.

By Mrs. HUMPHRY WARD, author of "The History of David Grieve," "Robert Elsmere," etc. With new portrait. In two volumes, small 12mo, cloth, in box, $2.00.

"In 'Robert Elsmere' and 'David Grieve' a great talent was at work; but the question whether better talent there was that originating force which we call genius, was left unanswered. In 'Marcella' that question is answered beyond a doubt. . . . 'Marcella' marks a long advance in the art of novel-writing. . . . Mrs. Ward has worked through her culture, and found herself; she speaks at last, in clear, resonant tones, out of the depths of her own nature, and her voice is the voice of an artist by the grace of God as well as by the nurture of the school. . . . As in the earliest stories, Mrs. Ward's task is to dramatize the strife of the soul with its inborn conditions. . . . She makes every step in the vital development of Marcella clear, not so much by description as by the disclosure of the happenings of her outward life. We are concerned from first to last with the question of her fate. . . . Mrs. Ward deals with problems; but her real interest is in the problem of the personal life. . . . 'Marcella' Mrs. Ward presents the question of the day in strict subordination to its influence on the personal destiny of a girl of brilliant temperament, deep feeling, intense idealism, and noble but impetuous and unbalanced character. She exhibits the social revolution as it touches a personality of native force and artistic sensibility. . . . It is with these subtler contacts . . . that art legitimately deals; and it is these aspects of the problem which are set forth with marvellous vividness and power in the story of Marcella's career."—Mr. HAMILTON W. MABIE, in The Forum for April.

MARCELLA. By Mrs. HUMPHRY WARD.

"So many words about the problem with which the story deals must not be suffered to convey the impression that 'Marcella' is only another social study; it is dramatic in the deepest sense from beginning to end, and once its dramatic movement rises to a great height. There are passages and scenes in it which in force and in come very near the greatest things in English fiction. Indeed, the special quality of the story is the passion which vibrates through it; a passion for truth, a passion of sympathy, and at the end a passion of love. The narrative is full of strongly-drawn figures; men who live in their emotions, no less than in their convictions and interests, whose processes of thought are disclosed with a force and reality that constantly recall the masters of the art. A splendid veracity runs through 'Marcella,' and gives it a kind of nobleness possessed only by books that are born of full knowledge, and yearning sympathy; knowledge that will see and know the worst, and sympathy that is inspired rather than chilled by the knowledge of the worst."—Mr. HAMILTON W. MABIE, in The Forum for April.

Memoir and Letters of Samuel Longfellow.

Edited by JOSEPH MAY. With a portrait. Crown 8vo, $1.50. [In Press.]

Essays and Sermons.

By SAMUEL LONGFELLOW. Edited by JOSEPH MAY. With a portrait. Crown 8vo, $1.50. [In Press.]

These two volumes form a fitting and beautiful memorial of a man of admirable scholarship, unusual thoughtfulness, excellent literary skill and taste, extraordinary lifelike, and a thoroughly fine character. Readers of Longfellow's poetry may well learn from these volumes the charm of his brother's life.

Does God Send Trouble?

By CHARLES CUTHBERT HALL, D.D., of Brooklyn, author of "Into His Marvellous Light." Crown 8vo, $1.00.

Dr. Hall describes this book as "an earnest effort to discern between Christian tradition and Christian faith." It is dedicated "to all who sorrow over the sorrows of humanity." The subject, the inspiring tone and thought, and the attractive style, cannot fail to win and uplift many readers.

Familiar Letters of Sir Walter Scott.

With a fine steel portrait of Scott and an autographic plan of Abbotsford. 2 vols., 8vo, gilt top, $6.00.

"In perusing these fascinating pages we seem to live Sir Walter's life over again along with him."—London Telegraph.

Brave Little Holland, and What She Taught Us.

By WILLIAM ELLIOT GRIFFIS, D.D., author of "Japan," "The Lily Among Thorns" (a book of great interest on "Solomon's Song"), "Matthew Calbraith Perry," etc. With illustrations. 16mo, $1.25; small 16mo, in Riverside Library for Young People, 75 cents.

By three visits to Holland and careful study of Dutch-American archives Dr. Griffis has gained material for a very interesting account of Holland and the debt we owe her for her contributions to American liberty and order.

A Bird-Lover in the West.

By OLIVE THORNE MILLER, author of "In Nesting Time," "Bird-Ways," "Little Brothers of the Air," etc. 16mo, $1.25.

This book relates Mrs. Miller's experiences and observations of birds in Ohio, Utah, and Colorado. The freshness of the field, the new varieties of her beloved "little brothers of the air," and her charming skill in describing them make her new book very delightful.

A Poet's Portfolio; Later Readings.

By WILLIAM WETMORE STORY, author of "Roba di Roma," "Fiammetta," etc. 18mo, parchment paper or cloth, $1.00.

A delightful little book like Mr. Story's "He and She"—a collection of charming lyrics strung on the silver thread of an entertaining conversation.

In Exile, and Other Stories.

A tasteful volume of excellent short stories, by MARY HALLOCK FOOTE, author of "The Chosen Valley," "The Led-Horse Claim," "John Bodewin's Testimony," "The Last Assembly Ball," etc. 16mo, $1.25.

The Rousing of Mrs. Potter, and Other Stories.

By GERTRUDE SMITH. 16mo, $1.25.

A pretty book of fresh, vigorous, readable stories, some of which have appeared in The Century and other periodicals. Several of them are Western in scene and characters, some are located in New England, and one in Italy.

Bayou Folk.

By KATE CHOPIN. 16mo, $1.25.

A tasteful book of tales drawn from life among the Creoles and Acadians of Louisiana. They represent with fidelity and spirit characters and customs unfamiliar to most readers; they are admirably told, with just enough dialect for local color, and they can hardly fail to be very popular.

A Protégée of Jack Hamlin's, and Other Tales.

By BRET HARTE. 16mo, $1.25.

A new volume of Mr. Harte's inimitable stories nearly all relating to California and the West.

This volume is a continuation of the former work by the same author and the Rev. C. J. Abbey, "The English Church in the Eighteenth Century," and carries the story of the history of the English Church from the beginning of the present century to 1833.

St. Andrews.

By ANDREW LANG. With 8 plates and illustrations in the text by T. Hodge. 8vo, $5.00.

"This is a very enjoyable book. Mr. Lang modestly declares it is not a history, only 'a little sketch,' then he has given us something better, infinitely worthy of reading and study than any history or biographical notices of St. Andrews. . . . The many and beautiful illustrations from the original drawings of Mr. Hodge are worthy of Mr. Lang's most readable and suggestive book."—Glasgow Daily Mail.

D. APPLETON & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

A History of the United States Navy.

From 1775 to 1894. By EDGAR STANTON MACLAY, A.M. With Technical Revision by Lieut. Roy C. Smith, U. S. N. In two volumes. Vol. I. With numerous maps, diagrams, and illustrations. 8vo, cloth, $3.50 per volume.

For nine years the author has devoted himself to the task of supplying the want of a complete history of our navy. His researches in France, with the assistance of Admirable Aube, Minister of the Colonies and the Marine, and in England with the aid of the late Sir Provo Wallis and others, together with the use of private papers and unpublished documents in this country, the aid of descendants of naval heroes and the suggestions of naval officers who have taken part in some of the events described, render the results of his diligent labor complete and authoritative. The appearance of this standard history is a peculiarly happy accompaniment of the development of our new navy.

(Vol. II. will be published in May next.)

Edward L. Youmans,

Interpreter of Science for the People. A Sketch of his Life, with Selections from his Published Writings, and Extracts from his Correspondence with Spencer, Huxley, Tyndall, and others. By JOHN FISKE. With portrait. 12mo, cloth, $2.00.

The late Dr. Youmans' services to popular education in science, as a lecturer and writer, as the founder of The Popular Science Monthly, the originator of the International Scientific Series, and the introducer of Spencer, Tyndall, Huxley, and others to an American audience, have been so singularly rich and productive that the history of his life is in large measure the history of popular science in America during his lifetime. It is especially fortunate that his life-work is described by so competent, eloquent, and appreciative a biographer.

New Edition of Professor Huxley's Essays.

The Story of the Sun.

By Sir ROBERT BALL, F.R.S., author of "An Atlas of Astronomy," "The Cause of an Ice Age," etc. 8vo, cloth, $5.00.

"As a specimen of the publisher's art it is superb. It is printed on paper which entices the reader to make marginal notes of reference to other books in his library, the type is large, the binding is excellent, and the volume is neither too large nor too small to handle without fatigue."—N. Y. Herald.

"All in all, this work is most complete and satisfactory. It fills a want which has been felt by many persons, and fills it acceptably."—N. Y. Times.

The Fauna of the Deep Sea.

By SYDNEY J. HICKSON, M.A., Fellow of Downing College, Cambridge. A new volume in the Modern Science Series, edited by Sir John Lubbock, Bart. With 23 illustrations. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

"That realm of mystery and wonders at the bottom of the great waters is gradually being mapped and explored and studied until its secrets seem no longer secrets. . . . This excellent book has a score of illustrations and a careful index to add to its value, and in every way is to be commended for its interest and its scientific merit."—Chicago Times.

"A lively little book on a very curious subject. . . . An admirable summary of knowledge up to date."—London Saturday Review.

Benefits Forgot.

By WOLCOTT BALESTIER, author of "Reffey," "A Common Story," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"The author places his reader at the very pulse of the human machine when that machine is throbbing most tumultuously."—London Chronicle.

"A credit to American literature and a monument to the memory of the author."—Boston Beacon.

THE STORY OF OUR PLANET.

By T. J. BONNEY, D.Sc., LL.D., F.R.S., F.S.A., F.G.S.;
 Professor of Geology in University College, London;
 Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge; and Honorary Canon of Manchester. With six colored plates and maps and about 100 illustrations. One vol., large 8vo, $5.00.

The author has aimed at rendering the main principles and results of geological reasoning intelligible to non-scientific readers of ordinary education, technical terms being, if possible, avoided, and, if not, explained. Some theoretical questions, such as the age and duration of the globe, the permanence of oceans and continents, the cause of the glacial epoch, etc., are included.

PLAIN INTRODUCTIONS TO THE BOOKS OF THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS.

"THE KINGDOM OF GOD IS WITHIN YOU."

Christianity not as a Mystic Religion but as a new Theory of Life.

Translated from the Russian of COUNT LEO TOLSTOI.

By CONSTANCE GARNETT. One vol., 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"The best way of dealing with Tolstoi's latest expression of his theory of life is to induce people to procure and read it. We cannot but be glad to see in a popular form, this remarkable book, which addresses itself not to a few but the many. . . . One great effect it may speedily have—it may tear off the rags of hypocrisy from many souls."—The Bookman, London.

LOVELL, CORYELL & COMPANY'S

Spring Announcements.

HOW LIKE A WOMAN. By FLORENCE MARRYAT.

12mo, cloth, $1.00.

Entertaining and readable from first to last.

A bright, happily-conceived story describing the wilfulness of a young English heiress in defying her nominal titled guardians (who dread her marry beneath her) and in taking her own course in matters of the heart. The story is charming throughout.

Mr. BAILEY-MARTIN. By PERCY WHITE.

12mo, cloth, $1.00.

Mr. White, with the aid of the necessary qualities, dry humor and delicate irony, succeeds nearly all the time. The story of Mr. Bailey-Martin's early career is as good as possible; his childish education in the book of the snob and his marvellous aptitude for the past must be read to be appreciated."—Athenaeum, London.

The amusing chronicle of the doings of an English up-to-date snob.

FOUND GUILTY. By FRANK BARRETT.

12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

Should find readers among those attracted by the
stories.

The reader's interest is maintained through a succession of narratives, woven down by the characters concerned in the plot, and whose statements are helpful in unravelling the threads of the story, while they add intensity to the dramatic qualities of the novel and lead up to a dénouement as unexpected as it is tragic.

WOMAN THROUGH A MAN'S EYE-GLASS.

By MALCOLM C. SALAMAN.

Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.25; illustrated series, paper, 50 cents.

A series of genial analytical essays, showing much penetration and a charming felicity of description on piquant types of modern woman. The book will amuse not only the general reader but the student of human nature.

Full of good feeling, good sense, shrewd observation, and kindly utterance.

THE TRUTH ABOUT BEAUTY. By ANNIE WOLF.

12mo, cloth, $1.25; illustrated series, paper, 50 cents.

A book of good counsels for every sane woman's boudoir.

The author, in this eminently wholesome book, telling "the truth about beauty" and what constitutes it, does not preach. She writes as a woman of the world, and what she has to say is eminently sound and inspired by high motive. Nature and not artifice is her model.

THE DIARY OF A NOBODY. By GEORGE GROSSMITH.

12mo, cloth, $1.00; illustrated series, paper, 50 cents.

There is much clever fooling and a happy audacity of whimsical invention in this book that make it delightful reading. Any one who has seen Mr. Grossmith on the stage or lecture platform will know what to expect from the book.

Just the book to dispel a fit of the blues.

Cheaper Student's Edition. 12mo, cloth, gilt top $2.00.

THE VICTORIAN AGE OF ENGLISH LITERATURE.

By Mrs. OLIPHANT, author of "The Makers of Florence," "Diana," "The Cuckoo in the Nest," etc.

A skilful yet honest survey of the literary gains of the era, of much value to all students of English literature. The story is told with intelligent brevity, yet with the charm of an experienced and graceful writer, who is at once well-informed and in full sympathy with her subject.

For sale by all booksellers, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of the price.

In closing a review of this book, the Journal of the American Medical Association says: "Space will not permit us to give further extracts from this highly interesting and truly scientific volume, which should be read by every medical practitioner desiring to keep pace with the advances of the profession."

The Pathology, Diagnosis and Treatment of Diseases of the Rectum and Anus. By CHAS. B. KELSEY, A.M., M.D., Surgeon to St. Paul's Infirmary for Diseases of the Rectum; Consulting Surgeon for Diseases of the Rectum to the Harlem Hospital and Dispensary for Women and Children, etc., etc. Fourth revised edition. One volume, 8vo, 504 pages, illustrated by two chromo-lithographic plates and 162 wood-engravings, in cloth, $4.00.

"The book has much to recommend it to the profession, and is at the present time, perhaps, the best book on the subject in the English tongue."—Annals of Surgery, December, 1893.

The Medical Student's Manual of Chemistry. By R. A. WITTHAUS, A.M., M.D., Professor of Medical Chemistry and Toxicology in the University of Vermont; Member of the Chemical Societies of Paris and Berlin, etc. Fourth revised edition. 556 pages and 62 wood-cuts, red parchment muslin, $3.75. (American Series of Medical Text-Books.)

"A book so favorably known as this one, does not need extended comment. . . . We consider the work one of the best text-books on chemistry for students of medicine."—Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, January, 1894.

By the same Author:

A Guide to Urinalysis and Toxicology. For Students and Practitioners. Third revised edition. Oblong 12mo, interleaved, muslin, $1.00.

"Of the excellence of this manual we have before had occasion to speak. . . . It continues to be the best work of the kind."—The Sanitarian.

A Manual of Bacteriology. By GEORGE M. STERNBERG, M.D., Surgeon-General U. S. Army; Honorary Member of the Epidemiological Society of London; of the Royal Academy of Medicine of Rome, etc., etc. Illustrated by four heliotype and four chromo-lithographic plates and 321 engravings. 8vo, 350 pages, maroon muslin, $5.00; leather, $6.00.

"So laborious a task as the compilation of this closely printed volume of nearly 300 pages has not been previously attempted by any bacteriologist. To the publishers, too, the highest praise is due for the admirable series of illustrations with which the text is supplied."—Edinburgh Medical Journal.

Human Embryology. By CHARLES SEEWICK MINOT, M.D., Assistant Professor of Histology and Embryology in the Harvard Medical School, Boston. Royal 8vo, 825 pages, 463 illustrations, extra muslin, $6.00.

"This is one of the most valuable and important medical books ever published in the United States, and one of the most notable text-books of embryology ever published in any country."—New York Medical Journal.

A Text-Book on Diseases of the Eye. By HENRY D. NOYES, M.D., Professor of Ophthalmology and Otology in Bellevue Hospital Medical College; Executive Surgeon to the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary; recently President of the American Ophthalmological Society, etc. Second edition. By R. F. Foster.Duplicate Whist and Whist Strategy.

By the Author of "Foster's Whist Manual."

A complete system of instruction in "Whist Strategy," which will be appreciated by those who have mastered the game; while the methods of "Duplicate Whist," now given in exhaustive form for the first time, will commend themselves to players who have recognized the fact that luck unduly predominates in the game when played to the English "Laws of Whist."

1 vol., cloth, gilt edges, uniform with "Foster's Whist Manual," $1.50

American Leads and How to Learn Them.

Mr. Foster states in his Preface to this little book:—It is in response to the request of numerous pupils that I have undertaken the task of arranging a simple method of learning "American Leads" on the same general principles as those which have proved so successful in "Foster's Whist Manual." The subject is exhaustively treated for the first time, printed in convenient form, and illustrated with diagrams and tables. Bound prettily in appropriate book covers, gilt edges, and uniform in size of page and type with "Foster's Whist Manual."

1 vol., $1.00

By C. D. P. Hamilton.Modern Scientific Whist.

A digest, by a practical whist-player, that will be appreciated by the beginner for its simplicity and clearness, and by the expert for its comprehensiveness. The most exhaustive treatise ever written on the subject of Whist.

1 vol., large 12mo, 600 pages; over 5000 pip illustrations; 268 diagrams, and 20 tables.

Beautifully printed in red and black, on paper specially manufactured for this book; bound in cloth, gilt, $1.50

By the Chef of Delmonico's.The Epicurean.

A Franco-American Encyclopædia of Cookery.

This book, by Charles Ranhofer, is the result of several years of labor, and the author's thirty years' experience as Chef of Delmonico's. It is a Complete Treatise of Analytical and Practical Studies in the Culinary Art.

1 vol., large quarto, illustrated with over 800 engravings. Contains over 1200 pages.

FREDERICK WARNE & CO.'S

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Warne's Library of Natural History.

Published Monthly. Price, 50 Cents.

MESSRS. FREDERICK WARNE & CO. take pleasure in announcing that about May 1 they will commence the issue of a new monthly serial under the above title, of which the first instalments will compose

The Royal Natural History.

EDITED BY MR. RICHARD LYDEKKER, B.A., F.G.S., F.Z.S., joint author of "An Introduction to the Study of Mammals," etc. The preface by P. L. Sclater, M.A., Ph.D., F.R.S., Secretary of the Zoölogical Society of London.

This work is entirely new, and will include the four orders of creation; thoroughly abreast of the age, full, accurate, and readable, and abounding in anecdote. Its arrangement is such, that when bound, the various orders can be readily consulted, and its PICTORIAL ELEMENT will be such as to place it at once in the first rank of works of this nature—some 1600 engravings, many full-page, as well as 72 full-page colored illustrations will be comprised in the work when finished.

This portion of the Library will occupy 36 monthly numbers, and will be published at 50 cents a month.

The trade are requested to apply for net prices, and subscription rates, and we shall have ready very shortly a complete and superb 16-page prospectus, which will be supplied in reasonable quantities.

A New and Condensed History of England.

History of England and the British Empire.

A Record of Constitutional, Naval, Military, Political, and Literary Events from B.C. 55 to A.D. 1890, by EDGAR SANDERSON, M.A., late Scholar of Clare College, Cambridge; author of "Outlines of the World's History," etc. With tinted maps and genealogical tables. In one handsome 8vo volume, 1134 pages, cloth, $3.00.

. No one of the various departments of National Life, which in the sum make history, has been ignored: Literature, Science, Art, Commerce, and Geographical Discovery have all come under review. An excellent series of specially prepared maps showing the great territorial changes at different times are placed at appropriate dates throughout. A detailed prospectus free on application.

"To us the comprehensiveness and condensation of the work are nothing less than wonderful. . . . We know of no handbook of English history so complete and at the same time so readable as this work of Mr. Sanderson's."—The Outlook, N. Y.

"Well indexed, divided, and arranged."—The Churchman, N. Y.

ROBERTS BROTHERS, Publishers, BOSTON.

A MODERN NOVEL.

(Ready April 1st.)

JOANNA TRAILL, SPINSTER.

By ANNIE E. HOLDSWORTH.

Miss Holdsworth is one of the most popular of the younger English novelists, and in "Joanna Traill, Spinster," she has treated the now widely agitated question of individual rescue work among fallen women with great power and at the same time with delicacy. The book presents a possible solution of the question, but is primarily a well-planned and interesting novel.

Cloth, 12mo, $1.25.

MARK TWAIN'S NEW STORY.

(Ready April 15th.)

TOM SAWYER ABROAD.

By HUCK FINN. Edited by MARK TWAIN.

Cloth, Square Octavo, 240 Pages, with 27 Illustrations from Original Drawings by Dan Beard, $1.50.

Mr. Andrew Lang has called "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" the great American novel. Certainly there are no characters in modern fiction more popular with young and old than Tom Sawyer, Huck Finn, and Nigger Jim.

A Western professor invents a wonderful flying machine, and it is widely announced that on a certain day he will make an ascension. Our three travellers are, of course, in the machine when it starts, and soon find themselves sailing over the Atlantic Ocean. They finally land in Africa.

The opportunities for thrilling and humorous situations can readily be imagined. The interest never lags, the humor is delightfully spontaneous, and there are many strong pathetic touches in the book.

SANDOW:

His System of Physical Training.

For Men, Women, and Children.

A handsome volume, 4to, cloth, embellished by upwards of eighty half-tone illustrations and one hundred and fifty marginal drawings, $3.50.

"Every physician should study the book. Every athlete should master its instructions, and every young person, male or female, can find in its pages valuable hints for the proper regulation of their daily routine. The system Sandow recommends is calculated to make thousands of men and women stronger and happier and healthier."—The Spirit of the Times.

"One of the books which we have been interested in during the past week is entitled 'Sandow on Physical Training.' Such books as these have a considerable importance, because they exercise a decided influence over the younger generation. The work is admirably done. A great many books have approached the same topic, but they have not equalled this in perspicuity. We cheerfully recommend this volume to the general public."—The New York Herald.

MOZOOMDAR'S BOOKS.

The Spirit of God. By PROTAP CHUNDER MOZOOMDAR. Cloth, $1.50.

An idea of the work may be gained from the titles of the chapters: The Spirit, The Hindu Doctrine of the Spirit, Doctrine of the Spirit in Christianity, Sense of the Unseen, The Spirit in Nature, The Kinship in Nature, The Spiritual Power of the Senses, The Spirit in Life, The Spirit in the Spirit, The Spirit in Immortal Life, The Spirit in Reason, The Spirit in Love, The Spirit in Conscience, The Spirit in Christ, The Spirit in History, The Spirit in all Religions, Live in the Spirit.

Heart-Beats. A Book of Meditations. By PROTAP CHUNDER MOZOOMDAR. With portrait and biographical sketch of the author. Cloth, red edges, $1.50; white, full gilt, $2.00.

"Its poetic title is suggestive of its contents. It is a collection of brief paragraphs, which are not so much the scintillations of the intellect as poems of the imagination and pulsations of the heart. In this volume Mr. Mozoomdar has transcribed some of his profoundest personal experiences. Here we have the music of a soul uttered now in a plaintive minor key, here in some deep passionate threnody, or soaring into ecstasy of joy, or breathing the calmness and quietude of peace with God. The book is an illustration of the lofty heights to which devotional sentiment may rise, free from all tinge of superstition."—Christian Register.

IN THE KING'S COUNTRY

A Christian Endeavor Story Price $1.50

Natural development of character and plot, and pure and lofty sentiment, are qualities which have ever distinguished Miss Douglas' work, and won for her a multitude of readers. In none of her stories are these qualities more marked than in this beautiful story of Christian endeavor.

The characters of Pearl Dishrowe and Sabrina Eastwood, though so entirely dissimilar, cannot fail of making a deep impression upon the reader; and as we "journey with them into the country of good works," we receive purer and higher ideals from the association.

THE AMERICAN

[ESTABLISHED 1852.]

WHOLE No. 1158

An eminent English critic has said of this new novel: "I think 'The Rubicon' a more interesting society story than any that has been published in England for many years. . . . It is a tale of London fashionable life of to-day, . . . introducing a novel situation which is extremely cleverly managed so as to form a singular satire on our artificial modes of life and springs of action. Toward the close of the book Dodo is introduced in a very effective manner, for a few pages; and her choice in life is cleverly contrasted with that of the new heroine."

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. C. HEATH & Co., Boston, have in press for immediate issue in Heath's Modern Language Series Freytag's "Rittmeister von Alt-Rosen," with introduction and notes by Professor J. T. Hatfield, of Northwestern University.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish at once "The Prisoner of Zenda," a romantic story by a comparatively new author, which, though exciting and almost sensational, is characterized throughout by fine literary art and good taste.

SILVER, BURDETT & Co., Boston, will publish shortly a "Harmony of the Gospels" on a new and improved plan, and also a revised edition of the "Outline Handbook of the Life of Christ." The authors are Prof. William Arnold Stevens, of the Rochester Theological Seminary, and Prof. Ernest De Witt Burton, of the University of Chicago.

E. R. WALLACE, Syracuse, N. Y., has nearly ready a thoroughly revised edition of his "Descriptive Guide to the Adirondacks," first published in 1872, and brought down to date year by year. The issue for this year has been illustrated in half-tone engravings, has been increased to 600 pages, and will make a fine book in tasteful flexible covers, which will sell at slightly advanced price.

E. L. KELLOGG & Co., of New York and Chicago, announce for publication May 1 "A class in Geometry," by George Iles. In this little book the author will set forth his lessons to three boys as an informal teacher by observation and experiment. Two illustrations will show apparatus of the simplest kind for extracting square and cube root; other illustrations equally original are to be presented. Three years ago Mr. Iles delivered a lecture on his methods in geometry at the Teachers' College, New York, when much interest was elicited.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. have just issued paper editions of Mrs. Gaskell's "Cranford" and Ludovic Halévy's "The Abbé Constantin," which are little models of artistic book-making, as was conceded by all upon their appearance in their pretty cloth bindings at Christmas time. They are now ready for summer travel, and should be sure of very pleasant excursions in many bags and "shawlstraps." Dr. Everett S. Stackpole's "The Evidence of Salvation, or, the direct witness of the spirit," is also ready, and is eminently fitted to accomplish its announced mission of giving courage, cheer, and aid, with kindly warning and careful instruction.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

SOME "Nonsense Rhymes," by Edward Lear, which have never been published, will appear in the May Atlantic.

The American Fashion Journal is the title of a new monthly publication devoted to men's fashions. The first number was published under date of March.

A FRENCH monthly review of progress, edited by M. A. Gromier, president L'Union Méditerranéenne, is entitled La Question de Demain (The question of to-morrow), and published by Paul Sevin, Paris. The second number is chiefly devoted to copyright, and a very long translation is made of the speech of Mr. MacAdoo, of New Jersey, on the bill for international copyright. Mr. Carlisle's speech is also reported at length.

AFTER a phenomenally successful career of 106 years as a monthly, Le Journal de Debats has decided to become a weekly publication. The paper is published in handy quarto size, stitched. Its list of contributors includes the names of the foremost men of letters, scholars, and specialists. The paper gives a complete review of the world's progress in politics, art, science, and literature, and its feuilleton is always devoted to the very best current fiction. B. Westermann & Co. are the American agents.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin, the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade on application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; R: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Lewis; N: Nicholas; Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. 4to: under 30 cm.; O. 8vo: 24 cm.; D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fc. (48mo: 10 cm.). sq., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

*Abbott, Austin. A digest of New York statutes and reports from Jan. 1, 1893, to Jan. 1, 1894, with tables of statutes, constitutional provisions, rules of court, and cases cited. N. Y., Diossy Law-Book Co., 1894. c. 28+524 p. O. shp., $5. [1004]

Barlow, J. Bog-land studies. 2d ed. rev. and enl. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1894. 187 p. D. cl., $1.25. [1005]

Irish stories and legends in rhyme. Contents: The ould master; Walled out, or, eschatology in a bog; Last time at McGurk's, or, Mick Flynn de Senectute; By the bog-hole; Past praying for, or, the souper's widow; Miss Honor's wedding; A curlew's call.

Bayard, Martha Pintard. The journal of Martha Pintard Bayard, London, 1794-1797; ed. by S. Bayard Dod. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1894. c. 2-141 p. por. D. hf. cl., $1.50. [1006]

Mrs. Bayard was the wife of Samuel Bayard, who was appointed by Washington agent of the United States in the British admiralty courts under the Jay treaty. She not only knew Washington, Franklin, Hamilton, Jay, and John Adams, but had frequently seen George the Third and his cabinet ministers, was well acquainted with the American and British generals, with one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and many other prominent men of both sides. Her "Journal" is a picture of life and manners as seen by a young American woman a century ago.

Behrens, Bertha, ["W. Heimburg," pseud.] In the depths. [Also] The Godmother. [Also] Ursula. [Also] Our Mannie; tr. by Kate Dykers. Chic., E. A. Weeks & Co., 1894. c. 228 p. D. (The Marguerite ser., no. 20.) pap., 25 c. [1007]
Four stories of German life.

Björnson, Björnstjerne. A gauntlet: being the Norwegian drama "En Hanske;" tr. into English by Osman Edwards. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894. 13+151 p. por. S. cl., $1.50. [1008]

The play gives an excellent picture of Norwegian family life. It raises the question, "How far is society justified in ordaining one moral code for men, another for women?"

Black, W. Stand fast, Craig-Royston! New [uniform] and rev. ed. N. Y., Harper, 1894. 4+408 p. S. cl., 80 c. [1009]

Blossom, H. M., jr. The documents in evidence. St. Louis, Mo., Buxton & Skinner, 1894. c. '93. unp. F. pap., $1.50. [1010]

Through a clever correspondence between three people, a bright little romance is evolved. The "make-up" of the volume is more important than the story, being unique in its way. The eight letters which tell the story, some newspapers clippings, and some verses, "the documents in evidence," are given in fac-simile; in each letter appears a characteristic handwriting, on a perfect sheet of note or letter paper, with monogram or business heading, etc. Each document is fastened to a sheet of stiff paper, the letter being complete in its folds, not printed on the stiff sheets, which are left blank on one side, and enclosed in a paper cover, the design of which includes the envelopes of the letters in fac-simile, bills for flowers and bon-bons, etc. The whole is enclosed in an official envelope with an official red seal, and tied with red tape. Makes a good valentine, or a souvenir for other occasions.

Blow, Susan E. Symbolic education: a commentary on Froebel's "Mother play." N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 18+251 p. D. international education ser., no. 36. $1.50.

A commentary on one of the most important of Froebel's works—Mutter-Spiel und Knetlieder—which was published fifteen years after "The education of the child" and gives the fruitage of Froebel's long thinking and experimenting. Kindergartners will find this a help in the study of Froebel's work. Contents: Froebism: Development: The childhood of the race: symbolism of childhood: The meaning of play: Lady Gairfowl; Pattern experiences; Vertical education.

*Bonar, Ja. The intellectual virtues: being a lecture delivered in June, 1893, at Ecce Hall, Strand, to the United Philosophical Societies of University Extension students in West London. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 23 p. 12°, cl., net, 30 c.

Bramhall, Mrs. Mae St. John. The weaver of Japan; il. by C. S. Weldon. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 5+137 p. S. cl., $1. [1011]

A couleur-de-rose description of the Japanese from babyhood to its school days; its quaint dress, quaint ways, its play methods, and study notes, and the queer Japanese customs which surround it, charmingly pictured by both pen and pencil; the sketches in the text are quaintly pretty.

Briscoe, Margaret Sutton. Links in a chain. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., 1893 [1894]. 227 p. S. cl., $1. [1012]

A reticent, noble nature is illustrated through five "links in a chain." The "links" might stand for five different stories, though together they make a perfect history of a man's disinterested love for a rich, heartless woman. Two of the chapters, "A light" and "His I. O. U." appeared in the Century; the author of "Perchance to dream."

Bryant, W. M. Ethics and the new education. Chic., S. C. Griggs & Co., 1894. 49 p. sq. S. pap., 25 c. [1013]

Bryant, W. M. A syllabus of ethics. Chic., S. C. Griggs & Co., 1894. c. 3-82 p. sq. pap., 25 c. [1014]

Cobb, Sylvanus, jr. A love-match: a novel. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, [1894.] c. 2-272 p. D. (The popular ser., no. 20.) pap., 25 c. [1015]

*Cooke, Rev. G. A. The history and song of Deborah (Judges IV. and V.). N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 57 p. 16°, pap., 50 c. [1016]

Cooley, Leroy C. Laboratory studies in elementary chemistry. N. Y., American Book Co., [1894.] 144 p. il. D. cl., 50 c. [1017]

Coolidge, L. Arthur, and Reynolds, J. A. The show at Washington. Wash. D. C., Washington Pub. Co., 1406 G St., 1894. c. 2+241 p. T. cl., $1; pap., 50 c. [1018]

Brief newspaper paragraphs, describing prominent events.

* In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk, and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

man in Washington; the authors are the Washington correspondents of the New York Recorder and Boston Advertiser.

Drandall, O. A. The currency primer. Se-dalia, Mo., Dexter Book and Paper Co., 1894. c. 56 p. nar. S. pap., 25 c. [1031]

Beginning with "What is money?" gives categor-ically information about the currency, banks, corpora-tions, etc.

Orockett, S. R. The Stickit minister and some common men. [New cheaper ed.] N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 288 p. D. cl., $1.50. [1022]

Fourteen short stories, all relating to Scotch minis-ters, and many of them telling of inspiring self-sacrifice and devotion to humanity. The author has spark-ling humor and deep pathos. He dedicates his book to Robert Louis Stevenson, and says the stories were all written with him in mind, and a promise made to read them all, to which he holds his friend. A "stickit minister" is a student of theology who has not suc-ceeded in graduating, but is allowed to do duty in out-of-the-way places. The reasons for failure involve some searching questions in life and character.

Curtis, G. W. Orations and addresses of George William Curtis; ed. by C. Eliot Norton. V. 3, Historical and memorial addresses. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 5+407 p. por. O. cl., $3.50. [1023]

This volume includes the following addresses: "Ma-jor-General John Sedgwick," "The soldier's monu-ment" (Pittsfield, Mass.), "The Society of the Army of the Potomac," "Centennial celebration of Concord fight," "The centennial celebration," "Burgoyne's surrender," "The unveiling of the statue of Wash-ington," "The Washington memorial arch," "Charles Sumner," "Garfield," "Wendell Phillips," "Robert Burns," "William Cullen Bryant," and "James Russell Lowell."

Da Porto, Luigi. Juliet and Romeo; from the Italian; il. by Marold; with introd. by W. J. Rolfe. Bost., Joseph Knight Co., 1894. c. 93. 6+158 p. il. T. (World clas-sics ser.) cl., $1. [1024]

Luigi Da Porto's novel is the original of the Veronese story of "Romeo and Juliet," which Shakespeare has made immortal. It was afterwards amplified by others, in English versions, from which Shakespeare probably got his plot, but the "Juliet and Romeo" here given is the original story, first published in Italian in the early part of the sixteenth century. An account of Da Porto is given, and also of the various versions of the story in Italian and English.

Darnell, H. F., D.D. A four-leaved clover. N. Y., T. Whittaker, [1894.] unsp. obl. Fe. pap., 20 c. [1025]

Four short poems

Davies, E., D.D., comp. Other men's minds; or, seven thousand choice extracts on his-tory, science, philosophy, religion, etc., selected from the standard authorship of ancient and modern times, and classified in alphabetical order. New ed. N. Y., F. Warne & Co., 1894. 12, cl., reduced to $2. [1026]

Del Testa, T. Gherardi. L' oro el' orpello: commedia in due atti; with English notes by C. H. Thurber. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1893 [1894.] c. 3-68 p. D. (Heath's modern language ser., Italian.) pnp., 25 c. [1027]

Directory of architects, giving every archi-tect's address in the United States; also a classified directory of where everything builders use is made. Springfield, Mass., Clark W. Bryan Co., 1894. 8, cl., $2. [1028]

Donahoe, D. J. Idyls of Israel, Ct., and other poems. 2d ed. Middletown, Ct., Lucian R. Hazen, 1894. c. '88. 6-235 p. S. cl., 75 c. [1029]

Duncan, Rob. B. Old settlers. Indianapolis, Ind., The Bowen-Merrill Co., 1894. 28 p. O. (Indiana Historical Society publications, v. 2, no. 10.) pap., 50 c. [1030]

Four papers describing pioneer life in Indiana.

Dunn, Jacob Piatt. Documents relating to the French settlements on the Wabash. Indianapolis, Ind., The Bowen-Merrill Co., 1894. 3-40 p. O. (Indiana Historical So-ciety publications, v. 2, no. 11.) pap., 50 c. [1031]

These papers relate to Vincennes and the Wabash country, and more or less to the entire Ohio Valley. They almost cover the period of English possession of this part of the United States, the first being the last orders of the last French commandant of Post Vin-cennes, and the last being a letter of the last English commandant.

Dunn, Jacob Piatt. Slavery petitions and papers. Indianapolis, Ind., The Bowen-Merrill Co., 1894. 87 p. O. (Indiana Histori-cal Society publications, v. 2, no. 12.) pap., 50 c. [1032]

The petitions to Congress from Northwest and Indi-ana Territories for the suspension of the sixth article of compact of the ordinance of 1787, and the admission of slavery to the territory, together with the counter petitions, the reports on them, and the accompanying documents.

Ellis, Griffith Ogden. Quizzer, no. 6; being questions and answers on contracts for students preparing for admission to the bar, or for advanced standing in law schools, or for review in connection with text-books and lectures. Detroit, Mich., The Collec-tor Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 105 p. (interleaved blank for notes.) D. (The quizzer ser.) pap., 50 c. [1033]

Eschstruth, Nataly v. (Baroness.) A prin-cess of the stage: a novel; from the Ger-man, by Elise L. Lathrop; il. by Ja. Fagan. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, 1894. c. 4-800 p. D. (Ledger lib., no. 105.) cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c. [1034]

Prince Gregory Sobolefskoi, the chamberlain of the czar, falls into disfavor with the latter, on account of his marriage with a popular actress. After Vera Czakaroff becomes the Princess Sobolefskoi, she set-tles in Moscow, but ennu and a slight misunderstand-ing bring about a separation, which is followed by the supposed death of Vera and the tragic death of the prince. Their heir is the hero of the story, which deals with his sad history. The time is that of the Franco-Prussian War.

Ferguson, (Lady —.) Life of the Right Rev. William Reeves, D.D., Lord Bishop of Down, Connor, and Dromore. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893 [1894.] 5+210 p. por. O. cl., $2. [1035]

An appendix contains a bibliography of the works of William Reeves, D.D. They treat of almost every known subject, and cover fourteen pages.

Fluke, J. Edward Livingston Youmans, in-terpreter of science for the people: a sketch of his life; with selections from his pub-lished writings and extracts from his cor-respondence with Spencer, Huxley, Tyndall, and others. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 6+597 p. por. O. cl., $2. [1036]

The late Dr. Youmans is best known through his contributions to the Popular Science Monthly, he was the founder of this magazine, and its editor for twenty-eight years; it was through its pages that he in-troduced Spencer, Tyndall, Huxley and other scientists to an American audience, he was also the originator and editor of the International Scientific Series. His life and correspondence are a record of the scientific progress of this country during the past quarter of a century. He was born in the town of Coeymans, Al-bany Co., N. Y., on the 31 of June, 1821, and died in January of 1887. A list of his works, covering a page, is given. The chief ones are his "Class-book of chemistry" and "Handbook of household science."

Foot, S., and Hook, Theodore. Bon-mots of Samuel Foot and Theodore Hook; ed. by Walter Jerrold; with grotesques by Aubrey Beardsley. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 192 p. 18°, cl., 75 c. [1037]

Francis, H. R. Junius revealed, by his surviving grandson. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894. 6+82 p. O. cl., $1.75. [1038]

Contains a fac-simile of a document in the possession of the author, the existence of which has been known to very few individuals, and which forms a connecting link, hitherto wanting, in the chain of evidence pointing to Sir Philip Francis as the author of "Junius."

Goode, Ja. B. The belle of Wyandotte. Kansas City, Mo., The Kansas City Novel Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 160 p. D. (Goode's monthly stories ser., no. 2.) pap., 25 c. [1039]

An American story of the west.

Goode, Ja. B. The story of a life. Kansas City, Mo., The Kansas City Novel Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 2-158 p. D. (Goode's monthly stories ser., no. 1.) pap., 25 c. [1040]

An American story of the west.

Gospel (The) according to Peter: a study by the author of "Supernatural religion." N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894. 3+139 p. O. cl., $2. [1041]

An examination of the interesting fragment discovered in the sepulchre of a monk in the cemetery of Akhmim, the ancient Panopolis, in Upper Egypt. It is identified with the gospel quoted by the patristic writers of the second century, and condemned as Docetic by Serapion. Its relation to the canonical gospels is carefully considered, with the result that its independence seems to be established.

Goyen, P. Principles of English composition through analysis and synthesis: a textbook for the senior classes of elementary schools and for pupil-teachers. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 123 p. 16°, cl., net, 60 c. [1042]

Harper, W. R., and Burgess, I. B. Inductive studies in English grammar. N. Y., American Book Co., [1894.] 96 p. D. cl., 40 c. [1043]

This little book is a modest attempt to secure better preparation for the language work of the high school by a scientific and thought-inspiring method of presenting English grammar, by a reduction of the number of facts presented, to the few actually essential, by increased emphasis on certain matters often neglected but essential to any real mastery of the subject, and by adapting the terminology and method of presentation more closely to that used in German and Latin grammars. These "Inductive studies" were printed three years ago, and bound for ready reference with the "Inductive Latin primer" of the same authors. They have been now carefully revised and somewhat enlarged.

Hume, D. An inquiry concerning the human understanding, and an inquiry concerning the principles of morals; reprinted from the posthumous ed. of 1777; and ed. with an introd., comparative tables of contents, and an analytical index by L. A. Selby-Bigge. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 349 p. 8°, cl., net, $2. [1044]

Johnson's gardener's dictionary. In 8 pts. Pts. 6 and 7. New ed. rev. and enl. by C. H. Wright and D. Dewar. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 8°, pap., ea., 40 c. [1045]

Jókai, Maurice. In love with the czarina, and other stories; from the original Hungarian with the author's special permission, by L. Felbermann. N. Y., F. Warne & Co., [1894.] 5-156 p. por. D. (Library of continental authors, no. 10.) pap., 50 c.

The initial story is founded on an episode of Russian history; the scene opens before the death of Peter the Great. Catherine II. is the heroine, and Ufa Pugachev the hero. The time is the eighteenth century. The titles of the four other stories are: The Tartar; Valdivia; Bizeban; and The somnambulist. The short stories belong to the earliest writings. The translator gives an interesting sketch of Jókai and his writings.

Kahlden, C. v. Methods of pathological histology; tr. and ed. by H. Morley Foster, M.D.; with an introd. by G. S. Woodhead, M.D. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 171 p. 8°, cl., net, $1.40. [1046]

"It is scarcely necessary to say that on questions of literary criticism, which in no respect, or at most remotely, concern exposition, this commentary says little or nothing," the writer states in his preface, and further in speaking of the aim of the epistle "It seems plain that when the epistle is studied from within its deepest spiritual element, it shows us the apostle fully minded of the largest aspects of the life and work of the church, and also, and yet more, occupied with the problem of the relation of the believing sinner to God. The question of personal salvation was never, by St. Paul, forgotten in that of Christian policy."

Plunkett, Mrs. H. M. Josiah Gilbert Holland. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 8+208 p. por. il. D. cl., $1.50. [1067]

Mrs. Plunkett was a life-long and intimate friend of Dr. Holland's, and had exceptional opportunities for studying his personality and character. She has drawn largely upon Dr. Holland's record of his own aspirations and achievements, thus giving her work an agreeable autobiographic flavor, and presenting an attractive portrait of one of the most popular of American writers. Estimates of others concerning him and his works are also given. Dr. Holland, of course, will be recognized as the author of "Bitter-sweet," "Katrina," and the "Timothy Titcomb letters."

Putnam, G. I. On the offensive: an army story. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 5+297 p. D. cl., $1.25. [1068]

A story of a western army post; with realistic pictures of military life, which include skirmishes with the Indians, there is a pleasant romance. By the author of "In blue uniform."

Riggs, Arthur. A practical treatise on the steam-engine. 2d ed. N. Y., Spon & Chamberlain, 1894. 24+379 p. il. sq. Q. cl., $10. [1069]

Schmidt, E. R. Abriss der Englischen und Amerikanischen literatur. Phil., Schäfer & Koradi, 1893 [1894.] 32 p. D. pap., 15 c. [1070]

An abstract of English and American literature from the 4th to the 19th century.

Scott, Clement. The new Victoria cross: five popular pictures of England's heroes toiling day by day. N. Y., G. Routledge & Sons, 1894. c. 8 p. D. pap., 25 c. [1071]

Six poems, "The new Victoria cross," "The miner's drama," "The lay of the man in blue," "The fireman's shout," "The engine-driver's story," and "The tale of the lifeboat man." The first is introductory to the others, the writer asks that a new "Victoria cross" may be granted by Queen Victoria to the brave men who do heroic deeds in humble ranks of life; some of these heroes are celebrated in the remaining verses.

Shaw, Rev. F. The Book of Revelation: a course of sermons. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 553 p. 8°, cl., $2.25. [1072]

Shea, G. Memoir concerning the Seabury commemoration held at St. Paul's Cathedral, London, Nov. 14, 1884; printed chiefly from a manuscript monograph introductory to a unique volume in the possession of George Shea, the pages of which are inset with all the original correspondence and other proof of that historical event. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. 8°, cl., $1. [1073]

Springateed, Anne Frances. The expert waitress: a manual for the pantry, kitchen, and dining-room. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 5+181 p. 8°, cl., $1. [1074] of the common English version of the canonical books, and every occurrence of each word in regular order; with a comparative concordance of the authorized and revised versions, including the American variations; also brief dictionaries of the Hebrew and Greek words of the original, with references to the English words. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1894. c. '90. 1340+262+128+79 p. F. cl., $6; hf. rus., $8; hf. tky. mor., $10. [1076]

The main concordance covers 1340 pages of three columns each. The words are arranged in strict alphabetical order, and in one continuous series without omissions or duplications; and all the passages in which they are found are set down in like manner in single file regularly according to the respective books, chapters and verses from Genesis to Revelation, without requiring the student to look under separate heads for any occurrence. Absolutely every word is given with all the passages in which it occurs. To every English word is a figure reference to the Greek, Hebrew, and Chaldee dictionaries which complete the work, where the original meaning or derivation of the word may be found; these dictionaries may be consulted without any previous knowledge of the language. This is an entirely original work, and not a compilation of those that have gone before; Dr. Strong has spent more than thirty years in preparing it, and has had the aid of more than one hundred assistants. All possible pains have been taken to avoid errors. It is a monument to the industry, ingenuity, and Biblical scholarship of Dr. Strong.

Sudermann, Hermann. Regine; from the German, by Hettie E. Miller. Chic., E. A. Weeks & Co., 1894. c. 195 p. (The Marguerite ser., no. 23.) pap., 25 c. [1077]

The story tells of the year after Napoleon had been confined at Elba. A German soldier, upon his return home from the field, hears that his father has just died, and that because he had been known to give information to the French the church and state refused him burial. After this is settled he goes to his forsaken home, and there finds a half savage girl, who has faithfully served his father and now becomes his slave. Their lonely, wild, silent life, ostracized from all village society, is artistically told.

Thaxter, Mrs. Celia. An island garden; with pictures and illuminations by Childe Hassam. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 7+126 p. O. cl., $1. [1078]

Mrs. Thaxter has spent a large part of her life on Appledore, the largest of the Isles of Shoals, and has a flower garden by her cottage which is one of the chief attractions of the islands and the wonder of the thousands who visit them every summer. In compliance with repeated importunities to tell how she succeeds so marvellously, she has written this book, which has quite enough practical information to aid the few whom information in such matters helps, and yet is charmingly permeated by the poetry of the flowers, the islands, and good literature. The illustrations reproduce the beauty and the blazing splendors of the garden, and the corner within the cottage where the hostess welcomes and charms those whom she delights to honor.

Ward, Mrs. Mary A., [Mrs. T. Harper Ward.] Marcella. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 2 v., 4+447: 1+498 p. D. cl., $2.

"Marcella" is primarily a love-story, with the interest centering in the heroine, an intelligent, passionate, independent young girl, burning with her of social injustice under which she and others have suffered and still suffer. She is the child of a bitter but disgraced father, and of a mother who seems to have little natural affection for her. Two years of her life are lived independently in London, studying and associating with young Bohemians of social enthusiasms. Then her reformed father inherits a fortune in Park, and she rises from what is almost poverty to comparative luxury, and to the distinction of being "Miss Boyce of Mellor Park." Her father's passion follows him here, and she finds herself snubbed. She takes refuge in reforms, and applies, unsuited, her socialistic principles. A peculiar crisis in her affairs sends her back to London and to normal conditions. While the development of Marcella's unsocial nature is the principal theme, other characters from the extreme points of social life are present, and the work is as rich in intellectual discussion of the many social problems now disturbing thoughtful people, as were "David Grieve" and "Robert Mere."

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

APRIL 7, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS AND ITS ADMINISTRATION OF THE COPYRIGHT BUSINESS.

IN the current Lippincott there is an interview between Julian Hawthorne and A. R. Spofford, Librarian of Congress, in which some interesting facts relative to the organization and workings of the Congressional Library are elicited. Mr. Spofford assumed his present position in 1861, but it was not until nine years later that the library was made the central copyright depository of the nation. Before that time clerks in the district courts in the several States had registered local copyrights, but the records had been kept most unsystematically, and it was no easy task to obtain proper evidence of copyright from the districts. After the passage of the law, however, the work of collecting the local records was vigorously begun, and they are now complete from the last decade of the eighteenth century up, with the exception of a few in the South, which were destroyed during the war.

The total number of books in the Congressional Library is about 650,000, exclusive of pamphlets, musical publications, etc. It is commonly said that the collection begins with Jefferson's sale of his 6000 volumes; but this is incorrect. In 1851 there was a fire in the library, which destroyed some 30,000 volumes—more than three-fifths of the entire contents—so that the collection as it now stands dates back only about forty years. The books are all catalogued, and a card catalogue of the contents of the library is kept. The duplicates received yearly number about twelve thousand, not including the copyright duplicates of current literature. These are stored in the basement and used for purposes of exchange. No volume in the library can be sold, but it is permitted to exchange duplicates for other books of equal value which are not in the library. Mr. Spofford speaks strongly of the paltry appropriation allowed for the purchase of books. The original grant for this purpose was $15,000 a year, but this was later cut down to $11,000—a sum absurdly inadequate for the needs of a national library. This is fully recognized in England, where the British Museum has a regular annual grant of $80,000, besides special grants whenever it is desired to purchase an important collection or library. Nearly all the books added to the Congressional Library are purchased through catalogues, of which Mr. Spofford is a diligent reader.

Since the passage of the international copyright law the work of the library force has been greatly increased, and at least three additional clerks are needed to deal with the copyright business alone. Mr. Spofford attends personally to the entire mail; of course, most of the letters are applications for copyright, which can be answered by printed blanks. Many applications are refused as not lawful subjects for copyright, and the fees are returned to the applicants. The dollars received for legitimate copyright—averaging about $150 daily—are turned over to the Treasury day by day. Many persons apply for copyright of names only, and few seem to be aware that a title cannot be copyrighted. "The law is," says Mr. Spofford, "that the substance, the literary contents, of a book or publication may be protected by copyright, but not the name. You may call your book 'Vanity Fair,' or 'The Quick or the Dead,' if you please, only you must be careful not to put the original story, whatever it may be, between the covers."

The number of foreign applications received is slowly growing, though the law is hampered by the restrictive "manufacturing clause." Much commonplace foreign matter is not copyrighted, and therefore can still be printed free. The Canadians have steadfastly refused reciprocity in copyright, and American books cannot be copyrighted in the Dominion. American books, according to Mr. Spofford, "are not protected in Canada, in spite of the British assurances regarding the attitude of 'British Possessions' towards the matter. Perhaps the President's prerogative may be invoked in that copyright entries—often causing serious loss and invalidation of copyright—are due solely to the neglect of the government to provide enough clerks for the needful work. The staff of the national library is ridiculously small, compared even with the employees of the public libraries of our large cities. The entire clerical force allowed the Librarian of Congress for administering the great national library and the entire copyright business of the country is twenty-nine, and the vast correspondence entailed by the receipt of nearly 70,000 applications for copyright annually, is conducted by a force of less than a dozen persons. These are facts that call for speedy reform, in justice to the publishing interests of the country alone, and it is sincerely to be hoped that with the transfer to the new national library building—if not before—Congress will take action to place the Library of Congress upon an adequate and efficient footing.

It is reported that the customs authorities of New York have decided that Zola's "La Terre" is no longer too indecent for admission into this State. The Massachusetts customs authorities were either more enlightened, or had less compunctions in such matters, for while their New York confères remorselessly confiscated the book, whether in the vernacular or translation, the former permitted it to pass without question. The State authorities of Massachusetts however, seem to differ from the Federal authorities, and live closer to Puritan ideas of propriety. As we go to press we receive news however, the printing of English creased rapidly to meet, though in the growing demand, and from 1526 when the King James "authorized" appeared—no less than eleven different translations had been made; while in 1600 there were 326 different editions of the Bible printed in England.

The first portion of the Scriptures in the English language was Tyndale's translation, in 1526, of which but two copies are to be in existence—one in the library of Trinity College, the other in the library of the Cathedral; in both the title-page reads: "William Tyndale, the translator, of Melksham Court, Gloucestershire, he studied at Oxford and Cambridge, a preacher, and in 1522 formed the idea of translating the Bible into English; years later he went to Hamburg, and Wittenberg, where he joined Luther, and finished his translation of the New Testament. Tyndale's translation, which was the first Latin-Greek folio edition of Erasmus, 1519 at Basle, shows clearly the influence of Luther's work; indeed, he transferred a portion of Luther's introduction and marginal references. Its publication was attended with considerable difficulty, and had arranged with Peter Quentel, a printer, to bring out a quarto edition, but work had proceeded only as far as the letter 'K' when it was prohibited by the authorities of Cologne. Tyndale fled to Worms, where the work was completed by Peter Schaeffer, a second son of the famous Mayence printer of Fust; of the incomplete quarto edition but one fragment is left—now in the Grenville library of the British Museum.

This was the first New Testament in English. It is a small octavo, con-

The library of the British Museum is the only one known. As this edition contained several arbitrary alterations by George Foye, his assistant, Tyndale brought out, in the same year, another edition revised by himself and printed by Martin Emperawe (Martin de Keyser) at Antwerp, in 12°; of this the copy in the Chetham library, Manchester, is the only one known. The last edition revised by Tyndale himself was printed in 1534-35, and is known as the "G. H. Edition," from the signature of the Antwerp bookseller, Gotfridus Dumaëus (Gotfried van der Daghgen), for whom it was printed by Martin de Keyser. Soon after, on May 23, 1535, Tyndale was arrested as a heretic in Amsterdam, and sentenced to death. On October 6, 1536, he was hanged, and his body burnt. In the same year the first folio edition of his Testament was printed by Robert Valentine in London, being the first edition printed in England. In 1538 the first Latin-English New Testament was printed in quarto by Robert Rodman; this is notable for a printer's error in II. Corinthians x. ii., which reads "think on his wife" for "think on this wise."

Tyndale had fallen a victim to the severe law introduced by Henry VIII. in 1530, which prohibited, under penalty of death, the printing in England of any book not approved by the authorities. Three years later, at the time of the importation of Tyndale's translation, the law was extended to prohibit the importation of any book printed and bound abroad, but forbidding printers to raise their prices on that account.

STOLEN PEEPS.

From the Washington Star.

"I HAVE my opinion of a certain class of people," said an up-town newsdealer not long ago.

He was one of those churlish newsdealers who have a sign on their news-stands like this:

GENTLEMEN
ON THE STAND.
BUY PAPERS IF YOU WANT TO READ THEM.

"I call them 'peepers,'" continued the newsdealer. "They come in here regularly, I know them as well as I know my mother's face. I should recognize them if I met them at the front door of hades. I know all these fellows who come in here and paw over the papers without buying. But the 'peepers' I know best of all. I never see one that does not fascinate me. I can't keep my eyes off of him. He holds me spellbound. I can look at one of these ordinary free readers when he comes in and fingers over all the dailies and eight or ten dollars' worth of illustrated weeklies and magazines, and after noticing who it is, I can go on with my writing or other work. But the 'peeper' commands my whole attention. Did you ever see one? No? Well, he is an individual who seems to have plenty of time and very little money. He goes over the papers and magazines systematically. He knows just what days we get each magazine, and he is here promptly to look at them. He is especially fond of pictures, and is as greedy as a child for them. It is his mania that distinguishes him from the common news-stand sponge. He is so thoroughly controlled by his evil habit that he is not content to look at the pictures on the open and cut pages of a magazine. He must see those that are inside the folded pages. He dare not take out his pocket-knife and cut the leaves, and I have not yet provided my counter with free paper-knives. So he tips the magazine up and peeps down in between at the folded leaves, and takes a slanting look at the pictures within. Now and then in his surreptitious enjoyment of what is not costing him a cent he tears the pages just a little accidentally. Then with a start he shuts the magazine, slaps it down on the counter and gets out of the shop as fast as he can—probably to go to some other place and continue his enjoyment of stolen delights."

THE FRENCH BOOK TRADE.

M. HENRI BELIN, the president of the Cercle de la Librairie (Booksellers' Club), at the annual general meeting held in Paris on the 2d ult., read a report on the work of the club and on the state of the French book trade, containing passages of more than local interest.

M. Belin referred, amongst other matters, to the crisis in the French book trade, the existence of which, he said, cannot be denied. To remedy the deplorable condition of the retail booksellers, two syndicates (or, as we should perhaps say, trades unions) had been formed; one of retail booksellers, the other of publishers. These two unions, without revolutionizing the relations between publishers and booksellers, have succeeded in gradually formulating arrangements satisfactory to the reasonable wishes of the retail booksellers. Still much remains to be done; but one fact of the greatest importance to the welfare and future prospects of the trade is the good feeling and readiness shown by the publishers to meet the wishes of the retailers and to assist them in reducing the ruinous discounts allowed to the public. M. Belin announced that an international exhibition of books will be held in Paris from July to November of the current year, at which the Paris Booksellers' Club will show a specimen of each of the French book products of the present day, methodically classified according to the various kinds of works exhibited. This exhibition promises to be one of the most brilliant of its sort that has hitherto been attempted.

THE AMERICAN CONQUEST OF ENGLAND.

From the London Figaro.

A LITTLE book is to be published here on "First Editions of American Authors." From this one may fairly assume that the popularity of trans-Atlantic writers in England is now considerable. Not very many years ago Longfellow, Poe, Emerson, Hawthorne, Lowell, "Mark Twain," "Artemus Ward," and "Josh Billings" were almost all the American authors in whom the British public took any interest. How different is the situation now! American books swarm in our literary markets, and their writers, like so many English men and women, have a reputation on both sides of the Atlantic. Every day the rapprochement between the two great literatures and the two great reading publics grows closer and closer.

G. W. CHILDS AS AN ADVERTISER.

Few men of his time, excepting possibly the great showman, P. T. Baroum, recognized the value of, and understood how to arrange a "boom" that would tend to bring his business prominently before the public as did Mr. Childs. As an illustration of this we quote the following incident related by a prominent Philadelphian and intimate friend of Mr. Childs:

"It is a curious fact and one which has, perhaps naturally, been left out of the obituary notices of Mr. Childs, that the first great success which he ever made in the business of publishing was through his cleverness in arranging and 'booming' a funeral, or rather a series of funeral ceremonies.

"It has been widely published that one of the first conspicuous hits he made as a publisher was with the volume on Arctic exploration written by Dr. Elisha K. Kane, and it so happened that just about the time the book was issued the author died, either in Havana or while returning from that city to New Orleans.

"Mr. Childs at once saw the value of making as much of a public event as possible out of the return of the deceased explorer's remains to Philadelphia, and he interested so many men of prominence and influence in the plan to honor Dr. Kane's memory that the progress of the body to Philadelphia was made a public event, and not only was there a demonstration in New Orleans, whence the funeral car started, but memorial ceremonies were held at a number of other cities along the route to the Quaker City, and the final funeral held there was one of the most imposing and elaborate which had ever been seen in the United States.

"The civic authorities joined hands with the State militia in doing honor to the dead voyager into Arctic seas, and there were in the line of the procession both soldiers and sailors of the national government, firemen, Free Masons, and other secret societies. As it was exploited far and wide in the newspapers the resulting advertising of the dead explorer's book was prodigious, and its sales increased to an extent which taxed the capacity of Mr. Childs' publishing house for several months."

OBITUARY NOTES.

ROBERT CLARK, the senior member of the well-known Edinburgh firm of publishers and printers, R. & R. Clark, died on the 17th ult., aged sixty-nine.

PROF. WILLIAM ROBERTSON SMITH, librarian of the University of Cambridge, died in Cambridge on the 31st ult., aged forty-eight years. He was one of the most famous "heretics" of modern days, and a foremost exponent of the "higher criticism" of the Bible.

CHARLES EDOUARD BROWN-SÉQUARD, the eminent physiologist and physician, died at Paris on Sunday, April 1. He was born in the Island of Mauritius in 1817. He visited the United States several times. His writings are dispersed in a great number of pamphlets and memoirs. His most important works in book form are "Lectures on Paralysis of the Lower Extremities" and "Lectures on Functional Affections."

MRS. JANE G. AUSTIN, whose best-known novels—"A Nameless Nobleman," "Standish of Standish," "Dr. Le Baron and His Daughter," and "Betty Alden"—have gained her a literary reputation, died in Boston on March 30. Mrs. Austin's accession of sides came over in the Mayflower, and is shown in her books how thoroughly she understood Puritan character and life and her mother's great-grandfather was the "nameless nobleman" of her most artistic work. From 1860 to 1870 she lived in Concord, and was a mate in the Alcott coterie. Mrs. Austin was about fifty-five years of age. Almost all her published works are now on Houghton Mifflin Co.'s list.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

PAUL LEICESTER FORD has edited a new and as far as possible, complete edition of the poems of John Dickinson, the "Penman of the Revolution."

FREDERICK HILL, a brother of Rowland Hill, the English Post-Office reformer, who is now in his ninety-first year, has just issued an interesting autobiography. He took part in the Jubilee of George III., in 1810.

GEORGE EGERTON, whose acquaintance with Scandinavian literature is indicated in his notes, has in hand a translation of Olausson's "Tolke og Seere," a volume of critical essays, which will appear under the title of "Interpreters and Seers." George Egerton is engaged also on a vocabulary of fishing terms in four languages.

"BRICK" POMEROY tells how he discovered "Peck's Bad Boy" in the writer of clerical graphs in an obscure country newspaper. Pomeroy was then working on The Democrat at La Crosse, Wis., and he wrote to George Peck (now the Governor of Wisconsin) and him $25 a week to go to work for him. The next day he received this telegram: "Is your offer quicker than instantly. For Heaven's sake don't withdraw it!"

RICHARD LE GALLIENNE, whose new "The Religion of a Literary Man," has made him to be much talked about of late, has Irish, French, Scotch, and Irish blood in his veins. He was born in Liverpool, was educated at college there, and at sixteen was articled to a firm of accountants of that city. He kept books by day and wrote verses in the evening, and while an accountant's clerk published on his own expense "My Lady's Sonnets." He was known to Mr. Wilson Barrett, the actor, and he reached London and a congenial literary sphere. He is now devoting himself to literature, having published, besides "The Religion of a Literary Man," two volumes of verses, "Studies on the 'Characteristics of Meredith'" and the really delightful "Book of Narcissus."

IMPORTATION OF UNCOPYRIGHTED LITERARY GRAPHS.—Attorney-General Olney has decided that the International Copyright act does not prohibit the importation of uncopyrighted literary graphs, although copies of copyrighted pairs

BUSINESS NOTES.

CAMERON, TEX.—George Thomas, bookseller, had his stock damaged by fire.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—The Buxton & Skinner Stationery Company, of St. Louis, has opened a branch here at 607 Delaware Street, with E. A. Harrison, manager, who is well known to the trade, having been connected with it in Kansas City for over ten years.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—The Louisville Book Company, booksellers and stationers, have had their stock burned. Loss, 50 per cent., and insurance, $17,000.

NEW YORK CITY.—Franz Hanfstaengel, publisher of fine art books, etc., will remove May from Twenty-third Street to 114 Fifth Avenue.

RICHFIELD SPRINGS, N. Y.—A. L. Brockway, bookseller, has been succeeded by W. H. Blauvelt.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

BANGS & Co. will sell on the 16th inst. an invoice of English remailers, including many desirable books in quantities consigned for absolute sale by John Grant, of Edinburgh.

THE LIBRARY ASSOCIATION of Portland, Oregon, is trying to gather copies of all books and pamphlets, descriptive and historical, relating to Oregon and to Oregon institutions. Any information as to the whereabouts of such material will be thankfully received by Daniel F. W. Bursch, the librarian.

EDWIN L. SHUMAN, of the Chicago Journal staff, has in press a volume entitled "Steps into Journalism," which treats of newspaper work as a more or less exact science, and lays down its laws in an informal way for beginners, local correspondents, and reporters. It attempts to answer, among other things, the burning question of the would-be contributor—why editors reject manuscripts.

A COUPLE of months ago it was alleged that the invoices of Raphael Tuck Sons' Company, limited, importers of lithographs, required investigation. It was stated at the time that these invoices indicated undervaluation. Collector Kilbreth instituted a rigorous investigation. The special agents inquired into the matter, and so did Assistant Secretary Charles S. Hamlin. It turns out now that there was no foundation whatever for the reports against the firm.

ELDON E. HAHN, with A. C. McClurg & Co., of Chicago, has patented what he calls "The Perfect Book and Paper Cleaning Powder," which must certainly prove a boon to the bookseller and librarian. It is claimed for this powder that it will clean engravings, photographs, prints, etc., and clean and restore all white or light-tinted mounts, parchment, or vellum. The powder has been used at McClurg's during the fall and winter, and has given entire satisfaction.

DORCHESTER, MASS., according to the Literary Weekly, can claim the proud distinction of being the home of the first American novel, "The Power of Sympathy," by Sarah Wentworth Morton, published by Isaiah Thomas, Boston, in 1789. It is a forcibly told story of a painful domestic tragedy. Pulpit and press denounced it roundly at the time of its appearance, and succeeded in suppressing it, so that years not a single copy could be found. One was recently sold at auction by Libbie & Co., of Boston.

FREDERICK WARNE & Co. will immediately commence the publication of the Library of Natural History, the first instalments of which will compose "The Royal Natural History," to be edited by Richard Lydekker, who is already well known to naturalists as an able scientist and the author of several works on mammalia, etc.

VITAL economic questions of the day are treated by recognized authorities in "A Policy of Free Exchange," shortly to be issued by D. Appleton & Co., edited by Mr. Thomas Mackay, editor of "A Plea for Liberty," which was introduced by Mr. Herbert Spencer. Among the chapters of this important work are: "The Coming Industrial Struggle," by William Maitland; "National Workshops," by St. Loe Strachey; "The State in Relation to Railways," by W. M. Acworth; "The Principle of Progression in Taxation," by Bernard Mallet; and "The Law of Trade Combinations," by the Hon. Alfred Lyttelton.

JOEL MUNSSELL'S SONS, Albany, N. Y., have just issued a work entitled "The German Allied Troops in the American Revolution," by J. G. Rosengarten. The author describes, among other subjects, the winter campaign in New Jersey, battle of Brandywine, occupation of Philadelphia, battle of Germantown, Canadian campaigns, campaigns in Long Island, New York, Staten Island, etc., capture of Forts Clinton and Montgomery; accounts of Generals Burgoyne, Riedesel, Carleton, Clinton, Howe, Kuyphausen; march of prisoners to Virginia, and the later history of Germans serving in America; original reports, letters, etc.; regimental lists, lists of officers under Generals Howe, Clinton, and Carleton, carefully compiled from all sources, are also included.]

IRVING P. FOX, Boston, Mass., has put upon the market two new devices intended to facilitate and systematize the labors of book-keepers throughout the American commercial world. One is "Fox's Complete Draft-Book," with an appendix containing a list of banks and banking towns throughout the United States; and the other, "The G and F Daily Cash Balance Slip." In the draft-book are united under one cover the draft, letter to the cashier of the bank, and a complete list of banks alphabetically arranged, the drafts, letters, and stubs all on the same sheet, lithographed on the best quality of superfine paper. Six of the cash-books will cover the year, and in neat and handy shape give a valuable reference memorandum of the exact state of the cash on any specified day. A great improvement in the usual method of figuring on any old scrap which is thrown away, lost, or mislaid when most needed.

FOREIGN NOTES.

BLACKWOOD & SONS will publish at once a new volume by Miss Beatrice Harraden, entitled "In Varying Moods." The book will be uniform in size and price with "Ships that Pass in the Night," by the same author. Miss Harraden will contribute a short story to Blackwood for April, entitled "A Bird of Passage."

THE most powerful work of the Parisian literary season just passed has been "Demi-Vierges," by M. Marcel Prévost, a young novelist brought out by M. Brunetière, the new editor of the Revue des Deux Mondes. The book has even been compared with the works of M. Alphonse Daudet—rather high praise for a beginner to receive.

PUTTKAMMER & MÜHLBRECHT, Berlin, have published a reprint of an article by Otto Mühlbrecht on bibliography, which appeared in the Börsenblatt, entitled "Die Bibliographie im Dienste des Buchhandels" (Bibliography in the service of the book trade), in which the author gives his opinions and the reasons for them upon the most practical methods of compiling catalogues to be in constant use among booksellers.

T. FISHER UNWIN, London, has decided to issue a library parallel with the Pseudonym Library, in which the contributors will not disguise their names. The title of this new series will be The Autonym Library. In size and price it will be similar to its contemporary; but the cover and get-up will be different, and the edges will be cut. The publisher thinks that a certain number of the authors whom he would like to have included in the Pseudonym Library object to sinking their real names. The first volume of The Autonym Library, which will be issued shortly, is by F. Marion Crawford.

SWAN SONNENSCHN & CO. will shortly publish a semi-humorous account of a hunting-trip among the Red Indians of the Sioux Nation, by Price Collier, of Boston, now resident in England. The author, and also the artist who furnishes the illustrations, lived for several months on the plains of the Northwest, riding, shooting, and becoming familiar with the daily life of the Sioux Indians, who are almost the sole inhabitants of this particular part of the prairies. The book is written from the standpoint of one who has no political or sectarian prejudices, and pictures the Red Indian from the rather unusual point of view of the man of the world of literary tastes.

H. LE SOUDIER, Paris, hoping to remedy the misfortune of the French book trade in having had no year-book since the year 1888, when the "Annuaire de la Librairie Française" was discontinued, has begun the publication of "Agenda-Annuaire de la Librairie Française" (A yearly memorandum-book of the French book trade), that would seem a very handy book of practical information. It begins with the calendar for 1894, followed by a list of societies connected with the book trade arranged by locality; then an alphabetical list of publishers and booksellers with street addresses, repeated under localities, and again classified under the subjects of which the booksellers make specialities. Then follows a department of valuable information on money, postage, tariff, practical recipes, etc., then the advertisements, which are encouragingly numerous, and then about a fourth of the neat little volume is a blank memorandum-book in calendar style.

BERNHARD QUARITCH'S "Contributions toward a Dictionary of English Book-Collectors," pt. 5, embraces upwards of half a dozen collectors, and has a large theme in the famous Hamilton collection whose dispersal was the talk of 1883-84, and whose MSS. were bought by the Prussian government for $350,000. Some of these were afterwards disposed of in England, and of one, "a magnificent volume of the eighth century, written in gold uncials upon empurpled vellum, . . . formerly a gift to Henry VIII., and bearing the proofs of his ownership," Mr. Quaritch says: "It is now in a private library at Wego, on the margin of Lake Ontario, a comparative obscurity which does not alter the fact that Henry VIII.'s Golden Gospels are the most precious book in the whole New World. The MS. of the "Divina Commedia" of 1481, with Botticelli's illustrations, in the same collection, and now one of the treasures of the Berlin Museum, was valued at $25,000. A Swiss binding executed for James V. is the frontispiece of the present brochure.

PICK-UPS.

FROM THE WRONG SIDE OF THE COUNTER.—A bookseller somewhere in northern New York, who was trying to sell a Chambers' "Encyclopædia" instead of a "Britannica," which he did not have in stock, said that the American edition of the latter was nothing but a photograph anyway, and that the matter, compared with the original, was very poor indeed.—ALEPH.

BOOKS POSITIVELY GUARANTEED.—"Yes, you keep books here?" she asked as she entered a Detroit book-store and timidly glanced around.

"Yes'm, we keep books," replied the clerk, as he softly rubbed his hands together and wondered if they had sold the last copy of "Bessie Bessie, or, the heroine of Harper's Hills."

"I—I want a book," she continued, "but I want to look at the last page before I buy it."

"Certainly miss—certainly. We have no objection to your looking at all the pages if you wish. Have you bought a book here in which something was wrong with the last page?"

"No, sir; but a friend of mine bought a book in Chicago which ended by advising the reader to try somebody's liver purifier, and you don't know how dreadful she feels about it. Have you 'Paradise Lost'?"

"Yes'm."

"And will you guarantee that it doesn't lead to somebody's sarsaparilla?"

"I can't possibly believe that it does."

"How is Dickens? I want his 'Domby and Son,' but I'm afraid he's got in something about corn cures or porous plasters. Are you sure he hasn't?"

"Why, I never heard of such a thing in a standard book."

"Nor I, until lately. Shakespeare would be apt to have anything in about stomach bugs or headache cured in five minutes, now, wouldn't he?"

"I've read him a great deal, and I never met across any such thing. However, you may glance over that set and satisfy yourself."

"It would take too long," she sighed, as she glanced at the backs of the volumes. "I have sometimes thought I would like to read Homer's 'Iliad.' There is such a book, I believe?"

"Oh, yes."

"And can you guarantee it?"

"I can, ma'am—positively guarantee that you will find nowhere in that book the slightest reference to germs, microbes, bacteria, constipation, asthma, bronchitis, curvature of the spine, varicose veins, or indigestion."

"If there is—?"

"You can return it and get your money."

She took it and went away smiling and happy.—The Detroit Free Press.

The Rudolph Indexer Book

(Patented in the United States and all Foreign Countries)

Method of indexing is the same as that employed in the Rudolph Continuous Indexer.

The RUDOLPH INDEXER BOOK consists of a number of card-holders of heavy card-board with one or two columns on both sides. On the back edge of each card-holder are two double hinges by which means other card holders may be flexibly connected or disconnected.

Independent book-covers are furnished, and a book may thus be formed of one card-holder and later increased as desired. If the book becomes too bulky it may be separated and by adding covers two or more independent books formed.

The Rudolph Indexer Case.

(Patented in the United States and all Foreign Countries.)

Method of indexing is the same as that employed in the Rudolph Continuous Indexer.

The RUDOLPH INDEXER CASE consists of a series of card-holders placed on their edges in a drawer, and they may be turned as the pages of a book, exhibiting at each view 272 single-line entries.

We furnish the INDEXER CASE in one, two, four, six and eight drawers.

The capacity of each drawer is thirty card-holders. As both sides of the card-holders are used it is equal to 540 single-line entries.

The Rudolph Card Cutter.

(Patent Pending.)

This invention is for the purpose of cutting the entries or cards for insertion in the card-holders, but can be used for many other purposes.

It is very important that all the slips to be inserted in the card-holders be cut at perfect right angles, in order each entry will fit exactly to the others.

An unnecessary margin of only 1-32d of an inch on the top and 1-32d of an inch on the bottom of each card amount to 3/16th inches of waste space on each card-holder.

The cutter will cut cardboard where spacing between the printed or written lines is 1-64th of an inch.

THE DOLPH CONTINUOUS INDEXER.

TENTED IN THE UNITED STATES AND ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES.)

VIEW, SHOWING GLASS LID RAISED.)

(REAR VIEW, SHOWING DOOR OPEN.)

THE LIBRARIAN'S DESIDERATUM. THE MOST PERFECT INDEXER.

DOLPH INDEXER SYSTEM possesses many advantages which commend it to Publishers and Booksellers—in fact, to any one who has occasion to use lists of books, names or samples of goods, photographs, etc.

It is infinitely flexible, allowing any number of entries to be placed in the INDEXER at any point.

Entries are presented to the eye at one time as many entries as six pages of the American Catalogue.

Entries are protected from being soiled by exposure or handling.

It offers a great saving of space and economy of expenditure of both time and money.

The INDEXER stands 42 inches high and is 20 inches wide by 30 inches broad.

We will be pleased to give further information and list of testimonials from leading librarians.

DOLPH INDEXER CO., 606 Arch St., Philadelphia.

THE ENGLISHMAN AT HOME:

His Responsibilities and Privileges.

By EDWARD PORRITT,

Formerly London Editor of the Manchester Examiner.

The author's aim has been to make the book not only of use and interest to students of English history and contemporary politics, but also of value to American visitors to England, and to readers of English news in the American press. His accuracy and careful statement may be subjected to the most critical test. The style is good and entertaining. The book cannot fail to be a welcome addition to every library. 1 vol., cloth, 12mo, xiv.+388, Appendices, index, $1.75.

"No adequate book has been easily procurable which briefly and simply has told how the Englishman is governed, and what are his responsibilities and privileges. Mr. Porritt has endeavored to supply this sort of book, and has succeeded admirably. He has told about everything an American needs to know, and has told it according to a method which leaves hardly anything to be desired."—New York Times.

"A valuable book, and one that ought to be read by all who seek to be well informed."—Chicago Times.

"A highly welcome volume."—Philadelphia Press.

"Of rare interest and great value."—Boston Advertiser.

"A better account of the working institutions of England than is elsewhere accessible to American readers."—Boston Herald.

"A very useful and instructive book."—The Beacon.

The Annual American Catalogue

will please notice that our stock of this valuable biographical help is rapidly decreasing. Of the volume for 1890 only 33 copies remain; of that for 1891 only 6 copies; and of the 1892 only 25 copies. As these volumes are printed from type which is distributed by separate printing, they cannot be reprinted, and those who wish to complete their sets are therefore cautioned to place their orders before it is too late.

The price per volume, bound in half rocco, is $3.50 net.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY

HAVE JUST ISSUED :

A Man of To-Day.

by HELEN MATHERS, author of the famous story "Comin' Thro' the Rye." Bound in paper, 50 cents ; cloth, $1.00.

A brighter story has seldom found its way from an English author into American covers. The tale is a verting one, but it is borne along by the liveliness of the text until the reader forgets that it is a made-up story at all, so much of actual reality does it possess.

History of the Consulate and the Empire of France.

VOLUME VII.

by L. A. THIERS, ex-Prime Minister of France. Translated from the French, with the sanction of the author, by D. Forbes Campbell. An entirely new edition, printed from new type, and illustrated with thirty-six steel plates printed from the French originals. To be completed in twelve octavo volumes. Cloth $3.00 per volume.

Pain.

by J. LEONARD CORNING, A.M., M.D. 8vo, cloth, $1.75.

"The author of this valuable work, which treats of pain in its relation to disease, is a physician who has already commanded respect and gained repute because of earlier publications, which embody the results of his own experiences and that of the ablest physicians of the day. His book, therefore, is sure to be received with interest by medical men and create something of popular interest as well. The doctor's experiments with compressed air have caused much discussion in medical circles."—New York Letter in Philadelphia Press, April 1.

NOTES IN SEASON.

HURST & Co. have just issued a cheap edition of "A Yellow Aster," by "Iota."

D. APPLETON & Co. announce a new edition of Kossuth's "Memoirs of My Exile," in which is told the patriot's own story of his life.

THE postmaster at New York has given notice that all outgoing domestic and Canada mails will close thirty minutes earlier than heretofore, between the hours of 5 P.M. and 8 P.M.

MEYER BROTHERS & Co., who have succeeded Amblard & Meyer Bros., are the American agents of Jordell's "Catalogue Annuel de la Librairie Française," described in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY March 24.

THE INTERNATIONAL NEWS COMPANY has just issued "Adela's Ordeal," by Florence Warden, a very delightful story in the best style of the clever writer of "The House on the Marsh;" and "For My Own Sake," translated by Mary Stuart Smith from the German of Marie Bernhard.

SUBSCRIBERS to "The English Catalogue of Books for 1873" will be pleased to learn that the volume is now ready for delivery. Those who have not yet placed their orders are requested to do so as early as possible—especially those who wish the Annual American Catalogue and the English Catalogue bound together—in order that delay at the bindery may be avoided.

HENRY HOLT & Co. have just ready "The Prisoner of Zenda," by Anthony Hope, describing three months in the life of an English gentleman, highly romantic and exciting, but treated with fine literary art. The book has the same pretty buckram cover that made "John Ingerfield" so attractive, and also contains a frontispiece by Wechsler. A second edition of "John Ingerfield," Mr. Jerome's little masterpiece, which has received praise from the most exacting critics, is now in the market.

DUPRAT & Co., New York, will publish shortly a literary curiosity of the 18th century, with an introduction by a member of the Grolier Club, entitled "Crazy Book-Collecting or Bibliomania, showing the great folly of collecting rare and curious books, first editions, unique and large paper copies, in costly bindings, etc., by Bollioud Mermet, Secretary to the Academy of Lyons, first published anonymously in 1761, and now done into English and republished for the perusal and delectation of the members of the Grolier Club of New York et amicorum."

CHARLES EITEL, 18 and 20 Broadway, has become sole agent for Calmann Lévy and Paul Ollendorff, the great Paris publishers. Georges Ohnet's new novel, "Le Droit de l'Enfant," will be issued simultaneously here and in Paris, probably toward the end of May. Among the newer books now ready for distribution are: Gyp's "Le 13ème;" Abel Hermant's "La Carrière;" Pierre Maël's "Femme d'Artiste;" Edouard Delpit's "Marcienne;" Jeanne Schultz's "Ce Qu'Elles Peuvent;" N. Noto-vitch's "Vie Inconnue de Jesus Christ;" and Alphonse Allais' "Gaîtés du Chat Noir."

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish on April 21 a new book by Beatrice Harraden, entitled "In Varying Moods." Her little work of art, "Ships that Pass in the Night," gave promise of rare treats to come. Among other publications for the immediate future are announced "A Modern Wizard," by Rev. R. Ottolengui, author of "An Artist in Crime;" and "Red Cap and Blue Jacket," a story of the French Revolution, by a new writer. There will be a Popular edition of Waldron K. Post's "Harvard Stories," tales of the undergraduate, and also a cloth edition. F. Marion Crawford has written the initial story for the Autonym series, and it will appear in May, under the title "The Upper Berth."

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A.: Augustus; B.: Benjamin; C.: Charles; D.: David; E.: Edward; F.: Frederic; G.: George; H.: Henry; I.: Isaac; J.: John; L.: Louis; N.: Nicholas; P.: Peter; R.: Richard; S.: Samuel; T.: Thomas; W.: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

American Library Association. Catalog of "A. L. A." library: 5000 volumes for a popular library, selected by the American Library Assoc., and shown at the World's Columbian Exposition. Wash., D. C., Government Printing Office, 1893 [1894.] 592 p. O. (Bureau of Education, no. 200.) pap., gratis. [1089]

A catalogue of a model library of 5000 volumes, selected by experts of the American Library Association, and representing as nearly as possible the 5000 books that a new library ought to obtain first for its collection. The volumes catalogued were given by the publishers; the library formed part of the exhibit of the Bureau of Education at the Chicago Exposition, and is now permanently in Washington. The printed catalogue was prepared at the New York State Library, under the direction of Miss Mary S. Cutler, and the work done by Louisa S. Cutler and assistants. The Bureau of Education, which issues it, has a limited number for gratuitous distribution. It does much more than show a desirable list of books. It is an excellent object lesson in the two systems of classifications, the decimal and the expansive—the Dewey and the Cutter—and gives also a perfect illustration of a dictionary catalogue, including in one alphabet, author, title, and subject. There are also sample pages of an author-index and a subject-index, a list of publishers' addresses (7 pages), directions for purchase and arrangement of "A. L. A." Library, the library abbreviations, etc. Coming before the class and dictionary catalogues, are separate alphabetical lists of biography and fiction. Publishers' names, dates of publication, and retail prices are given throughout.

This manual is intended for aid to pastors in the various services they are called upon to conduct outside of the pulpit. It contains a service for laying a corner-stone, for dedicating a church building; forms for household baptism, for the administration of the Lord's Supper, and for Christian marriage. It gives an unusually large selection of scripture to be used in connection with these services and with the offerings, for the sick-room and for funerals. All these selections are from the Revised Version. It is an entirely new work, replacing a similar one published by the society in 1871.

Emma Jocelyn at the age of twenty has had a three-volume novel published, dealing with human passion in strong, crude language. She has called this book "Miching Mallecho." A scathing notice of the book appears in The Porch, and to trace its writer the young author resorts to fortune-tellers. After a neatly developed plot, Miss Jocelyn marries happily, and seldom entertains literary people.

The scene opens on the deck of The Bounding Wave, a clipper ship en voyage from Hong Kong to Boston. One of her passengers, who feels that he cannot reach port alive, confides to another passenger his history, and entrusts the stranger with some tokens of remembrance for his relatives. Supposing the former to be dead, Raymond betrays his trust, and personates Manley Clavering. On this incident is founded a story of intricate plot and romantic conclusion.

Hancock, Anson Uriel. Coitlan: a tale of the Inca world. Chic., Donohue, Henneberry & Co., 1893 [1894.] c. '93. 4-448 p. il. D. (Optimus ser., no. 30.) pap., 50 c. [1124]

The time is the sixteenth century. The scene is Peru. Coitlan, an Inca princess, is the heroine. The story is founded on the incidents preceding and succeeding the Conquest of Peru by the Spaniards. The action of Plazarro is introduced. Quohiti, the lover of Coitlan, tells her romantic history, and describes the habits and customs of the Incas, and gives much of the incidental history of Peru.

Hedgcoth, H. L., comp. Veterans' memorial volume: being a series of original and collected sketches, anecdotes, etc., relative to the late war and that of Texan independence. Austin, Texas, H. P. N. Gammel, 1894. 600 p. 8°, cl., $3. [1125]

Herman, H. A dead man's story, and other tales. N. Y., F. Warne & Co., 1894. 4-192 p. D. (Library of continental authors.) pap., 50 c. [1126]

While musing over the harrowing details of a sensational murder, a London barrister is astounded by seeing Elmersley, the supposed murderer, sitting opposite him in his chambers. Elmersley claims that he is an apparition, and insists upon giving the details of a strange story, in which supernatural agencies bring about the important issues. A tragedy of error, Dandy's license. The gray friar of St. Drome, and From Letho's banks, are the titles of the other stories.

Iota, [pseud. for Mrs. Maunington Caffyn] A yellow aster: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. 307 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 139.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c. [1130]

The heroine is as rare a specimen among women as a "blue chrysanthemum or a yellow aster" is among the flowers—hence the title. She is a woman in parently without a fault, and is the result of her training and inheritance. Her father and mother are scientists, whose whole time is occupied in researches and studies for a book they are writing together. Owen and her brother are mere annoyances to their parents than a pleasure. They are trained by tutors, and are not allowed any religious education until their intellects are sufficiently matured to judge of the truth or falsity of the doctrines of Christianity. Owen enters society a great beauty and a brilliantly intellectual woman, but seems without the power of loving. Her awakening under the influence of marriage and motherhood is the story.

The rather tragic love-story of a "worldly man," married, but separated from his actress-wife, and a young Anglo-Indian girl. The heroine will not consent to her lover's obtaining a divorce, and though the actress finally dies, it is then too late to avert the final tragedy. Most of the characters are American, and the scene is chiefly in New York.

Knight, Francis A. By moorland and sea; il. by the author. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1894. 3+215 p. D. cl., $1.50. [1134]

A companion volume to the author's "By sea-ways" and "Idylls of the field." The four opening papers are descriptive of the Western Highlands of Scotland, and are called "Round the Mull," "Loch Dulech," "Uix, Isle of Skye," and "Dunvegan." The other sketches "by moorland and sea" are "A ride on a railway engine; In the Quantocks; Sounds of the night; The schoolmaster abroad; The midsummer fells; A northern moorland; Camping out; Sedgemoor. An old manor-house, The birds' nest; An idyl of winter."

The hero is a Russian, born and educated in England; in spite of his English training he remains a Russian to the core—a fatalist and a pessimist, and strong for good or evil. He and a French governess, who has committed a crime, work all the mischief. The story is a domestic one, dealing with the family of Tom Denison, a rich English manufacturer. It is his daughter, Easter, whose life is spoiled by the "man of to-day" after she has married one entirely worthy of her.

Muir, M. M. Pattison. The alchemical essence and the chemical element: an episode in the quest of the unchanging. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894. 3+94 p. O. cl., $1.50. [1143]

The object of this essay is to set forth the essential differences, while tracing the relations, between the alchemical and the chemical conception of the elements. The development of the modern notion of the elements, as definite kinds of matter incapable of mutual transformation, is traced, and the questions suggested by this conception are noticed. Incidentally it is shown how dangerous to progress any attempt must be to return to the loose alchemical ways of thinking about natural occurrences.

Dr. Stackpole is convinced that certainty of salvation is definitely promised by the scriptures; he states the question in a simple, earnest style, and then proceeds to demonstrate the proof of it. Dr. Stackpole was for some time a teacher in a theological school in Italy. Since then he has been extensively engaged in revival work in this country, and practical experience has clearly shown him the need of a succinct and definite manual on a matter so vital to the needs of seekers and vacillating believers.

The editor of The Review of Reviews spent four months in Chicago during the Columbian Exposition, and this book is the result. It is a detailed account of the vice and crime of Chicago, with numerous statistics. Election frauds and political corruption are also treated, and the lives of some of the millionaires and leading men of Chicago are exploited.

True relation of the travels and perilous adventures of Mathew Dudgeon, gentleman: wherein is truly set down the manner of his taking, the long time of his slavery in Algiers, and means of his delivery: written by himself and now for the first time printed. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1894. 267 p. D. cl., $1.75. [1171]

A story of adventure, in which Mathew Dudgeon, an English merchant, tells of his voyage across seas, his capture by Barbary pirates, slavery in Algiers, and other perils by land and sea. The period is presumably about the middle of the seventeenth century, and the story is told in archaic language.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ASHBURY PARK, N. J.—Mrs. George M. Lane has bought the book-store of O. H. Tomkins.

AUSTIN, TEX.—The Gammell Book Co., with an authorized capital stock of $20,000, has been incorporated here. The incorporators are H. P. N. Gammell, Lansing B. Fontaine, and A. W. Dellquist.

CADIZ, O.—Chas. S. McCoy succeeds N. A. Hanna & Son, booksellers.

CHICAGO, ILL.—E. H. Colegrove, formerly with W. T. Keener & Co., has established himself in business of selling medical and scientific books under the firm of E. H. Colegrove & Co., at 52 Randolph street.

CHILLICOTHE, MO.—R. W. Reynolds, Jr., has opened a book-store.

FAIRFIELD, IA.—The book and stationery store of A. C. Jones & Co. has been purchased by W. F. Bevering, and moved into his store.

GAINESVILLE, GA.—W. S. Williams is to establish a book and stationery store here.

MARYSVILLE, KAN.—J. F. Wright, bookseller, has sold out.

MEMPHIS, TENN.—G. C. Baldwin, bookseller, has settled with his creditors at 50 cents on the dollar, cash.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—S. M. Williams, bookseller, has made an assignment.

MOBILE, ALA.—T. S. Bldgood & Co., booksellers, have taken the store next adjoining west of their old stand. They have adjusted their insurance, and their stock will soon be as complete as ever. Mr. Bldgood began business at No. 64 St. Francis Street in 1851, and was burned out in 1853, when he removed to No. 63; then to the corner of Water and St. Francis Streets, and then back to No. 63 St. Francis Street, where he was recently burned out again, making twice he has been burned out on St. Francis Street.

NEW YORK CITY.—The firm of Amblard & Meyer Brothers was dissolved by mutual consent on the 9th inst. The business will be continued under the firm-name of Meyer Bros. & Co., the Messrs. Meyer Brothers having bought out the interest of their late partner, Mr. Emile Amblard.

NEW YORK CITY.—Baker, Voorhis & Co. respectfully announce that having purchased the business of Messrs. L. K. Strouse & Co., law booksellers and publishers, including their entire stock of books and publications, the copyrights, good-will, trade-name, etc., the business of the two houses will from and after the above date be consolidated and conducted as one. Mr. L. K. Strouse becomes connected with the business of Baker, Voorhis & Co. as one of the executive officers of the company from the same date.

NEW YORK CITY.—L. K. Strouse & Co. beg respectfully to announce the dissolution, by mutual consent, of the copartnership heretofore existing between L. K. Strouse and S. A. Wilder, and that after the above date the business of the firm will be consolidated with that of the well-known law-book house of Baker, Voorhis & Co. and the business of the two houses conducted as one, Mr. L. K. Strouse becoming one of the executive officers. All accounts due the late firm of L. K. Strouse & Co. are payable to Mr. L. K. Strouse, who is the authorized agent to collect the same and to settle all liabilities of the firm.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Merriam Co., successors to Saalfeld & Fitch, will remove from 12 Bible House, New York City, to 67 Fifth Avenue, on or before May 1.

NEW YORK CITY.—Walter Scott Trigg, publisher, 149 Duane Street, confessed judgment March 31 to the Molleson Brothers' Company, $2466, and Charles H. Fuller's Advertising Agency, $1410.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

APRIL 14, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

"LIVING PICTURES" AND COPYRIGHT.

A CURIOUS phase of copyright ownership has recently been suggested apropos of the exhibitions of "living pictures" now given by various theatrical managers. In these "pictures" the figures are living persons—generally women—and the tableaux vivants simulate famous sculptures or paintings of more or less renown. The question has been raised, whether in the case of copyrighted pictures such living "reproductions" constitute infringement of copyright. It will be seen that such a situation calls for fine discrimination and involves novel precedents. In fact, its practical perplexities have already been tested. Only a month or so ago a Munich publisher of photographs and engravings brought suit in London against the management of a variety show called the "Empire Palace," charging them with infringement of copyright in exhibiting tableaux vivants, exactly reproducing five pictures protected by copyright according to the articles of the Berlin Convention with Great Britain. The chief difficulty confronting the publisher was presented by the law itself. It is provided that the aggrieved party may seize the pirated reprints and destroy or dispose of them as he sees fit; in the case of living "reprints," even the plaintiff's counsel confessed himself puzzled. Neither could the worshipful justices see any solution of the problem, and the Munich publisher lost his case. He then promptly brought the same charge against a London daily which had given sketches of the pictures in question. In this case he was more successful, as it was proved that the artist had undoubtedly made use of the art photographs published by the Munich house. The moral of the tale seems to be that managers of "living pictures"—notwithstanding their recent escape—had best confine themselves to masterpieces that are unprotected by the trammels of copyright, and not test too far the extensible qualities of that elastic law.

THE Congressional Record is scarcely what would be called a "popular" periodical, and yet the legislators make occasional efforts to enliven its columns. A few days ago, through the ingenuity of Senator Dolph, a literary department was added, which may have great possibilities for publishers.

During a recent debate on the financial situation, Senator Dolph said that he held in his hand a little volume entitled "Cheap-Money Experiments" and he desired to insert a page and a half of the opening chapter in the Record. This, he said, "is devoted to the proposition that no government can create money out of anything which it may choose to call money, but money must have intrinsic value or be convertible into that which has intrinsic value."

As Senator Dolph went along, requesting that page after page of the book be put into the Record, several of the Populists, became uneasy.

Finally Senator Harris interrupted the speaker by demanding to know what the book was.

MR. DOLPH: It is a little pamphlet called "Cheap-Money Experiments."

MR. HARRIS: Published by The Century Company?

MR. DOLPH: Yes.

MR. HARRIS: Does the senator mean to put a library in the Record?

MR. ALLEN, another Populist, from Nebraska, objected "to these extracts going in the Record without being read, because the book is notoriously a falsehood from its opening to its closing." He further said that the book "is a republication of a series of articles in The Century Magazine, which every Populist recognizes to be false. It does not state a solitary doctrine in which the Populist party believes."

After a fight, that was continued for some time, and on the following day, Senator Dolph carried his point, and was allowed to print what he chose in the Record.

If members of Congress desire to make the Record more welcome to their constituents, and to ensure the reading of their speeches, they might occasionally quote a chapter from J. M. Barrie's latest work, or from Mark Twain's "Pudd'nhead Wilson." Then there might be such a demand for the Record as in the days when Proctor Knott delivered his immortal Duluth speech.

A NEWSDEALER'S ACCOUNT-BOOK.

GEO. W. THOMS, of Mankato, Minn., uses as an account-book sheets 16 inches long by 11 inches wide and printed on one side only. If a dealer has, say five hundred newspaper customers, he can have five hundred of these sheets printed and bound together at a cost not exceeding seven dollars. This book will do his book-keeping in a simple way, and dispenses with other forms of receipts. We present only three months, the full sheet having the twelve. When Mr. Jones paid his two dollars the slip was cut from the book and given to him as a receipt, while Mr. Thoms used his side of the sheet as a reference guide. The page is perforated to allow the quarterly receipts to be torn from the main body of the book. An index to customers should precede the account-book proper.

HALF A CENTURY OF BOOKSELLING.

A RECORD of fifty years in the book business at one stand only, is seldom credited to a member of our fraternity in these changing days, but next Saturday, April 14, S. E. Bridgman rounds out a half century of honorable mercantile life at the old "Hampshire County Book-store," as it is still called in Northampton. Beginning as a lad of seventeen he was at twenty-one admitted to the firm by his appreciative employer, E. H. Butler, the firm-name becoming Butler & Bridgman. Their successors were Hopkins, Bridgman & Co., and they in turn were succeeded by Bridgman & Childs. Since 1883 the firm-name has been S. E. Bridgman & Co. The house published John Todd's works, many of which, like the "Student's Manual," "Lectures to Children," and the "Index Rerum," have had a large sale. It has had extensive dealings with various literary institutions in the Connecticut Valley, such as Mt. Holyoke College and Northfield Seminary, and since Smith College was established in Northampton, Mr. Bridgman's store has been a favorite resort of its 700 young women students, thus gaining for it the title of "The College Book-store." Mr. Bridgman has also developed the mail order department of his business, supplying many Sunday-schools and public libraries with the material they desire, as well as individual buyers in New England and in distant points of the country.

Throughout all these years Mr. Bridgman has been a useful and public-spirited citizen, prominent in Christian activities, and holding positions of honor and responsibility. He is thoroughly posted on all branches of his business, and what is better, he has won hosts of friends by his sunny, genial disposition. He has enjoyed the personal friendship of the late Dr. J. G. Holland, and of Bishop F. D. Huntington, not to speak of many others like Prof. Drummond, Dr. James Stalker, and Geo. W. Cable, whom he has entertained in his hospitable home.

The career of Mr. Bridgman exemplifies in a marked manner the type of the old New England bookseller—one who, by his integrity and devotion to his chosen profession, has been an honor, not only to himself, but to the trade at large. He is to-day one of the sprightliest of men, thoroughly posted on all that is going on, has one of the finest book-stores in New England, and is always courteous and honorable in his dealings. It is with the greatest pleasure that THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY extends to Mr. Bridgman, at this time hearty congratulations from ourselves and from the trade at large, and also the very best wishes for the future.

DODSLEY AND OTHER OLD LONDON BOOKSELLERS.

From "At Tully's Head," by Austin Dobson, in Scribner's.

DODSLEY could scarcely have chosen a more favorable moment. Before the year 1735 was out, died Jacob Tonson the Younger, to be followed only a few months later by Jacob Tonson, the Elder—the famous old Jacob of Dryden and the Kit-Cats. Early in 1736, too, died another survivor of the Augustan Worthies, Bernard Lintot. In each of these cases relatives of the same surname continued the business, but the old prestige was gone. And if the moment was favorable, so was the locality selected. No one of the other booksellers, either notable or notorious, was very near to Pall Mall. Edmund Curll, of disreputable memory, at the "Pope's Head" in Rose Street, Covent Garden, was closest. Of the rest, Andrew Miller was in the Strand, Dodd by Temple Bar, Lawton Gilliver of the "Homer's Head"—

"Vendit hunc Librum Gilliverus Cujus insigne est Homerus—"

in Fleet Street, Cooper at the "Globe" in Paternoster Row, Willford at the Chapter House, Roberts in Warwick Lane, Thomas Osborn (not yet knocked down by Johnson) in Gray's Inn. As far as can be judged, their new rival of the "Tully's Head" must have opened his campaign as a publisher with considerable vigor.

In the first month of 1736, he issued a memorial ode by John Lockman, later known as the "herring poet," following it up shortly afterward by a reprint of Sackville's old tragedy of "Gorboduc." Poetry and the drama, as may be gathered from these items, were his chief attraction. He did not indeed put forth the effusions of Queen Caroline's thresher minstrel, Stephen Duck, to whom "A Muse in Livery" had contained an effusive tribute, and with whom he might be supposed to be in especial sympathy; but he received subscriptions for the "Works" of Richard Savage, and he issued the "Leonidas" of Glover. Pope also entrusted him with two of his wonderful imitations of Horace, and made over to him the sole property in his sophisticated letters.

THE CONTEMPORARY LITERATURE OF ANARCHY.

LITERARY anarchism was born in 1840, on the day when Proudhon's now famous work "Qu'est ce que la Propriété?" ("What is Property?") was given to the world. For thirty years after its birth the doctrine flourished and languished alternately in the Latin countries and in Germany and England. In 1870 it bore fruit in France of the deadliest sort—raised and nursed and finally extirpated with blood. Since 1870 literary anarchism has become anarchistic literature, which during the past ten years has taken root in as many countries, and within a few years has developed, though for the greater part a surreptitious, a restless, and fecund existence. Stammhammer, in his excellent "Bibliographie des Socialismus und Communismus," recently issued by Gust. Fischer, of Jena, notes over a hundred journals issued under the auspices of anarchist societies all over the world. Of these probably sixty are at present in existence, namely, twelve in the Italian language, eleven in French, eleven in Spanish, ten in German, six in English, five in Czechish, two in Portuguese, two in Jewish dialects, and one in Dutch. Only one of the ten German papers is published in Germany, viz., The Socialist of Berlin. The two Jewish papers are printed in Hebrew letters, but are really in the Jewish-German and Jewish-English dialects respectively. The last-mentioned organ is the Workers' Friend, published in London. The former paper, Die Freie Arbeiterstimme, or the Workman's Free Voice, is published in New York.

COMMUNICATIONS.

TENNYSON'S "MUNGO THE AMERICAN."

3 HART 19th STREET, New York, }
April 3, 1894. }

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: In your issue of 31st ult., I notice you mention the autograph sale last year of an early ms. by Tennyson, entitled "Mungo the American," which was written in 1823, when the poet was quite a boy.

This tale was once the property of Robert Roberts, Esq., of Messrs. Roberts Bros., Boston, and in a paper containing some interesting recollections of Tennyson published in The Bookman, November, 1892, Mr. Roberts furnished the following data, which will amplify your note for those who are curious to learn more about this early evidence of a poet-laureate's taste for literature.

"It consisted of about half a dozen octavo leaves stitched in a piece of brown wrapping paper, with the title 'Mungo the American' written on the cover in a boyish hand, and at the bottom was given the name of the publishers, Longman & Co."—an amusing instance of the child being father of the man. It is many years since I glanced through it, and therefore my recollection is somewhat misty; but plot there was none; it was merely an incident, and related how Mungo was traversing the mighty prairie and lost his sword (a rather unusual thing, one would think). He wandered about in great agitation, searching for it amid poetical surroundings, but all in vain. A considerable time elapsed, and again Mungo was journeying in a wide waste land, when he espied a hut, towards which he hastened for guidance or for water. As he stood in the doorway, he beheld his sword hanging upon the opposite wall. He started, but recovered himself, and asked the solitary inhabitant whence he obtained that sword. The answer did not prove satisfactory; or, as this was long anterior to the advent of the modern "interviewer," Mungo's question was naturally resented as an unwarrantable intrusion into the privacy of domestic life. But whatever the cause, there ensued a short and sharp conflict—the sudden crack of a pistol, "alarms and excursions;" finally Mungo snatched the weapon from its place and "slew him with the sword." So he regained possession of his long-lost trusty blade. The sun set; or threw its slanting beams over the prairie—or something of that sort—as Mungo departed from the scene of the fray. Beyond the slight touches indicated above, there were no Tennysonian characteristics, unless a somewhat inflated style may be considered one.

Yours truly, JAMES MACARTHUR.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Selections from Truth is issued quarterly. Price 25 cents. Wholesale 18 cents—returnable.

Gotham is the title of a new illustrated weekly, devoted to gossip and the theatre. The first number bears date of March 24.

McClure's Magazine for May will be a Grant number in honor of the birthday of General Grant, which falls upon April 17. Fourteen portraits of General Grant will make up the popular department of "Human Documents," many of them from the collection of Col. F. D. Grant.

OBITUARY NOTES.

EDWIN FLEMING, probably the oldest member of the bookbinding trade in New England, while on his way home (West Newton, Mass.) from Florida, died in New York City on the 2d inst. Mr. Fleming was born in Bristol, Eng., about 73 years ago, and after learning his trade there, went to Boston, and worked for a time with a Mr. Kitfield, whom he later succeeded in business. Afterward the firm was known as Fleming & Haskell, and later as E. Fleming & Co. He enjoyed the respect and confidence of the leading publishers, as well as of the business community at large. The book trade was represented at his funeral by Dana Estes and W. W. Jackson, of Estes & Lauriat, William Lee, of Lee & Shepard, George H. Ellis, and Thomas R. Shewell.

IN Theodor Lampart, whose sudden death was announced a short time ago, the German book trade lost one of its most representative men, a man who was conspicuous not only for the energy with which he managed his own business, but also for the interest he took in the organization of the German book trade and in matters of local and municipal interest. Lampart came of an old bookselling family, his father being the much-respected bookseller, J. G. Lampart, of Augsburg. Lampart received his school education in his native town, Augsburg, and was then apprenticed to the book trade in Würzburg, afterwards filling posts in Salzburg and Bremen. From Bremen he returned to his father's business, which he managed as his father's trusted assistant for ten years. The family's business is one of the oldest book-selling houses in Germany, having been established in 1680 under the firm of Velth & Rieger. In 1838 the last representative of the family of Velth transferred the business to J. G. Lampart and E. v. Jenisch. Jenisch died in 1849, Lampart in 1870, when the firm passed into the hands of Theodor Lampart. Lampart enlarged the retail branch of the business and reformed the publishing department, adding a special branch of his own—Alpine literature. In addition to his trade activity, Lampart was an enthusiastic "turner" or gymnast, and Alpine climber, being the president of the Augsburg Gymnastic Society and of the Augsburg section of the German-Austrian Alpine Club. Nor was he without influence in political matters. He was a member of the committee of the Liberal Club of his native town, and his voice was ever raised in support of national ideas. His efforts in the book trade itself were also not without importance. He founded the local union of Augsburg booksellers, and to his energetic intervention the action taken a few years ago by the Börsenverein against underselling was largely due. Ten years ago he was elected a member of the council of that body, and did good service on the finance committee. Unhappily, this man-sided and vigorous activity was too much even for his vigorous nature, and he succumbed to an affection of the brain on October 21, 1893, deeply regretted by all his colleagues.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. PAUL MEYER, of the firm of Meyer Brothers & Co., sailed for Europe on the 7th inst., expecting to make new arrangements regarding translations and reproductions of French works.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

METHUEN & Co., London, have in press a volume of "Cricket Songs," by Norman Gale, who is an ardent follower of the game.

It has just been remembered that the odd title which Mr. Du Maurier has given to his new novel and its heroine has been used before. "Tribby" is the name borne by a French classic—a charming little fairy tale by Charles Nodier.

WARD, LOCK & BOWDEN will shortly publish a new novel of "The Yellow Aster" and "A Superfluous Woman" type. It will be published anonymously or under a pseudonym but it is by a new writer, and an Irishwoman. The title will in all probability be "A Sunless Heart," though this is not finally fixed.

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. will publish on April 15 a new book by Stanley J. Weyman, entitled "Under the Red Robe," with illustrations by R. Caton Woodville. The author of "A Gentleman of France" and "The House of the Wolf" again seeks his materials in French history, and Cardinal Richelieu occupies the stage during a great part of his new story.

"A MORAL BLOT" is the title of a new novel of theatrical life by Sigmund B. Alexander, of Boston, which the Arena Company announce for immediate issue. The book is to be brought out in handsome form, with an exceptionally artistic cover designed by Abbott Graves. The story is said to deal with a vital social problem of the day, which is treated in a decidedly novel and original manner.

A. L. BURT, 66 Reade St., N. Y., who has already done much in the interests of low-priced and good literature, has begun the issue of a new paper-covered series, entitled The Manhattan Library. The series will include the most popular fiction and will be issued semi-weekly at 12 cents net or 25 cents retail. Corelli's "Romance of Two Worlds" and Blackmore's "Lorna Doone" are the first issued.

LOVELL, CORYELL & Co. have just ready "Mr. Bailey-Martin," by Percy White, said to teem with bright sayings and graphic characterizations and which the London Athenaeum has pronounced a success; "How Like a Woman," by Florence Marryat, the story of a charming but wayward English heiress, and "Mademoiselle Miss," by Henry Harland (Sidney Lusk), a collection of short stories.

ARTHUR HINDS & Co., New York City, have just issued "Three Minute Declamations for College Men," containing telling extracts from the speeches of popular orators, including Chauncey M. Depew, William Gladstone, Carl Schurz, Bishop Potter, and many others. A few facts regarding the author, and an explanation concerning the occasion on which the quoted speech was spoken, precede every selection.

ELKIN MATHEWS & JOHN LANZ, having decided to issue further volumes of fiction in the form in which George Egerton's "Keynotes" appeared, have arranged a Keynotes Series, of which two volumes are now passing through the press. The first to be ready will be "The Dancing Faun," by Miss Florence Parr, the actress who has been associated with several Ibsen productions, and who has just opened at the Avenue Theatre in Dr. Todhunter's "Comedy of Sighs." Later a translation, by Miss Lena Milman, of Dostolevsky's "Poor Folk" will appear, and to this volume George Moore has written a preface.

THE AMERICAN NEWS COMPANY and also the Union News Company refuse to handle W. T. Stead's book, "If Christ Came to Chicago." The reasons for this action seem to be various. The manager of the Union News Company, according to newspaper report, claims "that the book is not proper reading to go into the family." George C. Tyson, Jr., of the American News Company, according to the same authority, claims that "the risk in handling the book would be too great to assume. If a single one of the places named by the author as disreputable could show that it had been misrepresented, we would be liable for heavy damages. One little error of that kind might lose us thousands of dollars."

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & COMPANY will issue, April 15, Mark Twain's new story, "Tom Sawyer Abroad," by Huck Finn, edited by Mark Twain. It is a continuation of the adventures of Tom Sawyer, Huck Finn, and Nigger Jim, and will, no doubt, be received with delight by their many admirers. They will also shortly issue "Joanna Trull, Spinster," by Miss Annie E. Holdsworth, associate editor of the Woman's Signal, the English temperance organ, of which paper Lady Henry Somerset is editor-in-chief. Miss Holdsworth has long been interested in charitable work of all kinds, especially among women, and the present volume, which has been warmly endorsed by Mr. W. T. Stead, gives her idea of the moral responsibility of woman.

EMILE BRUNOR, New York City, has issued "The Practical Electroplater," by Martin Brunor, a comprehensive treatise on electroplating, with notes on ancient and modern gilding and formulas for new solutions. This work has the advantage over several other volumes published in the same line in being largely the result of the personal researches and experience of the author, many of the processes described being here for the first time given to the public. In Paris, as well as in this country, the author addressed himself to mastering all the details of electroplating as exemplified in the workshop rather than as theoretically set forth. It is, therefore, a book for practical men, giving some 200 articles and formulas for solutions, describing process for gilding with and without a battery, for oxidizing, fire gilding, etc.

DAVID BRYCE & SON, of Glasgow, expect to issue Clouston's "History of Hieroglyphic Bibles" in the course of the next fortnight. Mr. Clouston has traced the first English version of those curious children's picture-books through a Dutch version to an Augsburg source—"Geistliche Herzens-Einbildungen," or "Spiritual Heart-Fancies" (1687). The bulk of the volume, as originally designed, has been nearly doubled by including an account of the principal block-books of the fifteenth century, and a fuller description of Lord Denbigh's unique MS. Bible in Rebus (or Mnemonic Bible, as it may also be called), written probably about 1460, and of European books of emblems. The volume contains upwards of thirty fac-simile plates, and fifty-six quaint cuts, printed from the original blocks employed in a "Hieroglyphic Bible," published at London in the first decade of the present century.

And Other Stories, being The Woman of the Saeter, Silhouettes, Variety Patter, and The Lease of the Crosskeys. With portrait of Jerome and illustrations. Oblong 16mo, buckram, 75 cents.

"True to the best there is in human nature."—N. Y. Times.

"A charming little story."—London Athenæum.

"True pathos and thoroughly modern humor."—The Churchman.

"A charming story."—Literary World.

"An exquisite love-story . . . like fine gold in its value."—Chicago Herald.

JEROME'S NOVEL NOTES.

Stories, tragic and comic. With 140 half-tone illustrations. 12mo, $1.25.

The Chicago Herald says of the python story: "it is told with terrible and tragic simplicity; and of the story of the sinful old lady, who wished to be 'good to the poor,' 'it is funny enough, but the sequel is superb;' of the whole book, 'his reflections are often not only serious but deep; his knowledge of human nature is thorough, and his tragic vein shows great feeling and sympathy.'"

Third Edition of Mrs. Humphry Ward's New Novel,

MARCELLA.

By Mrs. HUMPHRY WARD, author of "The History of David Grieve," "Robert Elsmere," etc., etc. With new portrait. In two volumes, small 12mo, cloth, in a box, $2.00.

"Mrs. Humphry Ward's 'Marcella' will be pronounced her best book by the public who read to enjoy and to learn. . . . Quite as truly as 'Robert Elsmere,' 'Marcella' is a story of immediately contemporaneous life and thought. . . . Considered as a piece of fiction, it is certainly an artistic and charming product. . . . Mrs. Ward has certainly achieved a remarkable success in this third serious novel of modern social and ethical life."—The Review of Reviews.

Fourth Edition of Mr. F. Marion Crawford's New Novel, Katharine Lauderdale.

By F. MARION CRAWFORD, author of "Saracinesca," "Pietro Ghisleri," "Mr. Isaacs," etc. With illustrations by Alfred Brennan, and a new portrait of the author. In two volumes. Small 12mo, in box, $2.00.

"To say that the most sanguine expectations which had been received concerning this latest of F. Marion Crawford's novels has been fully met is to award it at once the highest praise. . . . Mr. Crawford at his best is a great novelist, and in 'Katharine Lauderdale' we have him at his best."—Boston Daily Advertiser.

Second Edition of S. R. Crockett's New Novel,

The Raiders.

Being Some Passages in the Life of John Faa, Lord and Earl of Little Egypt. By S. R. CROCKETT, author of "The Stickit Minister, and Some Common Men." 12mo, $1.50.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & COMPANY,

4 Park Street, Boston ;

11 East 17th Street, New York,

WILL PUBLISH WEDNESDAY, APRIL 25:

Samuel Longfellow: Memoir and Letters.

Edited by JOSEPH MAY. With a portrait. Crown 8vo, gilt top, $1.50.

Samuel Longfellow: Essays and Sermons.

Edited by JOSEPH MAY. With a portrait. Crown 8vo, gilt top, $1.50.

To not a few the announcement of these two volumes will be peculiarly welcome. Samuel Longfellow's genius was of a very undemonstrative kind, yet very genuine. He had a passion for sincerity of thought, and corresponding sincerity of speech ; so that his essays, sermons, and poems have a quality of intense truthfulness quite uncommon. They are also characterized by fine scholarship, deep thoughtfulness, and the kind of optimism which a wise good man is altogether justified in cherishing. These two volumes may safely be ranked among the very best this season will produce.

The White Crown, and Other Stories.

By HERBERT D. WARD. 16mo, $1.25.

A collection of bright, fresh, readable stories, which ought to entertain a host of readers the coming season. They are not weighted with too serious a purpose, and they have the great merit of seizing and holding the attention.

The Story of Dan.

By M. E. FRANCIS. 16mo, $1.25.

This is a strong, well-written, readable story of Irish life. The characters are very distinctly Irish of course but are clearly defined ; and the dramatic incidents, while treated with uniform good taste, will cause the story to be read with eager interest.

Folk-Tales of Angola.

By HELI CHATELAIN, late United States Commercial Agent at Loanda, Angola, West Africa. With two maps and several melodies. 8vo, $3.00, net.

Mr. Chatelain during a stay of several years at Loanda possessed exceptional opportunities for observation of African life. As a result of his labors, he has been able to make a gathering of fifty Angolan folk-tales, which will represent the traditional lore of the West Coast in the same manner as the Zulu collection of Bishop Calvert represents that of South Africa.

Poems.

By LANGDON ELWYN MITCHELL. Crown 8vo, gilt top, $1.25.

This is a book of fine variety—including dramatic power, a sense of nature, imagination, and fancy: all readers will find it distinctly superior to the average of current books of verse.

Money, Trade, and Banking.

By JOSEPH H. WALKER. New Edition. 16mo, 50 cents.

Mr. Walker's vigorous advocacy in Congress of a thoroughly sound currency will attract attention to the merit of his strong and clear book on Money, Trade, and Banking.

JUST PUBLISHED:

Overheard in Arcady.

By ROBERT BRIDGES (Droch). With 65 illustrations by O. Herford, F. G. Attwood, and A. E. Sterner. 12mo, $1.25.

DIALOGUES ABOUT: Howells, James, Aldrich, Stockton, Davis, Crawford, Kipling, Meredith, Stevenson, and Barrie.

Mr. Bridges' book has a delightful originality both of form and of substance. In each of his chapters the characters created by the novelist discuss his works with knowledge, sympathetic appreciation, wit, and humor. The illustrations add materially to the novelty of the volume.

Ardis Claverden.

By FRANK R. STOCKTON. 12mo, $1.50.

Charles Scribner's Sons have recently acquired the rights of this volume and now issue it in uniform style with the author's other famous books. The heroine, Miss Ardis Claverden, is as charming as the whole story is characteristic, in its delicious humor, of the author.

The Incarnation of the Son of God.

Bampton Lectures for the Year 1891. By Rev. CHARLES GORE, editor of "Lux Mundi." New edition. 12mo, $1.50.

A new and cheaper edition of a book which has aroused nearly as much discussion as its famous predecessor, "Lux Mundi."

READY APRIL 28:

Recollections of a Virginian.

In the Mexican, Indian, and Civil Wars. By General DABNEY H. MAURY. With portrait. 12mo, $1.50.

General Maury has written a very racy and entertaining narrative of his experiences and adventures during a long and active life. He is a witty story-teller, and his book contains many amusing anecdotes as well as some tragic and pathetic episodes. Its serious value lies in the unreserved picture which it gives of the life of a Virginian of the old school who took part in the Mexican, Indian, and Civil Wars, leaving the service of the United States and casting his fortunes with the Confederacy, and after many vicissitudes rounding out his public career by serving as United States Minister to Colombia.

New Popular Edition of Ik Marvell's Country Books.

My Farm of Edgewood.

A Country Book. Small 12mo, 75 cents.

Wet Days at Edgewood.

With Old Farmers, Old Gardeners, and Old Pastorals. Small 12mo, 75 cents.

Mr. Mitchell's two well-known books have a fresh odor of the fields and gardens which make their re-publication in a new and attractive dress peculiarly appropriate at this season of the year.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE RODGERS Co., Philadelphia, announce to the trade that they have obtained control of the plates for the 16mo series of books formerly published by The Woodward Co., of Baltimore, and propose to improve the line very much.

CHARLES H. SERGEL COMPANY, Chicago, will publish at once the authorized edition of George Moore's new novel, "Esther Waters," which so good an authority as Mr. Quiller-Couch has pronounced the most important novel published in England since Hardy's "Tess of the D'Urber-villes."

HENRY W. BRAGG, assignee, announces that on Wednesday, May 2, at 2 P.M., at the rooms of the Russell Publishing Co., Boston, will be sold at public auction the original wooden blocks and illustrations and electrotypes of illustrations and electrotype plates of Our Little Ones and the Nursery and of The Whole Family, and other personal property heretofore used by the Russell Publishing Co. Terms cash.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have among their latest importations a beautifully printed little volume by Mr. Herbert Horne, entitled "The Binding of Books." It belongs to the dainty series of Books about Books. The introduction treats on the craft of binding, and is followed by three chapters devoted respectively to English, French, and Italian binding. The book is dedicated to D. M. T. J. Cobden Sanderson, and is a useful and artistic contribution to bibliographical literature.

THE Receiver's sale of the Worthington plates, books, and stock will cause many perennially popular books to find themselves in the lists of new publishers. In next week's issue we shall give a full statement of where the bookseller shall now direct his orders for books formerly published by Worthington Co. As there are upwards of 400 books in the Worthington sale catalogue, it has been impossible to get them properly listed and their various buyers verified for this number. We intend to make an alphabetical list of the books sold, which the bookseller may keep on hand for ready reference.

CASSELL & Co. have just ready "The Man in Black," a story of love and politics, written with all the fire and life of the author of "A Gentleman of France" and "Under the Red Robe." It is another story of the olden times which Stanley J. Weyman makes so fascinating. The Unknown Library will receive an entertaining addition, entitled "My Two Wives." It is in two parts: part 1, My first wife, by her second husband; part 2, My second wife, by her first husband; a catchy way of putting a mystery that solves itself satisfactorily. Mrs. Alexander has also prepared another of her always popular novels under the name of "Broken Links" — a love-story. A new edition of Baronne Staffe's "My Lady's Dressing-Room" is also ready at reduced price.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready "In Varying Woods," Beatrice Harraden's new novel; "A Modern Wizard," by that clever writer of "detective" stories, R. Ottolengui; "Red Cap and Blue Jacket," a tale of the French Revolution, by George Dunn; and a new Popular edition of W. K. Post's capital "Harvard Stories." The Autonym Library, a new series, somewhat similar in style to the successful Pseudonym Library, has for its first issue "The Upper Berth," by F. Marion Crawford, to be followed by a story of adventure by Louis Becke, entitled "By Reef and Palm;" this series will comprise short representative works by established writers. The first volume in the new Incognito Library is "The Shen's Pigtail," by "Mr. M——," to be followed by "Young Sam and Sabina," by the author of "Gentleman Upcott's Daughter." The volumes in this series will form the later issues in the Pseudonym Library, published by Unwin of London.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin, the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; * price of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade on application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq. nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Astor, J: Jacob. A journey in other worlds: a romance of the future. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 3+476 p. il. D. cl., $1.50. [1307]

This romance has its scene in the year 2000. The world is described as it appears at that date, with the marvels of science and invention perfected and in use. By the aid of a new force discovered, called "apergy," the inhabitants of the world are able to travel through space and visit other planets. The visits of three friends to Jupiter, Mars, and Saturn are described, with the wonders of nature they discover—the strange people, animals, etc., etc.

Baedeker, K.: ed. Palestine and Syria: hand-book for travellers; with maps, plans, and a panorama of Jerusalem. 2d ed. rev. and enl. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. 120+444 p. 12°, cl., net, $3.60. [1308]

Barrett, Frank. Found guilty. N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co., [1894.] c. '92. 4-339 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c. [1809]

About the time that Dr. Norman, of London takes possession of Beauchamp Manor, the guardian of Miss Dorothea Howard, living in the same vicinity, is very much worried over the mysterious disappearance of a letter entitling his ward to a large sum of money. His attempts to recover the letter set in motion minor schemes of some of the characters implicated in the theft, and an effort is made to prevent Dorothea marrying the man she loves; this failing, influence is brought to bear to make her believe her husband false. Afterwards she makes no opposition to a scheme to murder him, and is forced to fly from England, being made to believe the deed is accomplished. The story is full of sensational incidents and detective work, and is told by the different characters in turn.

Beale, Joseph H: A short selection of illustrative criminal cases. Cambridge, The Harvard Law Review Pub. Assoc., 1894. c. 197 p. O. limp cl., $1.50. [1310]

Boldrewood, Rolf. A modern buccaneer. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. c. 4+338 p. D. cl., $1.25. [1311]

A young Australian of twenty years back tells the story of his voyages with Captain William Henry Hayston in the brig Leonora through the South Pacific. Hayston was an American and a dishonored naval officer; he was a handsome, accomplished fellow, with many pleasing qualities, but utterly reckless and unscrupulous. Thrown out of the navy, he takes to trading with the South Sea Islanders; the hero, filled with a passion for adventure, accompanying him as supercargo. The deeds recorded are violent in the extreme, including robbery and murder and the seizure of vessels and the property of the native islanders under many or any pretexts.

Crane, Walter. Eight illustrations of Shakespeare's "Tempest," engraved and printed by Duncan C. Dallas. Bost., C. C. Day, 1894. 8 pl. portfolio, $1. [1320]

Davie, Oliver. Methods in the art of taxidermy; ninety full-page engravings, each drawn by Theodore Jasper, M.D., and reproduced from photographs of actual work by American taxidermists. Colum. O., [O. Davie & Co., 214 N. High St.] c. 14+138+13 p. 4°, subs., cl., net. [1321]

Teaches in detail, step by step, through a hundred figures, the skinning and stuffing of mammals, crustaceans, fishes, and reptiles; also examples of characteristic forms and attitudes of various species of the animal kingdom. The artist, Oliver Davie, who has made taxidermy his life and profession. The originals of the illustrations were made in India ink from time to time as the subjects could be obtained from which to make the most perfect procedures. They were drawn by the bird and mammal artist, Theodore Jasper, M.D., whose experience in the art of taxidermy extends over a period of fifty years.

* In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefix asterisk, and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

Davis, E. P. A manual of practical obstetrics. Phil., P. Blakiston Son & Co., 1894. c. 13+351 p. il. pl. 8°, cl., $2.50. [1822]

Edwards, Rev. C: The rejected symbol. N. Y., J. S. Ogilvie Publishing Co., [1894.] c. 3-288 p. por. D. (Sunnyside ser., no. 78.) pap., 50 c. [1828]

The red flag of anarchy is the rejected symbol. Rev. Darby Jones, the supposed pastor of a church in Bumbletown, a thriving town on Long Island, tells, in a rather flippant way, his incidental history, especially dwelling upon a rather questionable passage with one of his parishoners and presenting his general views of socialism and anarchism. He also introduces the main facts about the Haymarket riots and a brief sketch of Albert Parsons.

Ellot, Annie. A masque of culture. 2d ed. Hartford, Ct., Case, Lockwood & Brainard Co., 1894. c. '93. 54 p. 16°, cl., 50 c.; pap., 80 c. [1824]

The motives of this work are: to necessitate the use of the rules by the children; to exercise their judgment; to give tests in the five fundamental operations, viz., addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, and partition.

Gore, C: The incarnation of the Son of God. New cheaper ed. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. '91. 21+295 p. 12°, (Bampton lectures, 1891.) cl., $1.50. [1827]

Gouin, François. A first lesson in French; from the French, by Howard Swan and Victor Bétis. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. 75 p. 12°, cl., net, 90 c. [1828]

Hamilton, C. D. P. Modern scientific whist: the principles of the modern game analyzed and extended; illustrated by over sixty critical endings and annotated games from actual play. N. Y., Brentano's, [1894.] c. 3-599 p. il. O. cl., $2. [1829]

This treatise on whist is based upon the system of leads known as "American leads." The principle underlying these leads is the invention of N. B. Trist, of New Orleans; and as now extended and simplified the whist world is indebted to Mr. Henry Jones ("Cavendish") of London. The purpose of this volume is to present to the student of the game the rules and maxims of play as laid down by the authorities and practised by the strongest players; and an effort has been made to simplify and render clear the applications of the many rules and maxims by copious analyses and numerous illustrations. Much space is devoted to the play of second hand, the intricacies of end-play, the department of inference, and to the management of trumps.

A translation of the story of the nun Alferez, which was written by its heroine, Catlina de Erasso, and first published in Spanish in 1625. It is a true story. The nun was a novice in a Dominican convent. She fled, dressed in man's clothes, travelled, robbed, gambled, fought battles and duels, and led the wildest life, remaining a wholly chaste woman. When she returned to Spain she was famous and revered, and was the only woman privileged to wear men's clothes. The original editions of this story are very scarce and others are not accurate.

New edition, reprinted in full from the excessively rare original issue of 1862, including the portrait and plate of that edition. The history of Richard, his intrigues to reach the throne of England, and the romantic story of the princes in the tower, interests every student of history. Mr. Jesse ably and critically discusses Richard's personal appearance, his acts and the motives that prompted them, and with the biographies of his chief contemporaries has produced a work that gives an accurate picture of those stirring times.

The time is about 1870, a few years after the northern part of Bokhara had been conquered by the Russians; the roving tribes of central Asia are greatly excited over the coming of another Russian expedition against the Turkomans. Atam Kul of the powerful nomadic tribe of Kirghiz is the "two-legged wolf"; he is a renegade and a thief, false to his own people, and a deserter from the Russian army; made prisoner by the latter, he escapes and successfully plans the kidnapping of a sister of charity serving in the Russian army. He endeavors to force her to become a member of his harem, but is brought to justice by the Kirghiz at last. Military life as seen in the Russian army is well described.

- A young woman, supposed to have been unmarried, and believed to have died from diphtheria, is proved to have been poisoned by morphine. She is shown to have been the wife of Dr. Emanuel Medjora, who had attended her in her last moments, and he is arrested on suspicion. A trial for murder follows; the evidence, which is sensational and dramatic being given at length. Medjora is the "modern wizard," and though not proven guilty of the crime at the time, is soon implicated in others. His powers come from his knowledge of hypnotism and sciences; he inoculates his victims with the germs of disease, or forces them to obey his will, even to their own destruction. The scene is laid in New York City.

- When Gaston Belward is twenty-seven years old he travels from Canada to England to claim his heritage. His father, the younger son of a noble house, had fled from home before Gaston's birth, on account of trouble with his father, and had spent the remainder of his days in the wilds of North America, leading a half-savage life with his wife, a half-breed of mixed Indian and French blood. Gaston, the issue of this marriage, is wholly unconventional, but daring and attractive. He creates a sensation at Ridley Court after his identity is made clear to his grandfather. His career is full of striking contrasts illustrating his mixed inheritance.

- The Biltmore estate is in North Carolina. The attempt to treat Biltmore Forest systematically derives a certain interest from the fact that it is the practical application of forest management in the United States. This little book, by the consulting forester, contains a description of the forest, when and upon it was begun, and of the operations carried on during the first year of management. The result of this first year's work is stated, both as regards the forest itself and the returns and expenses in money. The outline of the working plan is added, and a list is said as to the experiments in forest-planting and arbor-culture which have been begun. Finally, the possible value of the work is briefly noted. Gratis gratis on application to Mr. Pinchot.

The body of a young waiter, the well-known attendant of the card-room at the Patrician Club, is found early in the morning, evidently murdered in the streets of London. Who murdered him, and why, are the questions the story solves. There seems to be no reason for connecting his death with the members of the club, all men of high rank and character; but suspicion finally attaches to one of them. He is hunted down through many exciting scenes by a man whose good name he had ruthlessly destroyed, who successfully plays the detective. The story has many complications. The author wrote "The Englishman in Paris," so much talked about.

White, Percy. Mr. Bailey-Martin. N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co., [1894.] c. '93. 2-318 p. D. cl., $1. [1370]
An audacious arraignment of the prejudice, cant, snobbishness, and lack of poise of the English society of to-day. Mr. Bailey-Martin is the son of a tradesman, who at school meets Lord Righton, a specimen of all that is worst and most vulgar in inherited rank of the present day. By persistent effort the hero wins as his wife the daughter of an earl, who has cut loose from her family, and is conducting an unconventional paper devoted to all the undigested religious and political theories of the hour. The book is full of keenest satire, and although a novel, is probably written with an artistically hidden purpose.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

APRIL 28, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help therunto."—LORD BACON.

SUMMER READING.

AFTER sixteen years of existence it can hardly be necessary to enlarge upon the value of the Summer Number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY to publishers, booksellers, and the reading public. Its steady growth in quality and quantity is its own endorsement of recognized usefulness.

All booksellers know that as the summer approaches, and their customers begin making plans and laying aside the belongings they intend taking with them to mountains, lakes, and seashores, books are thought of as one of the most important additions to the yearly provisions for relaxation, recreation, and entertainment. It is one of the great opportunities of the year for the wide-awake bookseller. Many prepare lists themselves to tempt their customers, and throughout the summer send them from time to time to the spots in which their buyers are resting and reading. But the preparation of a tempting catalogue takes time, inclination, and experience, and year by year the booksellers tell us that they prefer we should undertake the task for them. Our "Summer Reading" is specially prepared to place in the booksellers' hands exactly what he needs to call his customers' attention throughout the summer to the classes of books specially suited to the hot season. Booksellers in summer resorts who have no regular customers also find this catalogue a great help in letting summer visitors know that there is a store at hand where they may find everything new in the market.

This year we are making a special effort to make our catalogue so attractive that booksellers will see at once how important it would be to place such a number with their own imprints in the hands of every customer. We shall again put a new cover on the number, which will speak of freedom, rest, and travel, and the contents will be made up of extracts from the publishers' newest preparations for summer trade, supplemented with book-lists of literature of travel, sport, out-door pleasures, and a specially full list of fiction. To derive the full benefit of the trade that may be drummed up through "Summer Reading," publishers and booksellers should help us to issue the number strictly on time, which they may do by letting us know at once how far we may look to them for advertising patronage and orders for imprint editions.

"Summer Reading" should be as good an investment to publishers and booksellers as the "Christmas Bookshelf," and might be made so if they would carefully turn their attention to its great possibilities as a trade canvasser. And not only publishers of novels and light literature should feel called upon to make this a representative book-list for booksellers to push actively throughout the summer. Summer travellers are "many men of many minds," and these minds crave for many different kinds of mental food. All books should be advertised in summer that can be packed in small compass and that can tempt readers of every character, taste, and hobby. Publishers can encourage booksellers by offering them plentifully of their best in the advertising columns, and booksellers can convince publishers that such advertising pays by doing their share of it in circulating generous imprint editions with discrimination born of enterprise and experience.

AN AMERICAN ACADEMY OF "IMMORTALS."

ON April 21 Representative Black, of Illinois, introduced into the House a bill providing for the organization of a body analagous to the "Immortals" of the French Academy. It provides for a committee of six—three senators and three members of the House—who shall elect five members distinguished in literature, science, fine arts, and invention, who in turn shall elect twenty other persons equally distinguished, the twenty-five to constitute the American Academy. It is to be the duty of the Librarian of Congress to set apart a chamber in the new library building suitable for the occupancy of the twenty-five, and they are to be furnished with pages to answer their calls, while thus engaged. The twenty-five may be a continuous body. They may fill vacancies, however occasioned, and for their better government they are empowered to determine the name of the body, to define eligibility to its membership, and enact by-laws and change them, and if they prescribe lectures by any of their members, the librarian is to furnish them a convenient lecture-room in the library building for such purpose.

This plan is said to have been originally suggested by Librarian Spofford, who sees no reason why it should not become a reality when the completion of the Congressional Library will give a suitable habitat for this "American Academy."

POSTAL MATTERS.

POSTAL UNION CARDS AND STAMPS.

H. T. FRUCAUFF, of Easton, Pa., has written a letter to The Nation, pointing out the great advantage it would be to travellers if the Postal Union at the next convention would take up the subject of Postal Union stamps and Postal Union cards. There should be International Postal Union five-cent stamps and two-cent postal-cards which could be mailed to and from any country where travellers happen to be, thus avoiding the necessity of seeking the post-offices, changing money, and having unused stamps and cards left upon one's hands. "Another feature of importance," says Mr. Frucauff, "would be that it often happens that persons see books or little things advertised in foreign periodicals that cost perhaps a shilling, a mark, or even a franc. Now it does not pay to go and buy an international postal order for so small an amount, and it would be useless to send stamps to that amount of the country in which you live, because the party receiving them cannot use them or dispose of them. But had we the Postal Union stamps, the recipient could use them in his foreign correspondence, or sell them to some one else who had such correspondence. Altogether the governments connected with the Postal Union will see of how much benefit to the public the proposed issue of stamps would be."

A NEW SCHEME IN POSTAL DELIVERY.

EX-REPRESENTATIVE HEMPHILL, of South Carolina, appeared before the House Committee on Post-Offices, April 19, in support of the bill to further extend the use of the mail service. The bill makes it lawful for postal-cards and envelopes with coupon attached to be carried in the mails, and the postage thereon, at the regular rates, to be paid on presentation of the coupons from them when detached at the office of delivery.

NEW FRENCH POSTAGE-STAMP.

STAMP collectors or "philatelists" as they call themselves, are much interested in the new series of postage-stamps about to be issued in France. The four post-office experts of the French Government were assisted in their preparation by the presidents of two societies of exhibiting artists, two distinguished sculptors, a medallist, an art critic, and the editor of a magazine devoted to the interest of stamp collectors. The result ought to be very elegant and artistic.

BOOKS FOR BIBLIOMANIACS.

THE following, according to the New York Times, is a list made in Paris of the twenty-five highest-priced books in the world:

"L'Amoureux Transi," by Jean Bouchet, printed on vellum. Quaritch paid $3200 for it at the Sutherland sale, in 1882.

The Psalter of Mentz of 1457. Louis XVIII. paid $2400 for a copy of it, which he presented to the National Library at Paris. Quaritch's price for the second edition of 1459 is $25,000.

The Valdarfer "Boccaccio," printed at Venice in 1471, brought at the Blanford sale, $10,400.

Boucher's "Figures de Molière" brought $5400 at the Pichon sale.

The Caxton "Boccaccio," printed in 1476, brought $4000 at the Techener sale, in 1886.

"L'Office de la Toussaint" brought $3600 at the La Carrelle sale. Baron Pichon paid $1200 in 1847.

"Boccaccio," first edition of 1471, brought $11,300 at the Roxburghe sale.

The works of Rabelais, printed by De Brie, brought $2800 at the Techener sale, in 1887.

"Monument du Costume," by Frenchieux Moreau, brought $4500 at the Behagat sale in 1880.

The works of Origen, bound with the works of Henry II. and Diane de Poitiers, brought $3600 at the Muller sale, in 1802.

Ovid's "Metamorphosis," illustrated by Breau, Boucher, and Eisen, brought $2600 at the Marquis sale, in 1890.

"Entrée de Henri II. à Paris et de Catherine de Medici," brought $4000 at the Destailleur sale, in 1891.

"La Chasse Royale du Roi Charles IX.," printed in 1625, brought $2536 at the Behagat sale.

"Les Amours de Daphnis et Chloé," printed in 1718, brought $3400 at the Quentin-Bauchart sale.

"Le Songe de Polyphile," printed in 1494 by Aldus, brought $2960 at the Gosford sale, in 1882.

"Les Quatre Dernières Choses," printed by Caxton in 1474, was sold by Quaritch for $2500.

The works of Virgil, printed on vellum in Rome in 1470, were sold by Quaritch for $2500.

The works of Homer, printed by Aldus in 1504, were sold by Quaritch for $3300.

The "Roland" of Ariosto, printed at Ferrara in 1516, was sold by Quaritch for $2500.

The first edition, 1469, of Gellius Aulus brought $4000 at the Sunderland sale, in 1882.

The works of Monstrelet, printed on vellum in 1500, brought $5600 at the Techener sale, in 1887.

"The Boke of St. Albans," printed in 1486, was sold by Quaritch for $3700.

"Historiarum Romanorum," printed at Venice in 1470, was sold by Quaritch for $4000.

The first folio of Shakespeare's plays was sold by Quaritch for $6000.

Gutenberg's Bible, second edition, 1469 or thereabout, was sold by Quaritch for $15,000.

A HOME FOR NEEDY LITERARY WORKERS.

The Home Hotel Association of New York held its sixth annual meeting on the 24th inst. at the house of Mrs. A. I. Ludlow, 118 E. 54th St. The object of the association is to establish a free home for needy workers in literature, or any of the professions. The meeting was fully attended, and officers for the present year were elected. The home now occupies three four-story dwelling-houses at 146-150 St. Ann's Ave., and larger quarters are needed to accommodate the growth of the association. Last year over sixty guests were received, the majority of whom paid nothing, and this year a much greater number is expected. It is hoped the trade may be interested in this very important undertaking, and give some practical sign that it recognizes the importance of this plan for helping sick and needy literary workers in their hour of distress. Mrs. Mary A. Fisher is president of the association, and among its patrons are the Rev. Arthur Brooks, the Rev. D. Parker Morgan, David A. Roody, Archdeacon Sever, Abram S. Hewitt, the Rev. Arthur H. Fick, and many others.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A PROTEST.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: Apopos of the article "Capture of a Book-Thief" in last week's PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, we desire to make a statement. The article, while in the main, correct as to the facts, does us no credit, as we are named with other city dealers as purchasers of the thief's "plunder" (don't like that word). We had not "purchased many volumes for six months or more" from Dennett. All told, we purchased from him, perhaps two dozen volumes. When Dennett brought us a duplicate large-paper copy of Stanley's "Canterbury Memorials" (Randolph) and an odd volume of an extra-illustrated edition of Lamb's "Essays of Elia," having Dutton's binding-mark, instead of refusing to purchase (though satisfied in our own minds that they were crooked) and so scaring the thief off, we bought the books and at once notified both firms personally and gave a full description of the thief.

A copy of "Ben Hur" and Winter's "Life of Booth" with several other volumes, were "found" at our place—but only after our notification to the publishers to that effect. And those books remaining unclaimed, we were at pains to find owners for by taking them to different up-town dealers for inspection. We take emphatic exception, for ourselves and the other dealers named, to the statement that we were purchasers of "plunder." Said statement puts us in a very unsavory light—a light which, as we have become favorably known to many dealers throughout the country, makes us wince. Had we not been at the trouble of notifying the publishers that they were being robbed, and describing the thief minutely, the former would probably have been in ignorance of the fact to-day, and the latter still at his "profession." We do not ask for any credit in stopping the theft and apprehending the thief—though perhaps some credit is due us. We do emphatically demand that in no sense (however indirect) shall we be connected with his depredations.

Very truly, S. F. McLEAN & Co.

THE TRADE MAGAZINE AN EDUCATOR.
To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: I believe many of your subscribers appreciated your instructive and practical articles on what a bookseller should know, and how to keep his magazine accounts, etc.

Reading the article headed "Half a Century of Bookselling," in yours of April 14, it is said of Mr. Bridgman that he had "also developed the mail order department of his business, supplying many Sunday-schools and public libraries," etc. I have no doubt Mr. Bridgman could give us younger struggling members of the fraternity many a pointer we could profit by. Do you think you could prevail upon some of those veterans to contribute some of their valuable secrets, which they have acquired by long experience, to the columns of your journal? I am sure the good would be one that many would appreciatively partake in.

I wish also to say that many a man is behind the bookseller's counter to-day that would receive immense benefit to himself by a systematic course of reading in English and American literature.

Leaving out of view the antiquarian and the foreign bookseller (the latter dealing in French, German, etc., books), every bookseller ought to have a "bookseller's library." I do not mean the American lists, the trade annuals and such publications, but a selection of books on literature, covering the English literature of all times and both continents so entirely that he can at any time turn to them, provided he has not mastered their contents by heart, and satisfy his customer by supplying such information as will lead to business. The history of literature should be well in hand by the book-store man, and the trade price-lists should furnish the counterpart in the way of information as to prices and publishers.

Everything tells behind a book-store counter as well as in any other business or profession, and the best-posted man will get the best showing.

I am certain, Mr. Editor, that if you will take hold of this idea and help us to work it out by pointing out such a course of reading in English literature as will lead to the formation of ideal "Booksellers' Libraries" that many in the trade beside myself will greatly appreciate your kindness.

Yours truly,

D. W. MCGREGOR.

ATHENS, GA., April 19, 1894.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MR. KIPLING has come to high honor in that a London suburban street has been renamed after him, and a street, too, whose former name was that of the great Admiral Nelson!

MISS ALICE FRENCH, otherwise Octave Thanet, the Iowa writer, is emulating Mr. du Maurier in illustrating a story from her own pen. It is the camera, however, and not the pencil, that she employs. A story thus ornamented by her is to be printed in a coming number of the Midland Monthly, the new Iowa magazine.

AN English author, G. Robinson Lees, F.R.G.S., has just been banished from Jerusalem. Mr. Lees is well known in Palestine for his intimate acquaintance with the people and holy places of Jerusalem, and is the author of "Jerusalem Illustrated." The attention of the Turkish officials was directed to certain statements in the book, and all discoverable copies were seized and confiscated, and the author ordered to depart.

T. M. CLARK, a Fellow of the American Institute of Architects, and the author of the well-known work on "Building Superintendence," has in press "Architect, Owner, and Builder before the Law." It will be published by Macmillan & Co., who have purchased from Ticknor & Co. the right to it, as well as to "Modern Perspective," by William R. Ware, the professor of architecture in Columbia College, and to "Safe Building," by Louis De Coppet Berg.

JAMES W. SULLIVAN, New York, the author of "Direct Legislation through the Initiative and Referendum," was on the staff of the Standard on its establishment by Henry George in 1887. To the columns of that journal Mr. Sullivan, as "Hagan Dwen," contributed a series of short stories of metropolitan life which attracted wide attention. Selecting from these, and adding some new stories, Mr. Sullivan will publish in May a volume entitled "The World We Live In."

OBITUARY NOTES.

THOMAS W. LUDLOW died at his home at Ludlow-on-the-Hudson, N. Y., on Tuesday, April 17. Mr. Ludlow received his degree of Bachelor of Arts from Harvard in 1882, and the degree of Master of Arts from Columbia in 1893. He began his literary career on the Evening Telegram and the New York Herald. He spent the year 1879 in Greece, and since then he had written largely of architecture and archaeology. He was a member of many literary and archaeological societies. As a member of the editorial staff of the "Century Dictionary," from its inception to its completion, he had charge of the subject of archaeology and art, and never spared any labor to make it a complete and accurate representative of the knowledge of to-day. The colleges of the United States have lost in him a sincere and enthusiastic worker, and the cause of classical learning a devoted friend.

WILLIAM V. KEATING, widely known throughout the United States and Great Britain by his skill as a physician and his various medical works, died in Philadelphia on Wednesday, April 18, of heart disease. He was born in 1823.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Germania, the monthly magazine for the study of German language and literature, has moved its office from Manchester to Boston.

The World's Columbian Exposition has now been removed by its Chicago publisher and has become Campbell's Illustrated Monthly.

The Magazine of New England History is now published in connection with Putnam's Monthly Historical Magazine, and all communications, subscriptions and exchanges should be sent to Eben Putnam, Box 301, Salem, Mass.

THE RAILWAY TIMES CO., New York City, have now ready the first number of The Railway Times A to Z Guide, a semi-monthly in which the information is arranged alphabetically by towns, a new feature in railway guides.

GEORGE W. SMALEY has committed to paper his recollections of his friend Wendell Phillips, and his article will appear in the June Harper. In the same number will be published the last of Constance Fenimore Woolson's Italian tales.

WITH the end of the present academic year, President Eliot, of Harvard, will complete his twenty-fifth year of service, and President Charles F. Thwing, of the Western Reserve University, himself a Harvard man, has written for the May Forum an appreciative review of his long administration of Harvard.

LITTELL & Co., Boston, are sending out the bound volume of their Living Age for January-March, 1894, the 200th in the series which men in middle life can now look back upon as one which no gentleman's library should be without. It is worthy of remark that this veteran eclectic should have maintained itself for fifty years, in spite of direct competition, and through all the vicissitudes of ever-cheapening literature, piracy, and copyright.

The Critic of April 14 is an Educational Number, containing reviews of seventy text-books and other educational works, classified under half a dozen headings. In an extra edition, sent to thousands of educators throughout the country, the publishers make a special offer to educational workers. Prof. Corson, of Cornell, prints in this number of The Critic a hitherto unpublished letter of Edwin Booth's, in which the famous impersonator of Shakespearian characters makes his appearance in a new rôle—that of a Shakespearian commentator. Dr. Band, of Boston, sends an interesting note on "Emerson as a Poet."

THE May issue of Poet-Love will be the Browning Anniversary Number, containing among other contributions, "Browning Rarities," by William G. Kingsland; a curious note, from Dr. Hiram Corson, of the Cornell University, which might be styled, "Light on a Browning Allusion, in 'The Ring and the Book,' Hitherto Obscured by Dr. Berdoz," "Sordello: a study of psychology in child-life," by A. Tolman Smith, of the Anthropological Society; "Browning's Interpretation of Romantic Love," by George W. Cooke, author of the "Browning Guide-Book;" "Browning's 'Latria,'" by the Rev. John W. Chadwick, and "Browning as Poet of the People."

NIKOLA TESLA pauses long enough in his investigations of electric currents of high potentiality to introduce to the English-speaking world the chief Serbian poet, Zmaj Jovan Ivanovich. He has written a brief sketch of Zmaj for the May number of The Century. Zmaj, who was born on the southern border of Hungary in 1833, is now a practicing physician at Belgrade, beloved by all his compatriots. Besides his poetry, Zmaj has written a play, a number of novels, and has founded and conducted with great success several humorous and satirical journals. Indeed, from one of these, Zmaj ("the dragon"), he has taken his name. Tesla has given a literal translation of a few of Zmaj's shorter poems, and Mr. Robert Underwood Johnson has put them into metrical form.

PERSONAL NOTES.

F. E. GRANT has entirely recovered from the effects of the operation for appendicitis, and may again be found in his familiar haunts.

BIRDSEYE BLAKEMAN, of the publishing house of Ivison, Blakeman & Co., of New York, is to expend $30,000 in the construction of a library in Stratford, Conn. Mr. Blakeman was born there, and the suggestion of the association to call it the Birdseye Blakeman Library has been rejected by Mr. Blakeman, and the name "The Stratford Library" substituted.

MR. H. G. PAINE, who has charge of Harper's Weekly during the illness of the editor, is a handsome young man, not over thirty years of age. He has been on the staff of the Harper's for some time, and has proved himself capable of filling the position. He is a graduate of Yale, and has written a great many short stories, which have won him considerable fame. He was formerly assistant editor of Puck for a number of years, and left there for Harper's.

BUSINESS NOTES.

NEW YORK CITY.—Town Topics has moved from 21 West 23d Street to 208 Fifth Avenue.

SELMA, ALA.—Walter S. Butler, who as a wee, fatherless tot entered the ranks of the book trade as a carrier on an afternoon paper in Selma, has just purchased the interest of his partner, E. S. Gatchell, in the book business. Mr. Butler has for many years been prominently connected with the book trade of central Alabama, and richly deserves the success he now enjoys.

TRAVERSE CITY, MICH.—C. W. De Zoete is to open a book-store here.

TROY, N. Y.—Shivler & Frothingham, book-sellers, have compromised at 25 cents on the dollar, cash.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

HARRISON S. MORRIS is preparing his first volume of verse, "Madonna, and other poems," for publication by the Lippincotts early in the fall.

PAUL LEICESTER FORD has edited a new and, as far as possible, complete edition of the writings of John Dickinson, the "Penman of the Revolution."

A. J. BUTLER, the Dante scholar, has made a translation of the correspondence of Cavour, just issued in Italy. It will be published by the Cassell Publishing Co., New York.

MACMILLAN & Co. have in press the following volume, completing the series of Rulers of India, "Earl Amherst," by T. W. Richmond Ritchie and Mrs. Richmond Ritchie (née Thackeray).

FREDERICK WARNE & Co. announce a new edition of Silas K. Hocking's latest work, "One in Charity." This successful book has reached in England a sale of 20,000 copies in six months.

GINN & Co. will have ready next month "First Steps in Algebra," by G. A. Wentworth, written for pupils in the upper grades of grammar schools. Nearly all the problems will be original.

THOMAS WHITTAKER announces "Fra Paolo Sarpi," the greatest of the Venetians, by Alexander Roberts. The author has been a resident of Venice for many years, and has studied closely the subject of his monograph.

THE Department of Library Economy of the Amherst Summer School is to open on July 2 and close on August 4, under the direction of Mr. William I. Fletcher, who will lecture daily as if to beginners. He should be addressed at Amherst for particulars.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co., who contributed a full tenth of the model library of 5000 volumes exhibited by the American Library Association at the World's Fair, have now made a "Descriptive List" of this part of the publications of their firm in a neatly printed pamphlet of 78 pages. It includes 548 titles.

THE estate of George Gebbie, the subscription-book publisher of Philadelphia, who died in August, 1892, has now been settled up by Judge Hanna in the Orphans' Court. The business is to be turned into a stock company named "The Gebbie Publishing Company," and to be carried on for his widow and children.

D. APPLETON & Co. state that all the illustrations as well as other contents of Mr. John Jacob Astor's new book, "A Journey in Other Worlds," are copyrighted. There has already been, according to the publishers, an unauthorized reproduction of four pictures, ascribed to the book, two of which do not appear in the work at all.

CHARLES H. SERGEL COMPANY will soon publish a new novel by Marian Crawford, author of "Mam'zelle Beauty." Since the publication of this latter story, now in its fourth edition, Miss Crawford has become Mrs. John Bevington, having been married to the well-known attorney, and all of her works will hereafter bear on the title-page the name of Marian Bevington.

D. VAN NOSTRAND COMPANY will have ready shortly "New Roads and Road Laws in the United States," by Gen. Roy Stone, who has enjoyed unequalled opportunities for obtaining information on this subject; and "The Electrical Transmission of Energy," a manual for the design of electrical circuits, by Arthur Vaughan Abbott, chief engineer of the Chicago Telephone Co.

"JOE JEFFERSON" is hard at work on the illustration of a new volume of "Rip Van Winkle," made up of his text, which will be brought out in the fall by Dodd, Mead & Co. Jefferson will do all the illustrating, and will also furnish the text, which he has been heard to declaim so many years. He will do most of this work while at Buzzard's Bay this summer, during the time which he can spare from fishing.

SIDNEY S. RIDER, Providence, R. I., proposes to reproduce the Digest of Rhode Island of 1719, which bears the title, "Acts and Resolves of His Majesty's Colony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations in America, Boston in New England, 1719." A fac-simile reprint of this very rare digest will be prepared, to which Mr. Rider will prefix a historical introduction. The edition will be strictly limited to fifty copies.

IT is probable that a plan will soon be submitted to the creditors of the firm of Charles L. Webster & Co., with a view to the resumption of business by the firm. The assets are said to fully cover liabilities. It is also stated that Mr. Samuel L. Clemens, although liable for the copartnership debts, will not be obliged to surrender much of his personal property. This will be pleasant news to the trade, which has always had a most kindly feeling towards "Mark Twain."

THE C. A. NICHOLS COMPANY, Springfield, Mass., have just issued the first volume of J. N. Larned's important reference work, "History for Ready Reference and Topical Reading." The second volume will be brought out in May, and it is expected that the five volumes, completing the work, will be issued before the close of the year. This noteworthy work of reference was fully described in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY of December 2, 1893; it is sold by subscription only.

D. C. HEATH & Co. have just issued a "Laboratory Manual in Elementary Biology," being an inductive study in animal and plant morphoogy, designed for preparatory and high schools, by Emanuel R. Boyer, instructor in biology, Eaglewood High School, Chicago, and lecturer in biology at the University of Chicago. A synopsis of the classification of animals and plants is appended to the book, thus furnishing full apparatus for the elementary study of biological science.

ARTHUR HINDS & Co. have just published a new interlinear translation of "Horace," including the odes, epodes, satires, and epistles, and Art Poetica. This makes the 11th volume in the series, of which the "Greek New Testament" is one. All the volumes of this Classic Interlinear Series are uniform in price, size, and style of binding. "Friendship and Old Age" and Xenophon's "Memorabilia," included in this series, have never before been published in the interlinear form.

THE MUNICIPAL LEAGUE, Philadelphia, has just issued the "Proceedings of the National Conference for Good City Government," which was held at Philadelphia in January last. The book deals separately with the municipal government of Boston, Brooklyn, Baltimore, Chicago, New York, and Philadelphia, and contains signed articles on various methods of reform. A valuable bibliography of municipal government and reform and a brief statement concerning the objects and methods of Municipal Reform Associations in the United States make the book of lasting importance.

GEORGE BARRIE, Philadelphia, sends us the first two parts of his great subscription publication, "Yankee Doodle at the Fair," the most captivating effort yet made to produce a portable souvenir of the World's Fair. It preserves within limited compass and in superb style the description and accurate illustrations of the best portions of the fair and the exhibits. The opening numbers redeem all the publishers' promises. The text has been committed to many hands. The illustrations, largely in color, are at their best in some of the vignettes, initials, and head-pieces. There will be twelve numbers.

CONSIDERABLE interest is awakened by the deliverance of the Griswold-Moore-Poe Papers, owing to the death of Dr. Moore. The old Lenox librarian had jealously hoarded them for half a lifetime, refusing them to the inspection of Mr. Stedman, Mr. Woodberry, and all other critics and biographers, imagining that he would in time utilize them for some report of his own. As the executor of Dr. Griswold he was enabled to do this, and his course, in fact, was quite in keeping with his methods at the Lenox Library. At his death, however, it was decided that all the Griswold papers (Poe's included) legally passed to young Mr. Griswold, now resident at Cambridge, Mass. These relics have been submitted by him to the inspection of Professor Woodberry, who will prepare some articles based upon them for a leading magazine.

FOREIGN NOTES.

A SCHOOL for booksellers is to be opened in St. Petersburg by the Russian Society of Booksellers and Publishers.

J. M. DENT & Co. will shortly begin the publication of the complete works of Sterne. The edition will be similar to that of Miss Austen, previously issued.

THERE is a prospect that Macaulay's diary will be published this year. The extracts communicated to the world by Sir George Trevelyan show how full of vivid interest the whole journal must be.

LOPEZ DE VEGA, among his voluminous writings, has five novels. The first is without the letter a, the second without e, the third without i, the fourth and fifth purposely omitting o and u respectively.

It has been decided that in 1896, 1898, and 1900 there shall be no Bampton Lectures. The reason is that the property which provides the endowment will in those years itself need the income for improvements.

A LONDON second-hand bookseller recently advertised a little book of religious consolation. It was published in 1630, and bears the consoling title, "A Handkerchief for Parents' We Eyes Upon the Death of Children."

WILLIAM ARCHER is translating for Mr. Heinemann, Gerhart Hauptmann's "Hannele," which will first appear in the New Review, with illustrations, and then be published in book-form. Mr. Heinemann intends to try the taste of the British public with translations of other plays of Hauptmann's, such as "Die Weber."

THERE is announced in England a new novel called "The Green Bay Tree," by Herbert Vivian and H. Wilkins, in which all the good characters come to hopeless grief and all the wicked ones flourish like the green bay tree of Scripture. A new feature in collaboration is also seen, as the authors distinguish their portions of the work.

THE BRONTË SOCIETY AND MUSEUM at present has its headquarters at Idel, Bradford, where Mr. J. Horsfall Turner, the corresponding secretary, resides. Lord Houghton is president, and among the vice-presidents are the Duke of Devonshire, Sir Isaac Holden, M.P., Mr. Wemyss Reid, Mr. A. Birrell, M.P., Drs. William Wright and Peter Bayne, Mrs. Darrover, and Mr. George Smith.

THE official list of new publications in India is very significant of the great change in that country within the last half century. When, forty years ago, in Madras the publications of a year were but a handful, now they number a thousand in twenty different languages. The total for the whole of India, according to the last report, was 7045. Of these, 1580 were on religion, 989 on language, 928 on poetry, and 77 on science; fiction, medicine, law, and the drama each numbering between two and three hundred. The smallest numbers were travel 17, and politics 14. The native librarians, in their quarterly reports to the government, complain, however, that works of merit are very rare, although they do find evidences of improvement, both in the talent and the moral tone of the works submitted to them.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

INFORMATION is wanted about a book entitled "Proper Words in Proper Places," which thus far we are unable to trace to a publisher. The author's name is said to be Swift, but his initials are not known.

AUCTION SALES.

[We shall be pleased to insert under this heading, without charge, advance notices of auction sales to be held anywhere in the United States. Word must reach us before Wednesday evening, to be in time for issue of same week.]

TERMS OF ADVERTISING

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as "not having been received."

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING CO.'S Latest Publications.

THE MAN IN BLACK.

By STANLEY J. WEYMAN, author of "The Story of Francis Cludde," "A Gentleman of France," etc. Illustrated by Wal. Paget and N. M. Paget. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

Like the other works of this author, which have given him his reputation, this is "a story of the olden time." To the reader wearied with the milk-and-water stories of "society," or the "purpose" novel so often produced only to gratify the vanity of a crank, the publishers recommend this virile production as an antidote. It is full of fire and life, with not too much love and politics to spoil the effect.

My Two Wives.

By ONE OF THEIR HUSBANDS. In two parts. Part I—My First Wife, by her Second Husband; Part II—My Second Wife, by her First Husband. With an editorial preface by Eldon Phewsees, Esq., etc., etc., and an authorial introduction by Mr. Timothy Moleskin, husband of the two Mrs. Moleskins. In Cassell's "Unknown" Library. Cloth, 16mo, 50 cents.

This bright effort, it is hoped, will not be one of the least interesting of the popular "Unknown" Library, of which it is No. 30.

My Lady's Dressing Room.

A Manual of the Toilet, adapted from the French of the BARONNE STAFFE. With introduction and notes by Harriet Hubbard Ayer. 12mo, with portrait, dainty binding. New edition, price reduced to $1.00.

A manual of the toilet, especially adapted to the needs of American women. Instructions for the care of the wardrobe are given with unusual particularity, together with hints for fitting up "my lady's dressing room." The book contains a portrait of Mrs. Ayer as a frontispiece.

BROKEN LINKS: A LOVE STORY.

By Mrs. ALEXANDER, author of "The Snare of the Fowler," "The Wooing O't," "Her Dearest Foe," etc., etc. 1 vol., 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

Mrs. Alexander is a name to conjure with. The simple announcement of a novel from her pen is sufficient. Her books are always extremely well written, depicting to the life the men and women of the upper middle class in England. This latest work of her pen shows no falling off in her powers, and will please every one who appreciates a clean, cleverly worked-out, old-fashioned love story.

The Story of Our Planet.

By T. J. BONNEY, D.Sc., LL.D., F.R.S., F.S.A., F.G.S., Professor of Geology in University College, London; Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge; and Honorary Canon of Manchester. With six colored plates and maps and about 100 illustrations. One vol., large 8vo, $5.00.

The author has aimed at rendering the main principles and results of geological reasoning intelligible to non-scientific readers of ordinary education, technical terms being, if possible, avoided, and, if not, explained. Some theoretical questions, such as the age and duration of the globe, the permanence of oceans and continents, the cause of the glacial epoch, etc., are briefly discussed.

"This volume is a most valuable addition to the none too many good popular works on geological science."—Boston Advertiser.

"Brim full of information, and yet well adapted to the wants of those unspecialized 'general readers,' for whose benefit it is designed. These, so far as we are aware, can apply to no safer authority."—Literary Digest.

The Experimental Novel, and Other Essays.

By ÉMILE ZOLA, author of "The Downfall" (La Débâcle), etc. Translated from the French by Belle M. Sherman. One vol., extra cloth, etc., $2.00.

"Émile Zola is the most interesting man in France. Who doubts it should read these essays."—Chicago Evening Post.

"The Kingdom of God is Within You."

Christianity not as a Mystic Religion but as a new Theory of Life. Translated by CONSTANCE GARNETT. 12mo, $1.50.

"For the student of Tolstol this book will have a special importance as marking another step in the philosophy of that stern moralist."—Book Buyer.

LIFE AND LATER SPEECHES OF CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW.

One vol., 8vo, extra cloth, gilt top, with new portrait by Sarony, $2.50. Edition de luxe, limited to 100 copies, half leather, $6.00.

"Foremost among our living American orators is Chauncey M. Depew, and in the volume of his speeches, just published, we have American oratory at its best. Mr. J. B. Gilder, in his introduction to this volume, gives a most appreciative biographical sketch of the orator, and the volume, as a whole, has a marked historical and biographical value as well as that which comes from its illustration of American oratory at the present day."—Boston Daily Advertiser.

Uniform with the above, a new edition of ORATIONS AND AFTER DINNER SPEECHES OF CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW.

One vol., 8vo, with portrait, etc., $2.50. The two volumes in a box, per set, $5.00.

A New Book by STANLEY J. WEYMAN.

UNDER THE RED ROBE.

A Romance. With 12 full-page illustrations by R. Caton Woodville. 12mo, linen cloth, ornamental, $1.25.

"Mr. Weyman is a brave writer, who imagines fine things and describes them splendidly. There is nothing to interest a healthy mind on every page of his new story. Its interest never flags, for his resource is rich, and moreover, the kind of a story that one cannot plainly see the end of from Chapter I. . . . the story with knowledge of French character and French landscape that was surely never acquired at second hand. The writing is wonderfully interesting."—New York Times.

"As perfect a novel of the new school of fiction as 'Ivanhoe' or 'Henry Ramond' was of theirs. His story has shown a marked advance in strength and treatment, and in the last Mr. Weyman . . . demonstrates that he has no superior among living novelists. . . . There are but two characters in the story—his art makes other but unnoticed shadows cast by them—and the attention is so keenly fixed upon one or both, from the first to the last, that we live in their thoughts and see the drama unfolded through their eyes."—N. Y. World.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR.

A GENTLEMAN OF FRANCE:

Being the Memoirs of Gaston de Bonne, Sieur de Marsac. With frontispiece and vignette by H. J. Ford. 12mo, cloth, ornamental, $1.25.

"The story is full of quick movements and abounds in dramatic situations; as it proceeds the plot thickens and one hairbreadth adventure succeeds another with almost bewildering rapidity. . . . In many respects this book is so noteworthy that it places Mr. Weyman at one stride in the front rank of living novelists. . . ."—London Spectator.

THE HOUSE OF THE WOLF.

A Romance. With frontispiece and vignette by Charles Kerr. 12mo, cloth, ornamental, $1.25.

"Of the half dozen stories of St. Bartholomew's Eve which we have read this ranks first in vividness, clearness of perception, reserve power, and high principle."—Christian Union, N. Y.

"A romance which, although short, deserves a place in literature alongside of Charles Reade's 'Clover the Hearth.'"—Commercial Advertiser, N. Y.

RECENTLY PUBLISHED.

MONTEZUMA'S DAUGHTER.

By H. RIDER HAGGARD, author of "She," "Allan Quatermain," "Nada the Lily," etc. With 24 full-page illustrations and vignette by Maurice Greiffenhagen. Crown 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

Nothing in all American history is more romantic or more picturesque than the tale of the Conquest of Mexico by the Spaniards, and it is into this that Mr. Haggard has woven the strange adventures and escapes of Thomas Wingfield, Englishman, married to the daughter of Montezuma. Mr. Greiffenhagen's original and striking illustrations have been drawn especially for this volume.

WHAT NECESSITY KNOWS.

A Novel. By Miss L. DOUGALL, author of "Beggars All." Crown 8vo, cloth, $1.00.

"Miss Dougall, in this, her latest production, shows a ripeness of thought, fertility of invention, and surety of method even superior to those qualities as they were exhibited in 'Beggars All.' . . . 'What Necessity Knows' is one of the novels that must be read. It is easy to predict for Miss Dougall a very distinct place among the writers of English fiction."—Boston Beacon.

D. APPLETON & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

Aerial Navigation.

By J. G. W. FIJNJE VAN SALVERDA, late Administrator of Public Works of the Netherlands. Translated from the Dutch, by GEORGE E. WARING, Jr. With Notes concerning some Recent Developments in the Art. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

The author states that the important question of aerial navigation has taken on a more and more scientific character, and has enlisted the increasing interest of serious minds; and that among competent experts the opinion is held that a brilliant future is before it. To recent meteorological observations, and numerous investigations as to the movements of birds, are mainly attributed the remarkable advances toward the solution of the problem, detailed accounts of which are comprised in this interesting volume.

A System of Lucid Shorthand.

Devised by WILLIAM GEORGE SPENCER. With a Prefatory Note by HERBERT SPENCER. 12mo, cloth, 50 cents.

This system, devised by Mr. Herbert Spencer's father, has been in manuscript since 1843. It is now published, as explained by the writer of the Prefatory Note, not because it possesses advantages over existing phonographies for reporting and kindred purposes, but "from the conviction, long since formed and still unshaken, that it ought to replace ordinary writing." It is claimed that, as it possesses the brevity of shorthands in general, and greater legibility, the use of it by men of business, journalists, authors, and people at large, would achieve a great economy of life.

Hume.

With Helps to the Study of Berkeley. By THOMAS H. HUXLEY. The sixth volume of the author's Collected Essays. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

CONTENTS.—Early Life of Hume: Literary and Political Writings. Later Years: The History of England. The Object and Scope of Philosophy. The Contents of the Mind. The Origin of the Impressions. The Classification and the Nomenclature of Mental Operations. The Mental Phenomena of Animals. Language—Propositions concerning Necessary Truths. The Order of Nature: Miracles. Theism: Evolution of Theology. The Soul: The Doctrine of Immortality. Volition: Liberty and Necessity. The Principles of Morals.

Bishop Berkeley on the Metaphysics of Sensation. On Sensation, and the Unity of Structure of Sensiferous Organs.

A Journey in Other Worlds.

A Romance of the Future. By JOHN JACOB ASTOR. With 9 full-page illustrations by Dan Beard. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"An interesting and cleverly devised book. . . . No lack of imagination. . . . Shows a skilful and wide acquaintance with scientific facts."—New York Herald.

"The author speculates cleverly and daringly on the scientific advance of the earth, and he revels in the physical luxuriance of Jupiter; but he also lets his imagination travel through spiritual realms, and evidently delights in mystic speculation quite as much as in scientific investigation. If he is a follower of Jules Verne, he has not forgotten also to study the philosophers."—New York Tribune.

NOTES IN SEASON.

LLOYD POCOCK & Co., Chicago, have just issued a new cheap edition, in paper covers, of Sarah Grand's "The Heavenly Twins."

GINN & Co. have just issued "The Technique of Sculpture," by William Ordway Partridge, instructing in the whole process, from the working of the clay to the final execution in bronze or marble, made clear by many illustrations. A brief history of sculpture from prehistoric times adds to the value of this useful book.

E. L. KELLOGG & Co. have issued "A Class in Geometry," by George Iles, which is full of hints for both teacher and pupil. It describes three boys who became interested in geometry by observing plants, insects, rocks and sand, and other common things, and were then led on to the laws of space and form binding all these together. Their invention and judgment were educated, and they were led to clearly think out the principles of astronomy.

THE CENTURY COMPANY has ready the promised edition of the writings and addresses of Lincoln, as prepared by Lincoln's biographers, Messrs. Nicolay and Hay. They appear as two volumes, and are in binding uniform with the biography. As the matter is closely printed and there are nearly 1500 pages in all, the material is large in amount. It ranges from the year 1832, when Lincoln was twenty-three years old, down to the month in which he died. An exhaustive and careful index is given.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready "Aërial Navigation," a scientific investigation of recent developments in this interesting problem, by J. G. W. Fijnje Van Salverda, translated from the Dutch by George E. Waring, Jr.; "A System of Lucid Shorthand," devised by William George Spencer, father of the great scientist, Herbert Spencer, who furnishes a prefatory note; and the sixth volume of Prof. Huxley's "Collected Essays," comprising "Hume" and "Helps to the Study of Berkeley." The new issue in the Town and Country Library is "The Rich Miss Riddell," by Dorothea Gerard.

MACMILLAN & Co. have ready Mrs. John Richard Green's new work, "Town Life in the Fifteenth Century," in two volumes; "Santa Teresa," being some account of her life and times, together with some pages from the history of the last great reform in the religious orders, by Gabriela Cunningham Graham, in two volumes, with two autogravure frontispieces; "Retorical Addresses of the University of St. Andrews, 1863-1893, Sir William Stirling-Maxwell to the Marquess of Bute," edited with an introduction by Prof. William Knight, of the University of St. Andrews; "The Natural History of the Christian Religion," by William Mackintosh; and "The Readings on the Inferno of Dante," chiefly based on the "Commentary of Benvenuto da Imola," by Hon. William Warren Vernon, in two volumes. Among their most recent works they call attention to "Sources of the Constitution of the United States," by C. Ellis Stevens; Hegel's "Philosophy of Mind," translated by William Wallace, and a new edition of "The Logic of Hegel;" "The Diary of a Cavalry Officer," by the late Lieut.-Col. William Tomkinson, edited by his son, and a new volume in "The Periods of European History," "Period V., 1598-1715," by H. O. Wakeman. The May number of The Psychological Review is also ready.

POSTAL MATTERS.

THE House has defeated the ill-considered attempt to shut books out of the cheap postal rate by limiting the 2 cent a pound rate to what the Post-Office Department authorities considered a "periodical."

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLIC.

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. or of press, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A. Aug. D. David. R. Edward. F. Frederic. G. George. H. Henry. I. Isaac. J. Peter. K. Richard. S. Samuel. T. Thomas. W. William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio over 30 centimeters high); (Q. 4 D. (same as 50 cm). S. (same as 17 1/2 cm). T. (same as 15 cm.); 21. (same as 12 1/2 cm.). designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

A. E. V. In maiden meditation. Chic., A. C. McClurg & Co., 1894. c. 3-317 p. S. cl., $1. [1875]

A quotation on the title-page from Montaigne—"I have gathered a posie of other men's flowers, and nothing but the thread that binds them is mine own"—strikes the keynote of this volume. The writer, a woman seemingly, divides her thoughts and dreams on all sorts and kinds of themes into five parts, namely: After the ball. After dinner. After church. After a wedding, and After one summer. Love and marriage, dress and flirtation, youth and old age, literature and religion, all claim her attention.

Anderson, Hans Christian. Danish fairy-tales; with a biographical sketch. N. Y., Maynard, Merrill & Co., [1894.] c. 96 p. S. (Maynard's English classic ser., no. 127.) pap., 13 c. [1876]

Contents. The daisy; Thumbelina, Five out of one shell; The flax. The fir tree; The storks.

Barr, Mrs. Amelia E. The lone house. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., [1894.] c. 98. 235 p. D. cl., $1.25. [1877]

The scene of the story is Andrew Carrick's house, built on the summit of a bluff overlooking the Irish Sea—the Mull of Galloway at the extreme end of the western coast of Scotland. Andrew Carrick is a shoemaker deeply interested in Dr. Chalmers and the Free Kirk movement. His daughter is the heroine of the story, her romance and her father's opposition to her suit bring about the chief events.

"There are already in the field many rival schemes of classification for libraries. The present publication is not intended to add one to the number, but rather to offer a way of escape for those who shrink from the intricacies and difficulties of the elaborate systems, and to substitute for painstaking analytical classification a simple arrangement which it is believed is better adapted to be practically useful in a library, while doing away with most of the work involved in carrying out one of these schemes."—Introduction.

A pathetic story of Ireland. The characters belong to the peasant class. The ambition of a vain woman, who discards a faithful lover on account of the attentions of a richer man, hoping he will make her his wife, is the cause of a distressing tragedy.

Seven stories by the author of "Ships that pass in the night." They are all of a somewhat sombre tint and several are quite fantastic. The opening tale, "At the Green Dragon," gives a charming picture of domestic life in Shropshire. Hieronymus Howard, a literary man, is detained by an accident at the "Green Dragon"—a pleasant country inn—and a story grows up around him, which has an unconventional heroine and a sad ending; it is not, however, devoid of a certain grim humor. Besides this story are: "The painter and his picture," "The umbrella-mender," "A bird of passage," "The clockmaker and his wife," "Sorrow and joy," and "An idyl of London."

- King, C. Cadet days: a story of West Point. N. Y., Harper, 1904. c. 4+208 p. il. D. cl., $1.25. [1403]
A graphic picture of West Point life. Beginning with George Graham's application for nomination by the congressman of his district, Capt. King carries his hero through the full four years' course at the Military Academy. All the details of cadet life—the miseries of "plebehood," the rise to the dignity of "yearlings" and third-class men, the grind of drill and study—are exemplified in Graham's career, as he makes his way from the humble standing of a "plebe" to the glories of graduation as first captain of his class. There is plenty of boy nature in the book, a modicum of pranks and escapades, and the two or three inevitable "black sheep," whose machinations add to the interest of the story.

These interesting and valuable volumes are indispensable supplements to Nicolay and Hay's biography of Lincoln. They are in size and binding uniform with the biography, but the paper is in a smaller type. The editors have added neither notes nor an introduction nor a table of contents. There is, however, an exhaustive index covering ninety pages, and the headlines to each page epitomize its material. Everything almost that Lincoln has written may be found here—the Gettysburg address, the Emancipation Proclamation, his debate with Douglas, his early love letters, with all the many and wonderful speeches and state papers called forth by the exceptional conditions through which he lived.

Masterman, J. A. devoted couple; a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. 2+356 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 745.) pap., 60 c. [1413]

A story of English home-life in a large family. The "devoted couple" are the parents of six sons. The story opens with Mr. and Mrs. Vernon's return, with their two youngest children, from long residence in India, to settle in England and renew home-life with the four boys whom they had left in the mother country twelve years before. The quiet fortunes of the Vernons are followed through successive years of happiness, separation, and reunion. Of course most of the young people have their little romance, and several daughters-in-law are inducted into the home. The mutual devotion of husband and wife, and the affection and confidence between parents and children are pleasantly pictured.

Matthews, Jas. Brander. This picture and that; a comedy. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 5-76 p. il. T. (Harper's black and white ser.) cl., 50 c. [1414]

The time is an evening in the spring of 1864, the heroine is a handsome young widow, who says she will "never marry again." A doctor and a soldier are her suitors, and a pretty comedy is evolved. Was acted at the Lyceum Theatre in New York in 1867.

Merriman, H. Seton. With edged tools; a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 4+340 p. D. cl., $1.25. [1416]

The scene changes back and forth, from London to the heart of Africa. Two young men of good families, both impelled by love for the same woman, who is flirting with one, though engaged to the other, and who has deceived both, engages in a scheme with a third man, expecting to make great fortunes that will enable them to marry. The scheme is to take an expedition to the heart of Africa and secure a quantity of a valuable plant called "simiacine," which has rare medicinal properties. Opportunity is thus given for many fresh scenes from African life in the jungle, with its dark side of vice and misery and its noble and adventures. Two elderly titled friends in London "swim" are sketched with a Thackeray-like cynicism.

Mombert, J. I., D.D. A short history of the crusades. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 4-301 p. maps, D. cl., $1.50. [1417]

The many pilgrimages made to the Holy Land during two centuries—from the eleventh to the thirteenth—are carefully and vividly described. A brief list of authorities (1 page) Index.

Moss, Lemuel, D.D. A question of attitude and a day with Paul. Phil., The American Baptist Pub. Co., 1894. 40 p. 16°, pap., 10 c. [1418]

My two wives, by one of their husbands; a two parts: Part 1, My first wife, by her second husband. Part 2, My second wife, by her first husband; with an editorial preface by Eldon Phewfees, esq., etc., etc., and an authorial introduction by Mr. Timothy Moleskin. N. Y., The Canal Pub. Co., [1894.] c. 26+170 p. nar. D. (The unknown lib., no. 30.) cl., 50 c. [1419]

The husband who tells the humorous and often pathetic story of his matrimonial ventures is a retired grocer who confesses to "a grocer's heart and mind." The first Mrs. Moleskin was a widow of great self-esteem, energy, and strong evangelical tendencies; the second is a gentle, loving woman, in whom her much-married husband finds all he had dreamed of home life and happiness. The grocer's comments on the habits and religion of his neighbors are full of worldly wisdom and common sense.

Ogden, Rob. C. Samuel Chapman Armstrong; a sketch. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., [1894.] c. 2-40 p. D. hf. cl., 35 c. [1420]

Gen. Armstrong was the founder, and for twenty-five years the principal of the Hampton Institute, the address was delivered at the Institute on Founder's Day, Jan. 28, 1894, the first observance of the day.

Philadelphia. National Conference for Good City Government. Proceedings of the National Conference for Good City Government, held at Philadelphia, January 25 and 26, 1894; with a bibliography of municipal government and reform, and a brief statement concerning the objects and methods of municipal reform organizations in the United States. Phil., The Municipal League, 1894. 5+388 p. O. cl., $1.50. [1421]

Some of the speeches are: Municipal government of Boston, by Moorfield Storey; Municipal government of Brooklyn, by W. O. Low; Municipal government of Chicago, by Franklin MacVeagh; Municipal government of Baltimore, by Charles J. Bonaparte; Municipal government of New York, by Edmund Kelly; Municipal government as it should be, and may become, by Leo S. Rowe. The relations of civil service to reform to municipal reform, by Carl Schurz. The relations of women to municipal reform, by Mrs. Harri Mumford. The separation of municipal from other elections, by W. Harris Roome. Influence upon official office, by Rev. Washington Gladden. How to arouse public sentiment in favor of good city government, by Edwin D. Mead and Rev. J. H. Esch. How to bring public sentiment to bear upon the choice of good city officials, by Alfred Bishop Mason and Samuel B. Carpenter. The bibliography covers thirty-nine pages, and is in two alphabets, one by subject, the other by authors.

Poems, sonnets, songs, and verses, by the author of "The professor, and other poems." N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 149 p. 16°, parchment, $1. [1422]

Robertson, Rev. Alex. Fra Paolo Sarpi, the greatest of the Venetians. N. Y., T. W. Waker, 1894. 22+196 p. por. D. cl., $1.50. [1423]

The distinguishing characteristics of Fra Paolo Sarpi were freedom of thought and love of country. In his time, and earned the enmity of Pope Sixtus through his writings and his open criticism of the papal system and policy. He was born in Venice.

1552, and died in 1623; he entered the monastic life when about thirteen, in which he remained until his death, in spite of his efforts to have the Protestant religion openly tolerated in Venice. He wrote on many subjects—history, religion, and science—and made many discoveries in astronomy and anatomy. He was a statesman and a student of constitutional government. His chief published works are: "History of the Venetian Inquisition," "History of the Council of Trent," and "History of the Interdict." This biography, a labor of love with the writer, gives all these facts and others.

Robinson, E. A., and Wall, G. A. The gun-bearer: a novel; il. by Ja. Fagan. N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, 1894. c. 3-276 p. D. (Ledger lib., no. 107.) cl., $1.25; pap., 50 c. [1424]

A story of the late war; it opens with the firing upon Fort Sumter, and ends with the surrender of Lee. The hero belongs to a Kentucky regiment; his story deals with the life of a private in the ranks, his experience in camp, on the march, in the bivouac, on picket duty, in skirmishes and in battles.

Ward, Herbert D. The white crown, and other stories. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 3+336 p. D. cl., $1.25. [1438]

Contains, besides the title-story, "The semaphore," "The value of a cipher," "A romance of the faith," "Only an incident," "A cast of the net," "The equation of a failure," and "The missing interpreter."

Ware, W. R. Modern perspective: a treatise upon the principles and practice of plane and cylindrical perspective. 5th ed. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 321 p. with a portfolio cont. 27 plates, sq. 8°, cl., $5. [1439]

Weyman, Stanley J. The man in black; il. by Wal. Paget and H. M. Paget. N. Y., The Cassell Pub. Co., 1894. 3+212 p. D. cl., $1. [1440]

Mr. Weyman has again chosen seventeenth century France as the setting for a story. "The man in black" is Solomon Nostradamus, of Paris, astrologer and dealer in philters, potions, and poisons. Into his clutches falls little Jehan de Bault, a lost child of good family. A poison given by Nostradamus to one of the ladies of the court, at her husband's instance, is, through the lad's interference, administered to the husband instead. His death, and his wife's arrest follow. There is a graphic description of the trial for murder, and in the dramatic climax little Jehan is restored to his estates and home.

Wilbur, Mrs. R. M. Lassie of Glengarry. Phil., American Baptist Pub. Soc., 1894. 192 p. 12°, cl., 90 c. [1441]

Wilkins, Miss Mary E. Pembroke: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 8-380 p. il. D. cl., $1.50. [1442]

Pembroke is the name of the New England village in which the events of the story take place. The characters are nearly related, and have strongly-marked peculiarities. The slight plot turns upon an opening scene. Cephas Barnard, a self-willed old man, quarrels about politics with Barnabas Thayer, an obstinate young man, and his daughter's intended husband, and orders him out of his house. Although Charlotte Barnard and Barnabas are to be married in a month's time, the efforts of the united families fail to bring peace. The conflict of the two strong wills, and a secondary story of the prolonged courtship of Charlotte's Aunt Sylvia constitute the story. The exceptionally good pictures of New England of fifty years ago are by Clifford Carleton.

Wisconsin. Supreme ct. Reports of cases, with tables of the cases and principal matters. F. K. Conover, off. rep. V. 85. Apr. 11-Sept. 26. Chic., Callaghan & Co., 1894. c. 27+729 p. O. shp., $2.75. [1443]

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MAY 5, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help therunto."—LORD BACON.

THE ABUSE OF RECEIVERSHIPS.

THERE is an old proverb that the receiver is worse than the thief. This was not intended to apply to receivers in the modern sense, that is to say, the worthy gentlemen who, as officers of the court, are put in charge and in absolute control of bankrupt estates, pending the settlement of accounts. But it is true that creditors are beginning to feel that the losses which are the direct result of bankruptcies are sometimes less than the losses which accrue under receivers' control of the estate of the bankrupt.

The case of the United States Book Company is fairly in point. When this company and the satellite concerns in its orbit were forced to confess bankruptcy, the court appointed as receiver one of the most esteemed business lawyers in New York, who had had large experience in the handling of bankrupt estates. A clear-headed business man of this sort was needed to unravel the tangle and hold the property under protection of the court until such time as the assets could be figured and some arrangement made for a division among the creditors of what was left. This has proved to involve the practical continuation of the business at the expense of the creditors. The receiver was not a man acquainted with the book trade, and he could only rely upon such agents as he found to carry on the business. A large and complicated business is not likely to be continued in this way without continuing losses, notwithstanding the honest and accurate handling of accounts which may be expected from a receiver like Mr. Gould. As a result, the assets of a concern are likely to diminish steadily until, in despair, the creditors who have real interests at stake are only too willing to let what remains of the good-will, or the ill-will, go back into the hands of those who were originally responsible for the wrecking of the business. In the present case, we cannot learn that the creditors' committee of five, Messrs. John I. Waterbury, Manhattan Trust Co., chairman; Schuyler Quackenbush, banker, 38 Broad Street; F. W. Hopkins, broker, 72 Broadway; Austin W. Fletcher, lawyer, 29 Broadway, and D. G. Garabrant, of Buckley, Dunton & Co., 75 Duane Street, none of whom are practical publishers or booksellers, have done anything effective, and the results of drift, in the publishing business, in hard times, are not likely to be altogether satisfactory to creditors.

We take this as an example of what is a present and pressing evil in the business world. A receiver, as an officer of the court, cannot settle previous debts, and in one sense stands in the way of an early settlement. He is there to see that no more losses occur, but, nevertheless, this very process sometimes invites new losses. It is difficult to see quite the best way out in such cases, and we have done our present duty in calling this matter to the attention of those concerned. One useful reform might be a quarterly report of a receiver to the court, which the receiver would also send to the creditors.

THE receiver of the Worthington Co., Hon. J. J. Little, has taken some such course—and it is "greatly to his credit" to have done it so boldly. It is evident that the path of the receiver who undertakes to do positive instead of negative work is not always a happy one. We print elsewhere the letter addressed by him to the creditors of the Worthington concern, the most trenchant contribution yet made to the literature of trade bankruptcy. Mr. Little is certainly entitled to hearty thanks for hard work and fearless rigor, whether his charges are right or wrong, and his endeavors to clear the air of the book trade should be appreciated.

THE failure of the "Elzevir Co.," of which Mr. John B. Alden is a leading spirit, is recorded this week. A valuable chapter of trade history could be written of the bankruptcies of the successive and protean enterprises with which Mr. Worthington, Mr. Alden, and Mr. Lovell have been associated.

address you.

Had I known at the beginning what days and nights of labor were in store and what unpleasant duties were to be forced upon me, I could not have been induced to accept the position. Having accepted it, however, and realizing that I was the personal representative, not only of every creditor of the corporation, but of the Supreme Court itself, I have not failed to do my full duty as it has appeared to me, in spite of threats or of pleadings.

I was appointed temporary receiver on January 26, 1893. Mr. Richard Worthington, who, from the organization of the company, had been its business manager, and was its secretary and treasurer, and in whose integrity I had confidence, even if I may have questioned his business judgment, was of course and almost of necessity kept as one of the chief advisers.

The schedules of assets and liabilities filed with the court at the time of asking for a receiver had been made up under his personal direction and supervision, and was sworn to by each of the trustees (himself, Mr. Doman, who was a nephew of his wife, and a Miss Sproule, of whom you will hear again). No member of his household was included in these sworn lists as a creditor.

After awhile rumors reached me to the effect that property of the company had been taken to a distant State, shortly before the appointment of the receiver, and not properly accounted for. I demanded of Mr. Worthington a full explanation, if any such thing had been done. His answer was a most positive denial. Perhaps no better explanation can be made of what was said regarding these shipments of books out of the State than by inserting here a letter, written at the time, concerning his statement.

"NEW YORK, April 27th, 1893.

book-keeping, and that the entries had been made by book-keepers to own faults, led to no satisfactory result. The statement of the book-keeper, and the report of an expert accountant of those particular entries, convinced me that they had been wilfully made, by direct order of Mr. Worthington. In the meantime, creditors held a meeting, and efforts were made by Mr. Worthington looking to settle with them. In view of the deplorable situation then existing throughout the country, and the fact that complicated litigation need to be carried on—for Mr. Worthington maintained the integrity of the entries referred to, and claimed, by the shareholders, to be a creditor of the company for $2555.62, his wife for $7336.00, and Miss Sproule for $1870.00, although, as far as I know, none of them appear as creditors in the list presented to the court. I look upon his efforts, believing that it was to the advantage of the creditors to accept of his offer.

Miss Sproule has lived in Mr. Worthington's family ever since she came to the United States. Testimony was given before the court in the case of Mrs. Worthington's claim, that she was the housekeeper for about one year she had served in a minor position, for which she was paid $10.00 per week. Mr. Worthington swore that she was not related to him, although in the proceedings before the court, in the spring of 1893, he swore that she was his sister-in-law; and several years ago, under examination in supplemental proceedings, he swore that she was a cousin of his wife. In the present proceedings, Mr. Worthington was made to appear by the minutes of the meeting (Mr. Worthington) as the rounding the investigation, Mr. Worthington claimed the right to act in several capacities at the same time. As the business manager of the Worthington Company, he would assume to sell property to himself as the agent of his wife and Miss Sproule, whether with or without their personal knowledge or presence.

The efforts of Mr. Worthington to compromise with the creditors were not successful, and on the 13th of October the court appointed me as the permanent receiver of the company, ordering the dissolution of the corporation, the assets to be disposed of and the proceeds distributed among the creditors.

Shortly thereafter Mr. Worthington presented to me sworn claims on behalf of his wife and Miss Sproule, aggregating more than $71,000, as well as laying claim to the larger portion of the book stock, electrotypes plates, office furniture, etc., remaining on hand, and in my possession as receiver.

You may imagine the task then before me when I state that the claims were made upon the theory that, after the failure of Mr. Worthington in 1885, his wife had advanced him more than $40,000 to pay his creditors, and for this he had given her bills of sale of all property turned back to him by Mr. Jenkins, the assignee, upon the completion of the compromise with his creditors after that assignment. That all of this property had been left by her for sale and use by the Worthington Company, and must be accounted for. Upon my application the court, on the 8th of December, appointed a referee, William H. Willis, Esq., of 115 Broadway, to hear and determine the validity of those claims, I having rejected them all, and for four months he has been taking evidence regarding the same, and has just rendered his report to the court, finding that all the claims presented were fictitious.

Mr. Worthington produced bills of sale (?) to Mrs. Worthington, and maintained that unless the receiver could show title, all the property still belonged to her. It was no easy task for a receiver to produce invoices of many years ago, when the interests of those who had been the custodians required that they should not come to light. However, important invoices were discovered and annual inventories were critically examined, with favorable results; papers offered as evidence of title against the company were proved to be simply manufactured at a recent period; and finally, the case was so thoroughly exposed that it broke down, even before we had placed our expert accountant on the stand, on the 14th of April the attorney for the Worthingtons stating to the court his surprise at the situation, and withdrawing from the case, thus abandoning all the claims presented.

Mrs. Worthington was unable to explain where she got the large sums of money which it was claimed she loaned to her husband and the company. The only money of her own that she could account for, previous to the failure of 1885, was one thousand dollars, which she had in the Bleeker Street Savings Bank, notwithstanding she was named as a preferred creditor for a large amount at the time of the failure in 1885.

We are able to show that, previous to the failure of 1885, very large quantities of books were sent out of the State, but sold after the assignment, the proceeds being turned over to Miss Sproule instead of to the assignee, and thus her apparent wealth was accounted for.

Much false evidence had been given, documents had been made in secret and sworn to as true before the court, even the secretary's book of minutes being bunglingly altered in attempts to make them uphold these false claims. All this had involved the estate in thousands of dollars of expense, thereby reducing the dividends to the creditors to that extent. Under these circumstances I deemed it my duty to select at least one case from the many, and prefer a charge of perjury against Mr. Worthington, as otherwise I had expended your money simply to prevent his taking what property he had not already taken as an officer of the company while managing it. The report of the expert accountants show that the Worthington household, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Worthington and Miss Sproule, are justly indebted to the estate for more than sixty thousand dollars, instead of it being indebted to them for more than seventy-one thousand dollars. Suits have already been commenced against them for the amounts so shown to be due. I have also secured warehouse receipts for eighty-eight cases of books which were stored in Mrs. Worthington's name, a portion of them being the books shipped to Chicago; and let me here note that twenty-eight cases of these books were shipped to Chicago as early as October, 1892, charged to no one, and no entry whatever made in the books, the carman's receipt who took them to the railroad being the only record found.

The facts of the particular case which I have selected for prosecution are as follows, viz.:

In order to prove title to the books improperly shipped to Chicago, Mr. Worthington testified that they had been sold to his wife, who, he claimed, was doing business under the firm-name of R. Worthington & Co.; that she had paid for the books by giving notes; that the notes had been paid over to Miss Sproule, as the company owed her money; that at their maturity Mrs. Worthington had taken up or paid the notes; he went so far as to produce three notes which he identified as the notes so given; he also produced three checks, drawn on the East River National Bank, of the same amount as the notes, and bearing dates corresponding to the dates when these three notes matured, and testified that these particular checks were paid for these particular notes; whereas the whole statement appeared to be false, the cashier of the bank testifying that the bank had never received the identified checks in payment of the identified notes, and, if possible, worse than all, he testified that at the times the checks bear date Margaret Worthington, whose name was signed to those checks, had no account in the bank from which said checks could or would have been paid had such been presented.

I realize the importance of such a serious charge, but am fully persuaded that I should have failed in my duty to you and to myself had I pursued any other course. This slight outline, which might be continued almost indefinitely, will help you to a correct judgment of the situation, and thus enable you to approve or otherwise what I have very reluctantly determined was my duty in the premises.

A judicial examination of the perjury charge was concluded at the Tombs Police Court to-day, the judge deciding not to hold Mr. Worthington for the action of the Grand Jury.

I have endeavored to conduct the affairs of this receivership as carefully and as economically household been successfully resisted, I am of the opinion that the creditors of the corporation would have received but a very trifling dividend, if any at all.

In case any one may think that action looking to criminal prosecution should have been taken at an earlier date, I beg to say that what requires but a few minutes to read and understand, when placed in form of this statement, was slowly developed by months of hard investigation, some of the most important links in the chain of evidence having but recently been brought to light. Early in the autumn of last year I deemed it my duty to entirely dispense with the services of Mr. Worthington, and acted accordingly.

Very truly yours,

JOSEPH J. LITTLE, Receiver.

MR. WORTHINGTON DISCHARGED.

RICHARD WORTHINGTON was arraigned in the Tombs Court on Friday, April 27, on complaint of Joseph J. Little, receiver, who charged him with perjury. He furnished bail for examination on Tuesday, May 1. Justice Martin in the Tombs Court on that day discharged Mr. Worthington from custody.

FAILURE OF THE ELZEVR COMPANY.

THE ELZEVR COMPANY, booksellers, of 57 Rose Street, New York, and of Orange, N. J., made an assignment Wednesday, May 2, to Frank Tracy without preference. The officers are John B. Alden, president and treasurer, and Leonora Watts, secretary. Mr. Alden incorporated the company under New Jersey laws in July, 1891, with a capital stock of $100,000, of which it was said that $17,050 was issued as full paid. The concern was regarded in the trade as virtually belonging to Mr. Alden. He has been some time up the country to Helmburg novels, with one or two went to Chicago, where they are divided between E. A. Weeks and Henneberry; "The Old Spanish R" now the property of Peter Eckler.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

DR. THOMAS DUNN ENGLISH, of Newark, N. J., has two claims to distinction: He is the author of "Ben Bolt," and he once thrashed Edgar Allan Poe.

FREDERIC DIODATI THOMPSON, author of "In the Track of the Sun," published last year by the Appletons, has just returned from a trip to Turkey, which will furnish material shortly for another interesting book.

AMONG Mr. Rider Haggard's treasures at his English home, Ditchingham Manor, is a desk which belonged to Charles Dickens. It was bought by Mr. Haggard at the Gads Hill sale, and now occupies a niche in his billiard-room.

EMILE ZOLA last Friday, April 27, read from his new serial, "Lourdes," now running in the New York Herald in this country, in aid of the pension fund of the Société des Gens de Lettres. M. Zola read several short selections, the first dealing with Bernadette Soubirous' childhood, the second with the first apparition, the third with the effect of the apparitions on the people of the Lourdes district.

GEO. DU MAURIER'S "Trilby" is well known to the author's friends to be largely autobiographical, and several of the characters have already been recognized as portraits of celebrated artists who lived in the Bohemia of Paris while Du Maurier was studying there. A short time ago he told an American friend who some of these were, so there is no doubt that the resemblances are more than accidental.

IBSEN told an interviewer recently that he could not get an inspiration during his writing if there was not a tray before him which contained a little bear in wood, a little black devil holding a wax candle, and several little rabbits and cats made of copper. "This may appear to you to be ridiculous," said Ibsen, "but so it is. As to the use I make of them, that is my secret, and I shall not divulge it to you or any one else."

MR. WILLIAM MORRIS has just brought out from his Kelmscott Press another classic in the shape of an edition of Keats. Mr. Morris' own romance, "The Wood Beyond the World," is in process of printing, as is also his translation from Old French, which he calls "The Story of the Emperor Constance." He announces for future publication an edition of Caxton's translation of St. Jerome's "Vitæ Patrum." Only one other edition was ever published—that of Wynken & Worde.

in view of the approaching sale of the library, it records 13,699 volumes, and the work of compilation was completed within a period of eighteen months. The entries—title only—had therefore to be condensed as much as possible, and it is to be regretted that considerable bibliographical data—notably the pagination—was perforce omitted. The collection is classified in three grand divisions: Monosyllabic languages; Agglutinative languages; Inflectional languages. These are again divided and subdivided into many dialects and local groups. Mr. Collins had the help of many philological experts in the revision of the various works, and in the definite classification of the language groups. The richness and variety of the collection, as indicated in the catalogue, is really astonishing, and yet Mr. Collins remarks that it is but the "merest outline of the linguistic treasures contained in the library." He adds that "in the compilation of a perfect catalogue of the Bonaparte library there is several years' work for many experts." In view of this fact, and of the intrinsic value and importance of the library as an epitome of philological literature, no one can fail to echo Mr. Collins' hope that its "ultimate destination will be some learned institution where its linguistic treasures may be studied at ease." It would be most regrettable should this monument of painstaking scholarship and scientific enthusiasm be dispersed throughout the private and public libraries of England, America, or the Continent, and it is therefore pleasant to note that the Messrs. Sotheman, in whose hands it has been placed for sale, desire to receive offers for the collection en bloc only. The library was valued by its owner at £50,000.

NEW YORK CITY.—The sheriff has received an attachment for $4261 against Griffith, Farran & Co., publishers, of London, in favor of John McLoughlin, doing business as McLoughlin Brothers, of New York, for merchandise sold to the London concern between January 1, 1893, and January 1, 1894.

NEW YORK CITY.—Judge Gildersleeve, of the Supreme Court, has appointed Albert W. Faulkner receiver of the University Magazine Company, of No. 70 South Street, on the application of a majority of the directors, James Wilton Brooks, George S. Olmstead, and Mr. Faulkner. It was alleged that the company is unable to meet its obligations. The liabilities are about $7000. The assets consist of plates valued at $4500; subscription account, $6000, and goodwill, $5000—that is, if the publication was successful. The company was incorporated under New York State laws in December, 1890, with a capital stock of $50,000, and succeeded the Collegian Publishing Company. James Wilton Brooks was president. The company published the University Magazine, which was started about six years ago.

NEW YORK CITY.—George B. Hurd & Co. have removed to the large and handsome building on the southeast corner of Broome and Crosby Streets. The process of removal has been much expedited by the careful calculation and management of Frank B. Hurd, so that by having virtually two sets of machinery running, they have been able to continue removing right along from the start. This has enabled them to also continue to fill their orders with quite as much promptness as before, and as though the force was not obliged to do the extra work of packing, removing, and rearranging the stock. George B. Hurd said that they should have their factory arranged in a much more convenient manner than formerly, and should be able to turn off work more expeditiously. They wish it to be understood that they can fill orders now just as well as before.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Henry F. Scheetz, who for six years past has occupied the position of superintendent of advertising with the J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia, is about to sever his connection with that house, and on the 1st of June will assume charge of the manufacturing department of the Presbyterian Board of Publication.

PORTLAND, ME.—Thomas B. Mosher, Portland, Me., has been awarded the contract for supplying the public schools and the various departments of Portland with stationery for the coming year.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—The Dodge & Brown Co. have gone out of business.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

"ANGLICAN SACERDOTALISM," a recent literary defence of an illogical position, is keenly criticised by Rev. George M. Searle in The Catholic World for May.

The International Journal of Ethics for April contains reviews of important works recently published on ethical subjects in English and foreign languages which are of particular value.

THE first place in The English Illustrated for April is given to an interesting article on "Women Poets of the Day," written by Richard Le Gallienne, and enriched with many extracts and photographs.

Munsey's Magazine for May contains an article on F. Hopkinson Smith, the talented artist, author, engineer, and playwright, written by Gilson Willets, who shows the leading thought of the busy life of his friend when he tells us he wants to be happy himself and do all he can towards making everybody else happy.

JOHN BRISBANE WALKER, publisher of the Cosmopolitan Magazine, has decided to move his publication office to Irvington-on-the-Hudson. Mr. Walker has purchased the Barney estate, and will erect a suitable building, and it is thought new houses will be erected in the village to accommodate the employees. It is said the Cosmopolitan is moving to avoid the heavy taxes levied by the city which its growing prosperity brings to decidedly large figures.

THE Buchgewerbeblatt (book-trade paper) of Leipzig, Germany, devotes most of its first April issue to a review of the life and work of the De Vinnes in an article on the "De Vinne Press," written by H. Richard, illustrated with five cuts showing portraits of the great printers, a view of their vast building on Lafayette Place, and a fac-simile of the address of the employees of the firm presented to the De Vinne Brothers on the occasion of a banquet, given on April 5, 1892.

THE Academy of Inscriptions and Belles-lettres has just instituted a new publication, entitled "Monuments et Mémoires publiés par l'Académie des Inscriptions et Belles-lettres." It will consist of a series of fascicules of irregular periodicity in which will appear interesting documents and plates, hitherto unpublished, relating to antiquity and the Middle Age. The funds for this publication are supplied, at least in part, by a legacy which the academy received from the estate of M. Eugène Piot, who died in 1889. This falls in very luckily, as France, since the disappearance of the Gazette Archéologique, has been rather behind her neighbors in the development of archæological studies. In the list of contributors to the first number of the "Monuments" the names of MM. Heuzey, Maspero, Héron de Villefosse, and other scholars of high repute are to be noted. The plates accompanying the text are also noteworthy.

AN important announcement comes from Germany that after October next the well-known Philosophische Monatshefte, now edited by Prof. Natorp of Marburg, will become a quarterly, with the title Archiv für Systematische Philosophie. The new Archiv and the existing Archiv für die Geschichte der Philosophie, edited by Prof. Stein of Berne, will be under one management, and together will be known as Archiv für Philosophie. The newly-named journal will devote particular attention to the systematic review of new philosophical literature. How well this important work will be done may be judged from the following list of names: Theory of knowledge, Prof. Natorp; metaphysics, Prof. Encken of Jena; psychology, Prof. Benno Erdmann of Halle; logic, Prof. Riehl of Freiburg i. B.; ethics, Prof. Judl of Prague; sociology, Prof. Tonnies of Kiel; philosophy of law, Prof. Stammler of Galle; æsthetics, Prof. Lipps of Munich; philosophy of religion, Prof. Baur of Münsingen; pedagogics, Prof. Ziegler of Strassburg.

eighty pages and one hundred illustrations from the rich material of King's "Handbook of New York City."

THE F. A. DAVIS Co., Philadelphia, have just ready "Lectures on Auto-Intoxication in Disease, or, self-poisoning of the individual," by Charles Bouchard, translated with a preface by Thomas Oliver, professor of physiology in the University of Durham.

THE Spanish Jesuits at Plasencia were prepared to burn some books they considered wicked, among them certain of Zola's works. The Pope, it is said, is annoyed at this intolerance, and specially vexed at the affront to the author of "Lourdes," the first of the trilogy in which the place of honor will be for mystic Rome.

JOHN E. POTTER & Co., Philadelphia, intend to issue in semi-monthly numbers the "Potter-Bradley Atlas of the World," designed especially for commercial and library reference, since it will contain stores of information furnished by the Postal and Interior Departments of the United States and also gathered from many reliable private sources. The work will be completed in twenty numbers.

GEORGE WAHR, Ann Arbor, Michigan, has issued "Directions for Laboratory Work in Bacteriology," for the use of medical classes in the University of Michigan, written by Dr. Frederick G. Novy, junior professor of hygiene and physiological chemistry. The subject-matter is arranged entirely with a view to progressive work. The course covers a period of twelve weeks of daily afternoon work.

THE JOHNS HOPKINS PRESS has just issued "The Struggle of Protestant Dissenters for Religious Toleration in Virginia," by Henry R. McIlvaine, professor of English and history, Hampden-Sidney College. The titles of the

TERMS OF ADVERTISING

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as "not having been received."

"Summer Reading," 1894.

To RETAIL DEALERS:

The SUMMER CATALOGUE, issued for sixteen years, has been found so useful and profitable by enterprising dealers, that it has become a regular feature of the trade. The seventeenth issue, with an entirely new cover, in a special pamphlet adapted for imprint circulation all through the summer, will be published in connection with THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY about the first of June.

The imprint editions will contain, in addition to a catalogue of guide-books and light literature for summer reading, an entirely new selection of reading-matter both of a practical and entertaining character, chiefly intended for the use and amusement of tourists, pleasure-seekers, and visitors of summer resorts.

Booksellers should remember that, while summer is usually a dull time, the sales of light literature, etc., can be pushed to make a successful business even in this season. The classes who travel are of course those who have money to spend, even in dull times, and the summer is the time when very many bookbuyers do the greater part of their reading. Booksellers at or near summer resorts should especially avail themselves of this publication, while city dealers should remember that it will also be useful to tempt stay-at-homes to make investments, or to follow up customers otherwise out of reach.

Orders for imprint editions at subscription rates should be sent in at once.

Terms for Editions with Imprint, Payable in Advance.

BELLE-PLANTE AND CORNELIUS.

By CLAUDE TILLIER. Translated from the French by Benjamin R. Tucker. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

One cannot have too much of Claude Tillier. He stands forth in bold relief as an eloquent example of the rugged, honest style of the past, made more effective by virtue of contrast with the conventional, artificial style of to-day. He appeals to his readers with an old gospel, newly interpreted—the gospel of humanity. He calls a spade a spade, and speaks from the heart. Others have done the former, but so few, comparatively speaking, have done the latter that Tillier is almost unique.

MY UNCLE BENJAMIN.

A Humorous and Philosophical Novel. By CLAUDE TILLIER. Translated from the French by Benjamin R. Tucker. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

A novel unlike any other, by an author unlike any other; a novel that has no equivalent in the literature of this century; a novel which, despite the pessimism with which it opens and the pathos with which it closes, must take rank among the wittiest and most humorous ever written; a novel of philosophy, of progress, of reality, of humanity; a novel of the heart and of the head; a novel which is less a work of art than a work of genius.

A COMMON MISTAKE.

The Story of a New York Society Girl. By JEANNE M. HOWELL. 12mo, cloth, 50 cents.

Sylvia Gilchrist is an epitome of the undisciplined, brilliant, nervous young womanhood of America. Gifted with an exceptionally fine physique and of bright mind, she only knows her power to wield it capriciously and of her own sweet will. The book is delightful, and every trunk packed for sea-shore or mountain should contain a copy.

READY SOON.

TWO SAD BROWN EYES.

By MARIE ST. FELIX, author of "Little Game with Destiny." Paper, 50 cents.

THE MERRIAM COMPANY, 67 Fifth Avenue, New York.

JUST PUBLISHED:

NOTES IN SEASON.

JAMES POTT & Co. have just ready "The Ascent of Man," by Henry Drummond, a new and important scientific work on evolution in ten chapters, under the suggestive headings: The ascent of the body; the scaffolding of the body; the arrest of the body; the dawn of mind; the evolution of language; the struggle of life; the struggle for the life of others; the evolution of mother; the evolution of a father; involution.

THE MERRIAM COMPANY have now ready two of the novels of Claude Tillier that have amused many readers, and are offered in Benjamin R. Tucker's artistic translations. "Belle-Plante" and "My Uncle Benjamin" are sure of large sales in their pretty new dress. "A Common Mistake," the story of a New York society girl, by Jeanne M. Howell, gives a vivid picture of the undisciplined, nervous young womanhood of America's large cities; and "Two Bad Brown Eyes," by Marie St. Felix, promises to be a cheery love-story for which the public will not be kept long waiting.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just imported "Letters of Franz Liszt," collected and edited by La Mara, and translated by Constance Bache. This work contains more than 650 interesting letters and two portraits, and is issued in two volumes; "Among the Moors," notes and sketches of an artist, by G. Montbard, profusely illustrated; and "Dante G. Rossetti and the Pre-Raphaelite Movement," by Mrs. J. W. Wood, with eight photogravure reproductions of Rossetti's paintings. They will issue shortly "Salem Kitredge, and other stories," by Bliss Perry; and "The Navigator's Pocket-Book," by Captain Howard Patterson, arranged for immediate reference to any subject connected with navigation.

G. H. BUEK & Co., art publishers of New York, announce for early issue, in twenty parts, "The Wild Flowers of America." Within the past year or two widespread popular interest has been awakened in American floral wealth; the books which have stimulated or responded to this interest have either been illustrated in plain black and white, or have presented colored plates at prices beyond the means of ordinary people. The enterprise of G. H. Buek & Co. is a worthy attempt to secure the widest popularity by offering artistic pictures in colors on nominal terms. The flowers, some 300 in number, have been carefully selected from every State and Territory in the Union. Each plate is to be accompanied by the common name, and by the name chosen by the botanical committee appointed on nomenclature last August at Madison, Wisconsin, by the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The letter-press will give scientific data first, and then proceed to a word of comment and gossip, with citations from the praise of flowers in the poets. We understand the New York Recorder has secured "The Wild Flowers of America" for the cities of New York and Brooklyn.

"SUMMER READING."

THE "Summer Reading" number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is in active preparation, and publishers and booksellers would do well by themselves and by us if they would kindly notify us as soon as possible of the manner in which they desire to be represented by advertisement, literary matter, and imprint editions. The number has a new attractive cover, and we desire to have time to print it as it should be to make it effective all summer long as an advertising medium. Our date of publication is May 26, and the details connected with that special number are endless. Any bookseller who has given this issue a fair trial looks to it year after year as one of the greatest helps that come to him. Summer trade is very profitable if worked understandingly and at the beginning of the season. Let us have your orders at your earliest convenience.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory, c after the date indicates that the book is copyright, the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin, the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed. Translations, c. v. 1, 2, 3, etc., of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as A. Augustus, B. Benjamin, C. Charles, D. David, E. Edward, F. Frederic, G. George, H. Henry, I. Isaac, J. John, L. Louis, N. Nicholas, P. Peter, R. Richard, S. Samuel, T. Thomas, W. William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high), (Q. quarto: under 30 cm.), O. (octavo: 20 cm.), S. (sextimo: 17 1/2 cm.), T. (tercio: 15 cm.), N. (nono: 13 1/2 cm.), P. (duodecimo: 12 cm.), etc., designate square, oblong, narrow books of their heights.

The present edition has been enlarged by fifty additional pages.

Bowen, Rob., comp. A catalogue of books printed at, or relating to, the university, town, and county of Cambridge, from 1521 to 1893; with bibliographical and biographical notes. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 32+516 p. il. O. cl., $3. [1557]

A catalogue of over 3500 books, in the possession of Macmillan and Bowen, of Cambridge, England. It is arranged chronologically, and largely annotated throughout. The books printed up to 1700 are described with unusual fulness, by giving the title unabbreviated, by an exact collation with the sizes according to form and not to measurement, and by noting any apparent imperfections, even to the blank leaves at the beginning and end—so as to make the work bibliographically useful. Although the compiler states that the publication "is only a bookseller's catalogue, not a bibliography," it will generally be conceded to be a very valuable bibliography in the absence of anything more complete on the subject. An interesting collection of ornaments (head and tail pieces, etc.), alluded to in the text, precedes the catalogue.

Bowley, A. L. A short account of England's foreign trade in the nineteenth century, its economic and social results; with ten statistical diagrams. N. Y., imported by C. Scribner's Sons, 1894. 8+152 p. 12". (Social science ser.) cl., $1. [1558]

N. Y., imported by C. Scribner's Sons, 1894. 2 v., 34+209; 276 p. 8. cl., $1.

Byron, G. G. N. (Lord), and Blount, Countess. [Margaret Power Gardiner.] Journal of the conversations of Lord Byron with the Countess of Blessington, ed., rev. and annot., to which is added a contemporary sketch of Lady Byron, by her sister, and a memoir of the editor. N. Y., imported by Scribner's Sons, 1894. 64+376 p. por. 8. cl., $1.

Carman, Bliss. Low tide on Grand Island. New rev. ed. Cambridge and Chic., Mass., Kimball, 1894. c. '93-'94. 7+137 p. 12". $1; limited ed., $3.50.

Originally published by C. L. Webster & Co. See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., Dec. 2, 1891. This edition is revised and is entirely new. Title-page designed by Martin Mower, printed on paper, with uncut edges.

Chatelain, Heli, ed. and comp. Folk-tales of Angola: fifty tales, with Kimbundu and literal English translation, introd., and notes collected and ed. by Heli Chatelain. Bost., published for the American Folklore Soc. by Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. 10+315+4 p. map, O. cl., $3.

The introduction gives a description of Angola, an account of Angola folk-lore, and treats of the nature of Kimbundu and the pronunciation of Kimbundu. The fifty tales appear in an English translation with Kimbundu text on the opposite page. There are fifty pages of comparative notes and a list of notes (1 page) on African folk-lore. Index. Map of Angola.

Outler, Condict W. Practical lectures in dermatology, comprising a course of fifteen lectures delivered at the University of Vermont Medical Department during the session of 1892 and 1893. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 8+233 p. 17. cl., $1.

De Mille, James. Cord and creese: a novel. N. Y., Harper, [1894.] c. '69. 3+305 p. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser.) 746.) pap., 60 c.

First published by Harper & Bros., in 1869.

Douglas, James. Canadian independence, annexation, and British imperial federation. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1894. c. 114 p. D. (Questions of the day ser.) 78.) cl., 75 c.

An amplification of an essay written for Canadian readers by a Canadian long resident in the United States. That some change must come in the present alliance between Canada and the mother-country, he thinks inevitable. Whether it shall be political independence, annexation to the United States, whether Canada shall make one in the talked-of scheme of British imperial federation, he thoroughly discusses. He sees no gain industrially for Canada in annexation to the United States, and rather favors her independence until the time comes for her to make one of the links of the confederation.

Fijnje van Salverda, J. G. W. Aërial navigation; from the Dutch, by G. E. Waring, jr., with notes concerning some recent developments in the art. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 6+209 p. il. D. cl., $1.25. [1467]

A summary, in popular form, of the development of aërial navigation, from the balloon of Montgolfier (1783), which was filled with heated air, down to the early stages of the investigations and discussions of Langley, Maxim Holland, and others (1892). The writer is a distinguished Dutch engineer, of advanced age, and now retired from the public service, in which he held a high position.

Finger, Ernest, M.D. Gonorrhœa: being the translation of blenorhœa of the sexual organs and its complications. 3d rev. and enl. ed. N. Y., W: Wood & Co., 1894. 330 p. il. 8°, cl., $3. [1468]

Fiske, J. The war of independence; with maps, index, and a biographical sketch. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1894. c. '89, '94. 13+200 p. S. (Riverside literature ser., no. 62.) pap., 50 c. [1469]

Gerard, Dorothea. The rich Miss Riddell. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 8+208 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 142.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c. [1470]

The story of a plain-looking Englishwoman of thirty who is burthened with great wealth; it has not only made her the object of constant persecution from mercenary suitors, but has separated her from the only man she loves or who honestly loves her. With a young companion, a little Austrian governess who is weary of England, she goes to Vienna, hoping to escape from people who know she is an heiress. Her story reaches its climax here, and fate reconciles her to being a rich woman.

Gilman, Dan. C., ed. The organization of charities: being a report of the sixth section of the International Congress of Charities, Correction, and Philanthropy, Chicago, June, 1893, ed., with an introd., by Dan. C. Gilman. Balt., Md., The Johns Hopkins Press, 1894. c. 32+400 p. O. cl., $1.50. [1471]

Contents: A panorama of charitable work in many lands, by D. C. Gilman; The problem of charity, by the Rev. Francis G. Peabody. Following these introductory addresses are the proceedings and papers on charity organization in the United States; papers from Continental Europe on public and private relief of the poor; and papers on charity organization in Great Britain. Index.

Hes, G: A class in geometry: lessons in observation and experiment. N. Y., and Chic., E. L. Kellogg & Co., 1894. c. 46 p. il. S. cl., 30 c. [1485]

Three boys were interested in geometry by observing plants and insects, rocks and sand, and other common things; they were then led to the laws of space and form, binding all these together. Easily-made models extracted square and cube root, and illustrated principles of building, engineering, and navigation. Invention and judgment were thus educated. Full of hints for both teacher and pupil.

 "In preparing this volume the aim has been to set forth, as briefly and clearly as possible, the fundamental ideas of Herbart's educational theory, setting everything that is not absolutely necessary to explain them. The biographical introduction shows the influence that led Herbart into the service of education and aided in the building of his system. It also explains a few important points concerning his relation to Pestalozzi."

- McConnell, Alice Barber. Richard Rogers, Christian. Phil., Presb. Bd. of Pub., [1894.] c. 264 p. D. cl., $1. [1500]
 The scene is Boom City. Richard Rogers, a staunch Christian, being brought to a realization of the moral depravity of the place, through his presence there and an experience with a young tramp, holds a series of gospel meetings in his lumber yard. The history of these meetings is told in a story, which shows many of the evil effects of intemperance and as what can be accomplished by a steadfast Christian worker.
- McCulloch, Hugh. The quest of Heracles and other poems. Cambridge and Chic. Stone & Kimball, 1894. c. 93. 3-25 p. il. cl., $1.25; large-paper ed., $3.50. [1501]
 Beautifully printed at the De Vinne Press, on Van Gelder hand-made paper, the title-page and cover designed by Pierre la Rose.
- Macy, Jesse. First lessons in civil government. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1894. c. 11-220 p. il. D. cl., 70 c. [1502]
 By the author of "Our government." Shows that a child in drawing the map of its township or county, be instructed as to the public control of the area. Beginning thus with the government of the public school in which a child finds itself, its study is gradually extended until the government of the United States is briefly and simply explained. For typical, state governments are compared, with provision for the study of any other. Concludes with strong plea for the fulfillment of civic duty—the habit to be formed early in life. Cites the case of W. I. Tweed as showing the consequences when citizens neglect their duty, and contrasts this with the readiness of the same men to die, if need be, for their country.
- Maury, Dabney Herndon. Recollections of a Virginian in the Mexican, Indian, and civil wars. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 8+279 p. por. O. cl., $1.50. [1503]
 General Maury was a graduate of West Point, and served in the U. S. army during the Mexican and Indian wars, at the opening of the civil war he resigned his commission and entered the Confederate army. His recollections include anecdotes of prominent officers on both sides. About six years after he was appointed United States Minister to Central America his observations of the people and country are given.

- This system, devised by Mr. Herbert Spencer's father, has been in manuscript since 1843. It is now published, as explained by the writer of the prefatory note, not because it possesses advantages over existing phonographies for reporting and kindred purposes, but "from the conviction, long since formed and still unshaken, that it ought to replace ordinary writing." It is claimed that, as it possesses the brevity of shorthand in general, and greater legibility, the use of it by men of business, journalists, authors, and people at large, would achieve a great economy of life.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MAY 12, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament therunto."—LORD BACON.

THE PROFESSION OF BOOKSELLING.

THE CIRCULATING LIBRARY.—III.

It will be found a good plan to keep a special memorandum-book in which to record, alphabetically, as nearly as possible, the books called for and not in the library. It should be consulted once a week, say on Saturday morning, and all books that have had three or more calls during the week should be procured for the library. It will probably be found, as a rule, that ten per cent. of the books which must be retained in the library will not earn their cost within a given time, while during the same period fifty per cent. may have paid for themselves seven times over. We know of a bookseller who some years ago started a circulating library in a New Hampshire village of about 3000 inhabitants, commencing operations with about eighty books. The only other library in the place, which was entitled in the remotest degree to be termed public, was what was known as a "social library," and was owned by shareholders; it contained about 1500 volumes, and was open but a few hours on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons of each week. At the end of one year our friend, the bookseller, took account of stock. His eighty volumes had increased to 150, and the gross receipts for the year had amounted to $216, or about sixty dollars more than the cost of the books, expense of binding and covering, etc. At the end of four years he had 500 volumes on his shelves, and the gross receipts for the same length of time had amounted to $800. We indulge in this digression to show how, even in a small community and with the most indifferent start, a circulating library may be considered a source of profit, notwithstanding that a certain small proportion of the books may never pay for their cost. If a good customer wants a book that is not in the library it may sometimes be good policy to procure it, even if the prospect is that it will be called for by no one else. A proprietor of a circulating library cannot be too careful on this point. If he has a good customer the appreciation of it must be made known in acts that reach the latter's vanity, as well as prove the former's enterprise and far-reaching business sense.

The question has been frequently raised as to the advisability of letting out the cheap paper-covered books. To the beginner we would say: "Do not meddle with the cheap paper series, for the purpose of lending, until your circulating library is well established, and then you will know better." A few borrowers may not object to paying two cents a day for a new paper-covered book; but more often the borrower will complain that the rate is too much for that kind of literature, and will be apt to figure out how long it would take, at two cents a day, to pay for a twenty-cent book. Besides many other objections, this line of books, as a rule, will hardly be in a condition to lend out a second time. To attempt to rebind them, however cheaply, will hardly be found profitable. We know of one bookseller-librarian who adds all the latest paper-covered books to his library, but keeps them separate from the bound books and only labels them. After they are soiled and worn he tears them up and sells them for waste paper. He always adds ten copies in paper of the recent books of certain popular authors. He had fifty copies of the paper-covered edition of "Dodo" in his library. He had two bound copies of this book, which he believed had paid for themselves over twenty times.

As a rule good books in substantial bindings should form the foundation for a new circulating library. These books will be the first introduction of the library to its patrons, and well-made, clean books are absolutely necessary as a guarantee of the future management of this part of the bookseller's business.

For the benefit of those who may want to let out paper-covered reading-matter apart from the legitimate circulating library, we quote below from the New York Tribune a description of how a limited circulating library of such books may be made profitable:

There are good profits to be made by dealing in second-hand books in a city like New York and one dealer has found out how to "eat his cake and have it too," which careful mothers tell their children cannot be done. This dealer, with an eye to the pennies, will take a paper-covered novel, published at 50 cents, but which he has bought for 30, and sell it for 35 cents, with the understanding that the buyer is to return it when read. When the book comes back he pays 20 cents for it, and puts it up for sale again at 30 cents. The second buyer returns the book and receives 15 cents, and for a third time the book is on the shelves, this time marked 20 cents. Again it comes back, the reader takes 10 cents, and the book, if by careful patching it can be kept in decent condition, will change owners half a dozen times, leaving to the dealer a profit of a nickel every time it comes to the store. Books have often, through careful handling, paid 200 per cent. on the original investment, and at the end found their way back to the shelves of the dealer, who has the profits and the book.

Another system then comes into play. Books will be sold on the "two-for-one" plan. In this scheme a buyer will take two books at, say, 20 cents each, paying 40 cents in cash; when these have been read they are returnable, and the dealer will give any 20-cent book in the place for the two brought back. When this 20-cent book is returned a 10-cent volume may be taken in exchange, and when this last comes back a nickel and the book will bring out another 10-cent book. This process may be kept up as long as the buyer sees fit. The thrifty dealer is always ready for a trade.

Of course, it sometimes happens that a buyer in the first instance will keep the book, but as the store caters to a class of customers who can hardly be termed collectors, but who like highly-seasoned literature, the danger of a diminution of profits in this way is very slight. In this particular branch of the second-hand book business the demand for love-stories and "blood-and-thunder" literature is large and steady. Huxley, Tyndall, Emerson, or Swinburne find little favor among the readers and scant ceremony on the shelves, but "Old Cap. Collier" is a stanch favorite, while Gaboriau, Fergus Hume, Conan Doyle, Zola, A. C. Gunter, and Sylvanus Cobb always command a respectful hearing from the men and boys. The girls—and there are lots of them who are steady customers—favor "The Duchess," Ouida, Mrs. Southworth, and Laura Jean Libbey.

Once in a while some of the yellow-covered "Beadle's Dime Novels" of thirty years ago stray into the place, but they stay there only a short time, as "Snaky Snodgrass, the Sorrowful Scout," and "Painted Pete, the Pottawatomic Prisoner," are quickly dragged away to lighten the gloom of a winter's night and to form the basis of many a castle in Spain inhabited by maidens in distress surrounded by a hideous crew of yelling "varmints" or "redskins." Common every-day Indians were never good enough for the yellow-novel heroes to kill.

An idea of the magnitude of this out-of-the-way branch of trade may be gathered from the fact that on the shelves of one of the two "stores" run by this enterprising tradesman are no less than 8000 paper-covered novels, and in addition to this they are piled away in corners, stacked against the walls, and one room in the rear of the place is practically given over to a repair-shop for them.

TO PREVENT PLAY PIRACY

ON May 7 the House Committee on Patents gave a hearing to a deputation composed of Messrs. David Belasco, Charles Barnard, Harrison Grey Fiske, and J. I. C. Clarke representing the interests of playwrights. The subject of the committee was to urge the passage of a bill introduced in the House a few months ago by Amos J. Cummings, of New York, designed to prevent the pirating of dramatic compositions, and providing that any person performing such composition for which a copyright has been obtained, without the consent of the proprietor, shall be liable for damages not less than $100 for the first and $50 for every subsequent performance, with imprisonment not exceeding one year. It also provides that any injunction which may be granted by any United States District Court may be served upon the person against whom it is granted anywhere in the United States, and may be enforced by any district court.

Bronson Howard made the first argument in favor of the bill. He said that under the existing law injunctions against the pirating of plays were impracticable, as the offenders were constantly moving from one place to another, making one night or one week "stands" as he spoke of a Chicago firm which has purchased hundreds of plays and advertised them for sale, retaining the text either by stenographic report or by bribing theatre attachés. He said this concern had on its list foreign plays for which large sums had been paid. He said, however, consider theatre managers as criminals, except innocently. The discussion then became general, the central topic for debate being the question of the adequacy of the provision in the present law to restrain piracy. The members of the deputation stated that their experience went to prove that as the law was not operative outside of the district granted, and therefore contempt in disobedience of the injunction outside of the limits of the district did not exist.

"THE HEAVENLY TWINS."

PRESIDENT MERSHON, of the Cassell Publishing Company, of Union Square, started in Chicago, May 9, to begin a legal war against a Chicago publishing house.

The Messrs. Cassell secured from Mr. Grand the right to publish "The Heavenly Twins" in the United States, and under contract pay her royalties on all copies of the book sold in this country. An introduction to the book was written in New York City and the book was duly copyrighted at Washington before any copies were sold here.

The Cassells issued a large edition of the book in cloth binding, and it is said that the profits have been heavy. No cheap editions were issued, and to meet the demands of the bazaars and dry-good stores a Chicago house is now printing an enormous paper-covered edition to retail at twenty-five cents. The Cassell firm is backed by parties unknown to the Cassells, and the business is being conducted under an assumed name.

Mr. Mershon says he will, if necessary, spend $20,000 to test the copyright law, and the case will certainly owe him a debt of gratitude for bringing light to shed on these problems.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MEYER BROTHERS & Co. have just issued "Henriette," by François Coppée, in their charming Lemerre edition of French fiction.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. will have ready about June 1 Prof. Richard T. Ely's historical and critical treatise on "Modern Socialism and Social Reform."

"OUR WORD AND WORK FOR MISSIONS," by Dr. Henry W. Rugg, is issued by the Universalist Publishing Company. It was incorrectly credited in our last issue.

GINN & Co. will have ready shortly "The Inflections and Syntax of Malory's Morte D'Arthur," by Charles C. Baldwin, and the first volume of "Grimm's Fairy Tales," edited by Sara E. Wiltse.

THE translation of J. J. Astor's "A Journey in the Other World" is not in the hands of Mr. Aksel Josephson, of the State Library School, Albany, but is being done by Mr. Aksel Josephson, correspondent in this country for a newspaper owned by Dagens Nyheter, of Stockholm.

CHARLES EITEL, New York, has imported "Le Memorial de Saint Arelade," by Pierre Dennis, published by Paul Ollendorff, Paris. The history and significance of the Boulangist movement in France are well covered by the author, who was the intimate friend of Boulanger.

D. C. HEATH & Co. have just issued "Concrete Geometry for Grammar Schools," by E. Hunt; "Educational and Industrial System of Drawing," by Langdon S. Thompson, and "History of the United States," by Allen C. Thomas, professor of history in Haverford College, Pa.

THE AMERICAN TRACT SOCIETY held its sixty-ninth anniversary meeting on Wednesday, May 9, in the Presbyterian Church, Twenty-fourth Street and Madison Avenue, New York City. The report of the secretaries showed that 130 new permanent publications had been issued, 93 of them being in English.

HENRY ALTEMUS, Philadelphia, has in preparation and will publish early in June "The Care of Children," by Elizabeth Robinson Scovill, an associate editor of the Ladies' Home Journal and superintendent of the Newport Hospital. Her very helpful book is specially intended for young mothers.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just issued "Five-Minute Object Sermons to Children," preached before the Sunday morning sermon by Rev. Dr. Sylvanus Stall, while pastor of the Second English Lutheran Church at Baltimore. The author is an expert in the difficult art of interesting children in church services.

THE WHITING PAPER Co. are sending out a neat little advertisement in the form of a dainty booklet on "Card Courtesy," in which the social usages of "pasteboard politeness" are fully explained, and the right size and shape of card and type for every special use made clear by means of fac-simile reproductions of visiting cards.

ROBERTS BROTHERS have in press "The Wedding Garment," a tale of life to come, by Louis Pendleton; "The Dancing Faun," by Florence

Farr, with title-page by Aubrey Beardsley; "A Child of the Age," a novel by Francis Adams; and "Poor Folk," by Fedor Dostoevsky, translated by Lena Milman, with a preface by George Moore.

THE CENTURY Co. are preparing a perfect treasury of delight for young and old in "The Jungle Book," by Rudyard Kipling, full of stories of wild life in Asia and of the fierce animals that disport themselves in the jungle. They will also issue shortly "Roger Williams, the Pioneer of Religious Liberty," by Oscar S. Strauss.

THE AMERICAN BAPTIST PUBLICATION SOCIETY has already sold 13,000 copies of "Beautiful Joe," the autobiography of a dog, somewhat in the style of "Black Beauty," the story of the trials and pleasures of a horse. The story was awarded the prize by the New England Humane Society, and its author, Miss Marshall Saunders, well deserved the distinction.

"THE ISSUES OF THE PRESS IN NEW YORK—1693-1783," by Charles R. Heldeburn, is about to be published by Dodd, Mead & Co. The descriptions will include all the books, pamphlets, broadsides, and newspapers, issued by Bradford, Zenger, Gaine, Rivington, and other New York printers prior to 1784, announced in the newspapers of that period, as well as those actually found.

THE annual dinner of the Authors' Club was held on May 10 at the "St. Denis," New York City. Frank R. Stockton presided. Joseph Jefferson made a specially happy and witty speech, John Burroughs, George W. Cable, Richard Henry Stoddard, Richard Watson Gilder, Edmund Clarence Stedman, W. D. Howells, Laurence Hutton, and Seth Low were also among the speakers.

THE first meeting of Irish citizens in the history of Boston, at which all of the business was transacted in the Irish language, was held in Alpha Hall on Monday, May 14, its object being to form an association to preserve songs and poems in the Irish language and any literature of value. A committee was appointed to arrange for permanent organization, and all present enrolled themselves for membership.

THE NEW YORK LIBRARY CLUB held its regular meeting on Thursday, May 10, in the library of Columbia College. The subject of discussion was "What Is Needed for an American Bibliography?" and R. R. Bowker gave an interesting and detailed account of the new American bibliography on which he is engaged, and which will be brought out by THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, probably not before 1900. A paper on "International Special Bibliographies" was read by Mr. Aksel G. S. Josephson.

THE large-paper edition of Mr. Norman Gale's "A June Romance," now going through the press at Rugby, will be limited to forty copies. For these Mr. Herbert Dicksee, the well-known etcher, has provided a likeness of the author. We have had the privilege of seeing a rough proof, and can state with pleasure that those who secure a copy will have a most faithful representation of the writer. In all probability Mr. George Over will sell a few of the etchings independently of the book.

PROF. HENRY A. BEERS, of Yale, whose oc-year 10 1711 he issued fourteen words. In 1712 the first bookseller settled in the old university town of Upsala; this was Ericus Petri Strabyensis, but he was only a retail dealer. The first publisher of Upsala was Hans Thili, 1618 - 1622.

THE PROFIT GOES TO THE PUBLIC.

At the Annual Dinner of the Booksellers' Provident Institution, which took place in London on April 14, some remarks were made in the Lord Mayor's toast to "The Trade" and the reply to it by Mr. Murray, that seem to meet American as well as English conditions at the moment. The Mayor had had forty years' experience as a stationer and paper-maker, and had in consequence been closely associated with publishers and booksellers. The booksellers and publishers of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries might have been able to make their calling profitable, but the days when such a state of things was possible seemed rapidly passing away all over the country. Into whatever town one entered the old bookseller was fast becoming an extinct species. Look up and down England and they could almost count upon the fingers of their hands the names of the old-fashioned bona-fide booksellers. When he was young the booksellers and publishers used to demand large sums as premiums to teach young men their business, now as far as any literary knowledge was concerned it seemed likely that some classes of books would soon be sold by weight. What was the cause of that disastrous state of things? He affirmed, without hesitation, that it was the ruinously large discount demanded from publishers and booksellers. How could any trade, how could any industry, subsist when all the profits were practically given to the public? They must know better than he could tell them that such was the case in the bookselling trade.

a list of attempts to suppress records of the terrible years of which broke down Sir Walter Scott. He believed they were passing through the hands of the public. Big fortunes were not made by now. What did the public do in bad of all they gave up the charities: they gave up champagne, or at least giving it then they gave up bookbuying. They gave up book-reading, but they bore to the publisher to give them a copy. They look at the class of literature away from the railway stalls. If it that was the class of literature their fellow-countrymen to indulge said no. There was another thought at present exercised a disfluence. He touched on it with he held strong views, and that he thought free libraries were an unfit. At great public expense they people to read, but if they looked and saw the enormous proportion of literature which was read, and that is they even had to blot out the better daily papers, he thought they might misuse of the expensive toy which given to the people before they. Let them have libraries for reference to study who wanted to study, but exclude the light ephemeral literature least if it would live five years before in the libraries of which he spoke. Another difficulty which they had was a problem he could do no more on, as it was the problem that evanescent life of a book. A few books took the town by storm, and count on a sale for some time, couldn't. Thus, the old methods were to fail and they must find new means.

WAITING FOR THE GOOD MARKET THAT IS COMING.

"I HAVE three novels all ready for publication, but I shall not bring out any of them until next fall, and perhaps not then," observed a successful writer of fiction yesterday to a friend who asked him when he intended to publish another book. "The fact is," continued the writer, "that the book trade of this country is just now in a worse condition than it has ever been since I began to write, a score of years ago, and, as I am something of a business man as well as a novelist, I have come to the conclusion to do what any other business man would do—simply wait for a favorable market before offering the public any more of my wares. The trade has been ruined by the failure of so many of the large houses which made a specialty of publishing cheap paper-covered fiction. These failures have thrown upon the market within the past fourteen months more than eight million volumes in both paper and cloth, which have been sold for less than the cost of manufacture, and have been distributed about the country through various channels outside of the regular book trade. Weekly newspapers have used them as premiums for new subscribers, and dry-goods dealers have either sold them for very low prices or else given them away to their patrons as extra inducements for custom. The result of all this is that a large number of unthinking people, who never read anything in their lives before, have bought these cheap novels because they were cheap, taken them home to their families, and in this way unknowingly spread a taste for reading which may have most desirable and far-reaching results in the near future. I am thankful to say, however, that nearly all of these low-priced volumes have been disposed of, and when the trade springs up again it will be on a much healthier basis, and because of the numerous failures the competition will not be nearly as sharp as it was before. In the meantime I work just as hard as ever, but I do not publish. I regard the manuscript thus laid aside as much capital invested, and I am positive that my reputation will not suffer because I've been silent for two or three years."

AUTHORS' BREAKFAST AT SALEM, MASS.

ON Saturday, May 5, there was a reception and May breakfast tendered to the Authors' Guild of America by the Thought and Work Club of Salem. Governor Greenhalge and Lieutenant-Governor Wolcott by their presence gave importance to the meeting. The attendance included many well-known literary people. There were some sixty guests, who, after being received by Mrs. Kate Tannatt Woods, president of the club, during the forenoon were driven about the city, visiting the many points of historical interest—the House of the Seven Gables, the Custom House, the birthplace of Hawthorne, the Witch House, the Courthouse, the Timothy Pickering House, and the public library.

The breakfast was served in the Cadet Armory, which was tastefully decorated and hung with quotations from standard authors. It lasted over an hour, and then Mrs. Kate Tannatt Woods introduced General James Grant Wilson, president of the Authors' Guild, who returned the thanks of his organization for courtesies extended.

Mayor James H. Turner very briefly and happily extended a welcome on behalf of the city of Salem, and was followed by Prof. E. S. Morse, who spoke for the Essex Institute and the Athenæum, saying that it was the science of one class to take the truth and convert it into fiction, and the other class took fiction and converted it into truth. At this point the seal of the city was presented to the visiting authors on silk ribbon.

Speeches were made by several of the authors, including Titus Munson Coan, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Thomas Bailey Aldrich, Hezekiah Butterworth, J. T. Trowbridge, the Rev. Dr. Minot J. Savage, General Darling, George W. Townsend, Elizabeth Allen, Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton, the Rev. Newland Maynard, Mrs. Livermore, and Joel Chandler Harris.

Among those who were seated about the table were Governor and Mrs. Greenhalge, Lieutenant-Governor Roger Wolcott, the Rev. Newland Maynard, W. H. Beard, General Darling, of the Utica Historical Society, Mrs. Craven Betts, M. P. Gilman of The Literary World, Julia A. Eastman of Wellesley College, Louise Chandler Moulton, George W. Townsend, the Rev. Dr. E. E. Hale, Thomas Bailey Aldrich, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, Joel Chandler Harris, Charles F. Adams, Sophia Eastman, J. T. Trowbridge, Frank L. Stanton, James Jeffrey Roche, William Lee, Robert Grant, and W. P. Reed of The Atlanta Constitution.

Over eight hundred persons were present at the breakfast. In the evening the visiting authors were entertained by Mrs. Grace A. Oliver.

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & CO.'S AFFAIRS.

BAINBRIDGE COLBY, assignee of Charles L. Webster & Co., has made the following statement:

The liabilities of the firm will not exceed $80,000. The largest claim against the company is one for $25,000. There is no truth whatever in the report that Mrs. U. S. Grant has a large sum of money due her on the Grant "Memoirs." Her claim will not exceed a few hundred dollars. I am convinced there is only one way to realize on the assets of the Webster Company, and that is to sell them in the usual course of business. I still have hopes that some plan may be perfected which will make it possible to sell the stock which is on hand without resorting to such a costly alternative as an assignee's sale.

Mr. Clemens feels keenly the condition in which his affairs are involved, and whatever the result of the plan which he has adopted for the working up of the assets and the continuation of contracts, I do not think that he will consider himself relieved of the moral obligation to repay his creditors.

THE NORTHWESTERN BOOKSELLERS AND NEWSDEALERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE third annual meeting of this active association will be held at Minneapolis, Minn., on July 10-12. They will issue a handbook for 1894, and desire members of the trade to support this by advertising patronage. It will contain the complete proceedings of last year and many other items of information interesting to the trade. All meetings looking to organization and systematic co-operation should be encouraged.

OBITUARY NOTES.

JOHN JAY.

JOHN JAY, one of the most notable men in America, died Saturday, May 5, in consequence of an accident and injuries received nearly four years ago. John Jay was born in 1817. In his boyhood and youth he gave signs of a brilliancy which later on shone among the brightest of the sons of New York City. John Jay was descended from a long line of eminent lawyers, and made his mark in that profession. He was a man of large public spirit, and always acting and writing to promote true liberty and political reform of every kind. Among his best-known pamphlets are: "The Public School the Portal to the Civil Service;" "The American Church and the American Slave Trade;" "The Great Conspiracy and England's Neutrality;" "America Free or America Slave;" "The Church and the Rebellion;" "On the Passage of the Constitutional Amendment Abolishing Slavery;" "Rome in America;" "The American Foreign Service;" "The Memories of the Past," and "The Dignity of the Abolition Cause as Compared with the Political Schemes of the Day."

LEOPOLD SACHER-MASOCH died at Lindheim, in the Duchy of Hesse, on Sunday, May 6. He was born in 1835. He wrote a bitterly sarcastic book on "Prussians of To-Day," and edited Auf der Höhe, a journal inimical to the imperial government of Germany. He also wrote a cycle of tales called "The Legacy of Cain," which aimed to relate the miseries of humanity, the scenes of which are laid in Galicia and Russia. He was an authoritative historian. He published "Der Aufstand in Ghent unter K. Karl V.," in 1857; "Ungarns Ubergang und Marla, von Oesterreich," in 1861; and "Kaunitz," a valuable picture of Austrian civilization in the eighteenth century. His "Jews and Russians," "Idyls," 1883; "Hadascha," 1884; "Sacha and Saschka," 1886, and "Siren," 1890, are deservedly popular. He had decided views on literary criticism, expressed in "Ueber den Werth der Kritik," published at Leipsic in 1873. The French government invested him with membership in the Legion of Honor.

MAJOR JOSEPH KIRKLAND, the author of "Zury, the Meadest Man in Spring County," "The MacVeys," "The Captain of Company K," etc., died in Chicago on April 29 of heart disease. Major Kirkland was born at Geneva, N. Y., in 1830, and came of a family noted for scholars, teachers, and authors. He was a lawyer by profession, but devoted most of his time to writing. He served through the war and has used his experiences happily in his books.

MRS. FANNY BARROW ("Aunt Fanny") died at her home, New York City, on May 7. She was seventy-seven years old. Her most successful children's books were "Six Nightcaps," "Six Poppuns," and "Aunt Fanny's Story-Books." She also wrote "Four Little Hearts," "Life Among the Children," and "Take Heed." She was the author of a novel, "The Wife's Stratagem," and a popular book, "The Letter G," was likewise from her pen.

PERSONAL NOTES.

SAMUEL L. CLEMENS (Mark Twain) sailed for Europe Wednesday, May 9, on the New York.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

PROF. SLOAN, of Princeton, who has long been collecting material for an exhaustive life of Napoleon, has about finished writing it. The Century is to publish it serially.

"THE GOLDEN HOUSE" is the attractive title of the novel which Mr. Charles Dudley Warner has written for serial publication in Harper's Magazine during the last half of the year.

Harper's Bazar begins this week an interesting discussion pro and con on the Woman's suffrage question. It will be conducted by Mrs. Helen Barrett Montgomery, Mrs. C. A. Runk, Mrs. Lyman Abbott, Miss Jeanette Gier, and Mrs. Kate Upson Clark, who will contribute articles which will appear during the present month.

THE May Educational Review contains articles on "The Cost of Undergraduate Instruction," by President John M. Coulter, "Truants and Incurables," by Superintendent Edwin L. Seaver, "Departmental Teaching in Grammar Schools," by Superintendent Frank A. Ficker, the first paper on "History in Secondary Education," by Principal Ray Greene Hing, "Contemporary Educational Thought in Germany," by Dr. Wilhelm Rein; "Woman's Education in the South," by Mary V. Woodard, and a discussion of the Report of the Commission of Ten, by Col. Francis W. Parker.

THE Canadian Bookseller for April contains some interesting statistics. During 1891 the total number of copyrights registered throughout the Dominion was 449, of which only 10 were novels. The total value of books imported during the year was $850,000 ($14,000), the United States contributing $470,000 compared with $327,000 from Great Britain. English authors will be more interested to know that the imports of copyright books, on which they are supposed to receive a royalty of 10 per cent., ad valorem, amounted to only $13,000 (£2600). Under the new tariff it is proposed to abolish the collection of this royalty, and to impose a uniform duty on all books (other than music, maps, and prints) of six cents per page, avoidupols.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BELTON, TEX.—The firm of Austin & Hix was dissolved April 10 by mutual consent, and has been succeeded by W. S. Hunter & Co.

BOULDER, COL.—A. M. & S. A. Sawyer have succeeded to the business of the Clark & Lee Book and Stationery Company.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—J. M. Kirby, of Pearl and Willoughby Streets, has removed to 160 Court Street, corner of Amity Street, where he intends adding a line of stationery and book to his large stock of books.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Otto Ulbrich will remove his business at once to the finest store on Main Street, where he hopes to have the largest and most attractive book-store in the city.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—Edgar W. Porter has opened a store at 100 East Fourth Street for the sale of new and rare books in all branches of literature.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

HARRY FURNISS denies the report that he is about to bring a suit against Punch to collect money due him for services in illustrating that journal.

A VOLUME of short stories by Charles Egbert Craddock is coming from the Harper press. It is to bear the title of "The Phantoms of the Footbridge."

THE CHRISTIAN LITERATURE COMPANY have published "The Question of Unity," many voices concerning the unification of Christendom, edited by Amory H. Bradford.

THE course of Mr. du Maurier's "Trilby," in Harper's Magazine, will be run with the appearance of the August number, when the story may be looked for in book form.

RAND, McNALLY & Co., Chicago, have issued five more of their indexed county and township pocket maps. These are for Illinois, Indiana, North Dakota, Arkansas, and Ontario.

LANGDON ELWYN MITCHELL, son of Dr. Weir Mitchell, and author of "Sylvia, and other poems," will immediately publish another volume of poems through Houghton, Mifflin & Co.

THE issues from the Bible House during March were 100,602 volumes. The total issues from the Bible House during the year ending March 31, not including those issued in foreign lands, were 1,040,020 volumes.

"If the Devil Came to Chicago" is a sharply satirical reply to W. T. Stead's recent attack upon the institutions and morals of that city. It is written by Austyn Granville, a cousin of Rider Haggard and the author of "The Fallen Race."

THE UNIVERSITY PUBLISHING HOUSE, Boston, has just issued "Our Word and Work for Missions," a series of fifteen papers relating to all the spiritual and practical plans and conditions of mission work, edited by Dr. Henry W. Rugg and illustrated with half-tones.

FLEMING H. REVELL Co. have just issued "Triumphant Songs, No. 4," by E. O. Excell; "Samuel Chapman Armstrong," by Robert C. Ogden; "James Gilmour and His Boys," by Richard Lovett, with fac-similes of letters and other illustrations; and "Should I Join the Church?" by Rev. J. L. Lee.

A CORRESPONDENT calls attention to the lack of consideration for their readers on the part of publishers in issuing books full of important information without indexes. The case especially cited is Bandelier's "Gilded Man," which by merit of its contents might be placed among works of reference by the addition of a good index.

MEYER BROS. CO. announce the early publication in the Collection Lemerre of "Henriette," by F. Coppée; and "Demi-Vierges," by Marcel Prévost, the novel of the hour in Paris. An illustrated edition of "Lettres de Femmes," with fifty original designs by Gerbault, the well-known artist of the Vie Parisienne, will also be ready shortly.

THE AMERICAN ECONOMIC ASSOCIATION has just issued a special limited cloth-bound edition of "Progressive Taxation in Theory and Practice," by Prof. Edwin R. A. Seligman, of Columbia College, a work which constitutes the January and March numbers of publications of the society and offers a complete discussion of its important subjects.

MR. AXEL JOSEPHSON, of the State Library, Albany, is now engaged upon a translation into Swedish of John Jacob Astor's book, "A Journey in the Other World." His enterprise has the endorsement of Mr. Astor's publishers, and when the Swedish version is ready for the printer the book will be issued in Stockholm with the original illustrations.

A VERY attractive volume by the late Phillips Brooks will be published in the coming autumn by E. P. Dutton & Co. It is called "Essays and Addresses," and will take its place as pure literature in distinction from his theological writings previously published. Beatrice Harraden will publish through this house a "New Book of the Fairies."

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS announce the "Philosophical Remains of the Late Prof. George Croon Robertson," edited by his old friend, Prof. Bain, of Aberdeen, who has written a memoir of the author. Prof. Robertson's narrative of his connection with John Stuart Mill and the Woman's Suffrage movement is based principally on letters written to him by Mill.

DICK & FITZGERALD have just published "Hyrum: The House of Wisdom, or, Solomon's house," by A. Tylor, being the secret ritual of a learned society devoted to the cultivation and advancement of experimental and occult philosophy and the sciences. The story is told in symbolic cypher. They have also ready an edition of "Roberts' Ritual of the Knights of Pythias," revised.

THE CENTURY Co. will publish during the month a "Life of Roger Williams, the Pioneer of Religious Liberty," by Oscar S. Straus, the author of "The Republican Form of Government in the United States;" and Rudyard Kipling's "Jungle Book," a collection of stories of animal life which have appeared in St. Nicholas and elsewhere during the past year, and are sure of an enthusiastic welcome.

REV. S. R. CROCKETT, the Scotch minister and author, whose book, "The Stickit Minister," has made him known so widely, has received from Robert Louis Stevenson a poem in four stanzas as a contribution to the new large illustrated edition of Mr. Crockett's story which is being made ready. This edition will have head and tail pieces, and larger illustrations by Joseph Pennell and others, and will be published in the autumn.

A SECOND edition is in preparation of the first volume of Funk & Wagnalls' "Standard Dictionary of the English Language," the first having been exhausted soon after it was published. This house will also issue at once "Isabella of Castile," by Major-General O. O. Howard, and "John Brown and His Men," by Col. Richard J. Hinton—the final volume in the American Reformers series, a treasury of historical, social and religious data.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY, Los Angeles, Cal., would be glad to receive regularly for distribution publishers' lists, special and general, catalogues, announcements, etc. They have recently placed holders in the corridors of the City Hall, leading to the library, which contain all such material as they have received. But the stock on hand does not meet the demand. They specially solicit educational, religious, scientific, and literary announcements. Publishers should address Miss Tessa L. Kelso, Librarian, Los Angeles, Cal.

THE two volumes on "Yachting," in the Badminton Library, will be published in the course of next month by Little, Brown & Co. Among the contributors are: the Marquis of Dufferin and Ava, the Earl of Pembroke and Montgomery, the Earl of Onslow, Lord Brassey, Sir Edward Sullivan, Sir George Leach, the Rev. G. L. Blake, and Mr. E. F. Knight. The illustrations will be from original drawings by Mr. R. T. Pritchett, and from photographs. A volume on "Archery," by Mr. C. J. Longman and Col. H. Walrond, will follow in July.

IN the forthcoming "Chronological Outlines of American Literature," which has been prepared by Selden S. Whitcomb, and edited, with an introduction, by Brander Matthews, a special study has been made of colonial literature, in the hope of interesting common school teachers of United States history in the literary side of our early national life. "Even the titles," says the author, "are somewhat illuminative; for many teachers have no clear ideas in regard even to what books were written, printed, and read in this country prior to Bryant."

MR. BANGS, the auctioneer, says that although there have been many book auctions recently, none of them has been owing to the hard times. No book collectors have been so pinched by the stringency in the money market that they have felt obliged to sell out their libraries. All that have been sold at Mr. Bangs' auction-rooms have been sold to close estates, and would have been brought under the hammer even in the best of times. For the books that have been sold, good prices have been given, all of which goes to show that, while books may be luxuries to some people, they are necessities to others; and people will have necessities even in hard times.

J. J. LITTLE, receiver of the Worthington Co., submitted to Mr. Anthony Comstock some books which he was told Mr. Comstock had restrained Mr. Worthington from selling some ten years back, and submitted to the court the question whether he had any right to sell as assets of the company books that had been put under Mr. Comstock's ban. In looking over these forbidden books, Mr. Comstock for the first time glanced into the pages of "Tom Jones," and is shocked to think that this book has been sold for one hundred and forty-five years. In future he will do his best to check its sale. Gibbon, Thackeray, and Coleridge held different opinions about "Tom Jones," but they are only immortal critics and—had read the book.

THE "Altar-Book," containing the communion service of the Episcopal Church, with collects, epistles, and gospels, announced some time ago to be published by Mr. D. B. Updike, of Boston, is almost ready for the press. The borders and initials for it are designed by Mr. Bertram Goodhue, of Boston. Seven plates, by an English artist, illustrative of the festivals of the rich and of the holy communion, will further ornament the book. Musical notation for the plain-song will be introduced in the decorative manner common in old Italian office-books. Mr. Charles Sherborn, the well-known English engraver of ex-libris, is making for it two emblems of semi-heraldic and ecclesiastical character. So, while the volume will be of practical use, it promises to be a not unworthy descendant of the office-books of the older days. Many copies of it have already been taken up.

FOREIGN NOTES.

AN important work by Hans Sachs, a volume containing fourteen hitherto unknown songs, has been accidentally found in a library at Nuremberg.

ASHER & Co. will have ready for publication in a few weeks a new work by M. Terrien de la Couperie, entitled "Western Origin of the Early Chinese Civilization, from 2300 B.C. to 220 A.D."

IT is proposed to erect a bust over the grave of the German poet, G. A. Burger, at Göttingen, on June 8, the centenary of his birth. Contributions may be sent to Diebrich's book-store at Göttingen.

ANDR.-FRÉD. HÖST & SON, Copenhagen, have just ready "Œuvres Ophtalmologiques," by Thomas Young, translated and annotated by M. Tscherning, a work published at the expense of the Fondation Carlsberg.

BESIDES the "history" of Egypt, upon which Prof. Flinders Petrie is engaged, he is also editing a series of folk-tales of the Egyptians, the first volume of which will appear in July, accompanied with illustrations by Mr. Tristram Ellis.

AN Australian confectioner has hit upon the idea of printing the news of the day upon a thin paste of dough, using chocolate instead of ink. He delivers these cakes to his customers, who first read them and then eat them with their coffee.

THE 350th anniversary of the foundation of the Leipzig Bookbinders' Association (which dates from 1544) occurs this year. It is intended to hold an exhibition in the city, in commemoration of the event, which will open in August next.

BERTILLON, the famous French expert in identifying criminals, is at work on the preparation of an illustrated dictionary of "Anarchists of Paris and the Provinces," arranged alphabetically, and also according to physical nomic types.

DAUDET's new book, "Memories of a Peasant," is his only by right of translation. In it he presents a version of a long poem by a provincial writer, Baptiste Bonnet, who was a laborer, and was at twenty years of age unable to read or write, or even to speak French.

A WORK dealing with Christianity and socialism, called "Vox Clamantium," is to be published by A. D. Innes & Co., London; Hall Caine, S. R. Crockett, Richard Le Gallienne, Lewis Morris, Alfred Russell Wallace, Tom Mann, and Dean Stubbs are among the contributors.

THE annual report of the trustees of Shakespeare's birthplace shows that there were 15,000 paid admissions in 1893—materially less than

In 1892. The falling off is ascribed to the depression in America and to the Chicago exhibition. The report shows an adverse balance of of £697.

THE large body of literature attributed to Paracelsus will be included in unabridged form, and in English, in two volumes, to be brought out in London. They will bear the title "The Hermetic and Alchemical Writings of Paracelsus." The text from which the translation has been made is that of the Geneva folio of 1658 in Latin.

THE craze for making lists of "popular books" has reached Norway. Kringsjaa publishes a list of twenty-five received from readers and correspondents. It appears that the Danish "Peer Gynt" is the most popular; next comes "Familjen paa Gilje" and the Bible. Next comes Ibsen, Lie, and Bjornson. Charles Dickens is the most popular among the foreign authors.

IN England the sale of Hardy's "Tess of the d'Urbervilles" has reached 23,000 copies. Other works of fiction of large English sale are "The Heavenly Twins" and "Dodo." Messrs. Longmans, Green & Co. report that Stanley Weyman's "Gentleman of France" has gone to its twelfth thousand, that Haggard's "Montezuma's Daughter" has gone to its twenty-fifth, and Conan Doyle's "The Refugees" to its twenty-second.

THE Gounod family has decided to publish a memorial volume, which will consist of the fragmentary manuscripts left by the composer, some of them being of an autobiographical nature, and of numerous letters to and from him. Gounod's son Jean, the artist, and his son-in-law, Baron de Lassus Saint-Genès, are aiding Mme. Gounod in collecting the materials and preparing the volume for the press. But it is not expected that it will appear for some time to come.

THE senior member of the firm of R. & H. Clark, of Edinburgh, said not long ago, that just after Tennyson's death they kept for three weeks twenty-six printing-machines turning out the Laureate's works. There was an unprecedented demand for them, but they were out of print for only two hours. Mr. Clark also said that for the past thirty years the firm has had thirty hands uninterruptedly engaged in producing Walter Scott's works. This would appear to prove that readers have not outgrown Scott at least.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word (Cash).

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as "not having been received."

WITH THE WILD FLOWERS.

From PUSSY-WILLOW to THISTLE-DOWN. A rural chronicle of our flower friends and foes, describing them under their familiar English names. By E. M. HARDINGE. Illustrated. 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

This book is a delightfully chatty volume carrying us through the whole season with the wild flowers, as they make their appearance. It is intended for those who love flowers as flowers, and who like to read about them, without getting into too close contact with technical terms and classifications. The author is well known as a writer for the New York Evening Post and the magazines, and her articles are gladly welcomed by those who like both nature and literature.

THE AMATEUR AQUARIST.

By MARK SAMUEL, Aquarist to Columbia College, New York. Illustrated. 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

An American Aquarium book indispensable to every one who wishes to start an Aquarium, or who already has one. It contains Complete Instructions for making a New Self-Sustaining Aquarium requiring Change of Water but Once a Year, and tells How, When and Where to find suitable water plants and fishes. It contains over fifty new illustrations from life, by which to identify the specimens.

TO BE ISSUED ABOUT JUNE 1:

A FLOWER OF FRANCE.

A Story of Old Louisiana.

By MARAH ELLIS RYAN, author of "Merze," "In Love's Domains," "Told in the Hills," "A Pagan of the Alleghanies," and "Squaw Elouise." 12mo. cloth, $1.00.

"A Flower of France," Marah Ellis Ryan's forthcoming novel, is a work of extreme and well-sustained interest. The old days of Spanish and French occupation of Louisiana are portrayed with the irresistible vigor distinctive of this author. Based on a foundation of tragedy and revolution a tender love-story is reared, characterized by a charming delicacy of touch and warmth of coloring, and saturated with the spirit of a romantic past.

IN PREPARATION:

THE RED HOUSE. By "THE DUCHESS."

In this, her latest work, the authoress has added fresh laurels to her crown. In strength of color, interest of plot, and insight into the intricacies of human nature, this novel surpasses all her former efforts.

HIS WILL AND HERS. By DORA RUSSELL.

A charming love-story of modern society. The difficulties of a struggling authoress, the many dramatic incidents of her career, and her final success and happiness are told with the delightful art of which this authoress is the mistress.

AGAINST ODDS. A Romance of the Midway Plaisance. By LAWRENCE L. LYNCH, author of "A Dead Man's Step," etc., etc.

A story of intense interest, full of startling surprises, the outcome of the plot remaining in uncertainty until the last page is reached. One of this well-known writer's strongest works.

MAGDALENA. From the Spanish of Ponslevi.

A dashing romance of spirited action treating of modern life in Madrid. A delightfully vivid and refreshing story.

THE RED SULTAN. By J. MACLAREN COBBAN.

Beyond doubt the best story of adventure that has been written in many years.

Latest Additions to the RIALTO SERIES.

In paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

THE TWO-LEGGED WOLF. From the Russian of N. N. KARAZIN. Illustrated by the author.

"Every chapter is intensely dramatic even to excitement. . . . Excellently well done and enjoyable."—Literary Weekly.

"The threads of the story are woven in alternate colors of humor and pathos, love and war, the whole forming a charming combination."—Record.

"Very attractive."—The Philadelphia Call.

Review of the World's Religious Congresses of the World's Congress Auxiliary of the World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago, 1893. Edited, with explanatory notes, by Rev. L. P. MERCER, Member of General Committee. This is the only work published on this subject that is both suitable for popular reading and for the use of the student. Illustrated with numerous portraits.

Michael's Crag. By GRANT ALLEN. A profusely illustrated edition of this popular author's last work.

"Exceptionally fascinating reading." . . . The silhouette illustrations "are so remarkably vivid as to become unique."—Boston Ideas.

"An admirable story."—N. Y. Recorder.

Memoirs of a Physician. By ALEXANDER DUMAS.

Joseph Balsamo. By ALEXANDER DUMAS. These translations of these famous works are exceptionally vivid and true to the original text, and retain in a marked degree the charming literary style of the author.

The Heir of Redclyffe. By CHARLOTTE M. YONGE. This volume is a carefully revised edition of this favorite author's most charming work. The many illustrations by Kate Greenway are of the highest artistic merit.

REED'S RULES.

A Manual of Parliamentary Law.

By the Hon. THOMAS B. REED, Ex-Speaker of the House of Representatives. In cloth, 75 cents; full seal grain flexible leather, $1.25. Size, 4 x 6 inches. Convenient for the pocket.

"Reasonable, right, and rigid."—J. STERLING MORTON, Secretary of Agriculture.

"Most timely and valuable."—T. H. CARTER, Chairman National Republican Committee.

"I commend the book most highly."—W. MCKINLEY, Governor of Ohio.

"Most admirably adapted for general use."—H. C. LODGE, Senator from Massachusetts.

FISHING-HUT AMONG THE REEDS.

Unconventional Journeys in All Parts of the World.

WITH the coming of "flowery June" Nature is in her brightest "holiday humor," and attired in her most seductive raiment, asks with Rosalind, only to be "woo'd."

How shall we approach her? In the old conventional ways that have so often led to disenchantment, or through new and cleverly-contrived methods of allurements?

The new too often presents intangible though strong enough barriers between ourselves and the unknown to permit of wide experimenting, and we go back again and again to the old, through sheer mental laziness and moral cowardice. Once, however, the charm and the thrill of a new experience have been felt, once our footsteps have strayed from the old beaten tracks of commonplace, we sigh for new worlds to conquer, and weep for the wasted hours of past summer holidays, when we drifted back to the old hotel in the woods, or in the mountains, or by the sea-shore.

In making our preparations for a summer rest, too little time is given to the consideration of the possibilities embraced within the time and money that are ours. One predominant thought possesses us—to get out of the "hurly-burly" of city life; but where to go and how to get there seem matters that are left altogether to the chance of the last moment.

So much may be accomplished nowadays in even the briefest holiday, that we have aimed to guide our readers to new fields of travel altogether out of the conventional way, by gathering together a list of works in which are recorded the experiences in all parts of the world of the daring pioneers in the realm of the new. We hope they may be an inspiration and a help to those discontented souls who would be unconventional if they knew how, as well as to those already fired with the spirit of adventure, but at a loss to know how to direct it. The list makes an amusing collection of volumes for reading through the hot summer months for the traveller or the stay-at-home; to the unfortunate for whom life holds no "summer holiday" they offer a cheerful philosophy and many fresh points of view; to the favorite of fortune they suggest all sorts of novel methods of travel in little-frequented paths.

Nothing could be more charming than the bicycle rides described. Mr. and Mrs. Pennell, the leaders in this delightful method of penetrating the secrets of country haunts, are the authors of a most attractive series of books devoted to their personal adventures. Together on their "wheel," they have year after year leisurely enjoyed the picturesque and secluded lanes of England and the out-of-the-way nooks of Continental Europe. The "wheel" is now a familiar figure in our own landscape, and singly or in pairs, it takes its way through the beautiful hills of Berkshire, over the mountain roads of Maine and Vermont, and through the leafy and verdant lanes of Pennsylvania, dotted here and there with old-fashioned inns of old English pattern, one vying with another in cordial host or hostess, and in substantial country fare. The "wheel," however, is not the only method of locomotion that has been resorted to in the new assaults upon nature. A "buggy" or a four-wheeled carriage is used

From "Overheard in Arcady"

Copyright, 1891, by C. Scribner's sons

"THEY KEEP ON HOPEING AND BUY THE NEXT BOOK."

The Household of Frank R. Stockton.

From Robert Bridges' "Overheard in Arcady." (Charles Scribner's Sons.)

THE LADY (one of the fairest maidens at a semi-barbaric court)

THE TIGER (the fiercest beast in the kingdom).

SCENE Two exactly similar adjoining rooms hung with the skins of wild beasts. A small iron-barred window in the centre of the dividing wall, heavily padded with cushions, leads from each into a huge arena. In one room—THE LADY, in the other—THE TIGER.

TIME The Present.

THE LADY (rousing from a deep sleep on a divan covered with leopard skins)

H, I am weary, weary of this waiting! Here must I stay till that young man answers the conundrum, and chooses the Lady or the Tiger

THE TIGER (with his huge paws sticking through the iron bars of the window) Hullo, there! You needn't make such a fuss about it, I'm in the same boat with you.

LADY (satirically) But you're a tiger, and a man-tiger at that. You're used to the solitude of the jungle, while my only life has been the gayety of court. Why must we be shut up here all these years?

TIGER (philosophically, scratching his left ear with his right paw). Well, it's all done for a good cause: the cause of literature. The slave who brought me my breakfast this morning said that he heard the king remark to his daughter, the other day, that if the question were settled about the Lady or the Tiger, Stockton's occupation as a story-writer would be gone.

LADY I don't see why

TIGER (vehemently): Women never do.

LADY (with severe dignity) Perhaps Your Royal Bengal Highness can enlighten me?

TIGER: It's just this way. Every time Stockton publishes a new book, most of the people in the kingdom rush to buy it, to see whether it contains the answer to the Lady or the Tiger conundrum. When they don't find the answer, they keep on hoping and buy the next book; and so on indefinitely.

LADY (interested): It isn't a bad scheme.

TIGER: A regular lead-pipe cinch. It does not matter what he writes, the people are bound to buy it.

LADY: Oh, well, they get their money's worth, anyhow. The Nubian maid who waits on me always brings me his new books. I get a great deal of fun out of them.

TIGER (cynically): You have to; you've nothing else to do, except to embroider that wedding-dress which you won't have a chance to wear.

LADY (with tears in her eyes). It's mean of you to bully a poor, weak woman. You are like all the men I used to know; they are half-tiger in their dispositions, the brutes.

TIGER (showing his teeth). I don't feel flattered to be compared to a man. Respectable tigers always defend their women-folks and children to their last drop of blood. Your men, I understand, generally desert when under fire, and get divorces and separations," and break up their families to let their cubs shift for themselves. I bully our tigresses a good deal more than that had!

LADY (nonchalantly) Well—pretty good heart when one gets the chance to hide. But that is tough. That is a pair of ever improving your literature as far as I can see through the grate. I do anything but brush your teeth, smoke cigarettes, and read Rider Haggard.

TIGER (with a leer) Well, isn't that reading Stockton's everlasting drums?

LADY (patronisingly) You must show ignorance! Mr. Stockton has written perfectly beautiful tales with none in them at all. There is "Mrs. Lesch's Aleshine."

TIGER (cutting in). I guess the conundrum in that book

LADY (protesting): But he answers the sequel. Then there is "The Last Null"—

TIGER (with a fiendish laugh) The conundrum of the lot! I tell you it's simply a great big ?

LADY (pettishly) I won't talk any more to-day unless you play fair. But isn't "Rudder Grange" perfect?

TIGER (dubiously, chewing his lip) Did? Come now, you must admit that LADY (saying that I was not interested in that book, you poked it through the bars. From Euphemia, and the canal-boat are great. But the men are such awful idiots. They be men like those, but I never knew a tiger who was such a fool.

LADY (brightening up) And you're reading about Pomona's daughter, and borrowed from New Dublin, and Lesch's

TIGER (reluctantly): Oh, yes. But it's not a patch on "King Solomon's Mines."

LADY (in despair): You are such a thirsty creature—like a real man. The way to lead a man clear through a book with a trail of gore. You can't you appreciate quiet, gentle hints of good-will and sympathy like Mr. Stockton. I don't believe he ever read a page of a book as gruesome or disgusting as this.

we women so much. He soothes our nerves.

From "Overheard in Arcady." Copyright by Charles Scribner's Sons.

READING RIDER HAGGARD

TIGER (maliciously): That's the business of this—not literature.

LADY (indignantly): You are incorrigible, and won't talk to you. Go away from that window! . . .

Pleasant Spot for an Idle Summer Day.

From Francis A. Knight's "By Moorland and Sea."
(Roberts Bros.)

THE stream is the border-line between the field and the woodland. Its song is low toharborage. In the crevice of an old alder's stump are the ruins of a dipper's nest, empty long ago, only just distinguishable from the moss that has known no other place of growth, by the brown tinge of decay. A beautiful spot the birds fixed on for their home. A pleasant spot, too, for an idle summer day. The very ripple of the brook over the shingly bar lends a sense of coolness to the air. The long boughs of hazel join hands across the stream, and graceful wych-elms that lean over it temper the hot August sunshine. In the eternal twi-

THE DIPPER'S HAUNT.

ay, but even were its silver tongue entirely silent its course is plain to read. Tall spikes of willow-herb shine all along it, like a line of lamps. White heads of meadow-sweet, rising through the fringing alders, suggest little heaps of foam that the brook has lightly tossed ashore. Art of man could hardly have devised a bridge more in keeping with the scene than the single log that here is laid across the brook, squared a little on one face, or, it may be, only worn by years of toiling feet. There is a slender manner of support in it—just a help to steady you in crossing. Yet the children of the village, coming down to look for cattle that have strayed among the thicket, walk fearlessly over, almost as soon as they can walk at all.

Under the bridge is a deep, still pool, where you may see, if you move cautiously, the big trout, the old hands of the stream, poised in the slow-moving current or lying on the pebbles at the bottom. Over the winding shore here leans, from the green woods above, a ring of young wych-elm and hazel, with here and there a coral-berried rowan. And clear cut against the soft blue shadows under them ivy and honeysuckle hang down their lithe, trailing sprays. On every ledge of the steep rock fern and moss and wood-sorrel have found light of the woods the ring-dove coos and pheasants crow; and, as evening darkens, the gray rabbits frolic all along the edge of the meadow. It is a little stream, but it is an angler's stream, for all that. It is alive with trout. Small they are, certainly, as befits the smallness of their haunt, though there are more half-pounders here than at first sight you would think likely; and tales are current in the village of thumping fellows, two-pounders (angler's weight), that have been taken by the native fishermen. The rod of the village angler is often a stick cut from the hedge. Now and then a more ambitious sportsman fits himself out with a wonderful weapon, painted green, and with as many brass ferrules as a cart-whip. His appliances are all rude in the extreme, but he fills his basket.

TYING THE STRINGS OF HER SHOE.

From Tom Hall's "When Hearts are Trumps," (Stone & Kimball.)

THIS is the strings of her shoe,
With only the moon to see me,
Could I be quick? Could you?
That is the time to woo,
What would any one do?
I tried to know that would free me,
Tying the strings of her shoe,
With only the moon to see me

Elfrida Gives up Art for Literature.

From Mrs. Everard Cotes' (Sara Jeannette Duncan)
"A Daughter of To Day" (Appleton)

The correspondent of the Daily Dial had a club for one side of the river and a café for the other. He dined oftenest at the café and Elfrida's card, with "urgent" inscribed in pencil on it, was brought to him that evening as he was finishing his coffee. She had no difficulty in getting it taken in. Mr. Parke's theory was that a newspaper man gained more than he lost by accessibility. He came out immediately, furtively returning a toothpick to his waistcoat pocket—a bald, stout gentleman of middle age, dressed in loose gray clothes, with shrewd eyes, a nose which his benevolence just saved from being hawk-like, a bristling white moustache, and a pink double chin. It rather pleased Frank Parke who was born in Hammersmith to be so constantly taken for an American—presumably a New Yorker.

MRS. EVERARD COTES.
(Sara Jeannette Duncan)

"Miss Elfrida, I am delighted to see you," he exclaimed, stretching out one hand and looking at his watch with the other. "I am fortunate in having fifteen whole minutes to put at your disposal. At the end of that time I have an appointment with a cabinet minister, who would rather see the devil. Now, what is it, dear child?"

"One afternoon last September, at Nadie Palicsky's—there is no chance that you will remember, but I assure you it is so—you told me that I might, if I tried, write, monsieur."

"I remember perfectly," he said.

"Je m'en félicite. It is more than I expected. Well, circumstances have made it so that I must either write or scrub. Scrubbing spoils one's hands, and besides, it isn't sufficiently remunerative. So I have come to ask you whether you seriously thought so or whether it was only politeness—blague—or what? I know it is horrible of me to insist like this, but you see I must."

"Oh, I meant it," he returned, ponderingly. "You can often tell by the way people talk that they would write well. But there are many things to be considered, you know."

"Oh, I know—whether one has any real right to write, anything to say that makes it worth while. I'm afraid I can't find that I have. But there must be scullery-maid's work in literature—in journalism, isn't there? I could do that, I thought. After all, it's only one's own art that one need keep sacred." She added the last sentence a little defiantly.

"It's not a thing you can jump into," he said shortly. "Have you written anything, anywhere, for the press before?"

"Only one or two thin s that have appeared in the local paper at home. They were more or less admired by the people there, so far as that goes."

"Were you paid for them?"

Elfrida shook her head. "The editor says he paid for nothing," she said.

"There it is, you see."

"I want to write for Raffin's review," Elfrida said quickly. "You know Raffin's, of course, Mr. Parke. I know everybody. Will you do me the honor to tell him that I will accept of functions for him at one-half the price he is accustomed to pay for such writing, and more entertainingly?"

Frank Parke smiled. "You are joking, indeed, Miss Elfrida. That is done by a man who is invited everywhere in the person, and knows 'tout Paris' like the back of his hand. I believe she holds stock in Raffin's, way, they would double her pay to lose her. You would have more than doubling their leader-writer."

"I should be sorry tooust anybody," she returned with dignity.

"How do you propose to help him in for doing better or cheaper than what else has been doing before?"

Miss Bell thought for a minute and stated her irresponsibility with a shrug.

"Then I'm very sorry," she said. "But I don't know what to do."

The illuminator of European journals, Daily Dial wished heartily that the matter of two or three hundred francs.

"I'm afraid I well I don't see how I can give you any very definite advice. The situation doesn't admit of it, Miss Bell. But you give up Lucien?"

"No. It is only that—that I must stop money to pay him."

"Oh! Home supplies stopped?"

"My people have lost all their money and barely enough to live on. I can't expect to see you."

"That's hard lines!"

"I'm awfully sorry for them. But enough, being sorry, you know. I must do something. I thought I might write for Raffin's—for practice, you know—the articles to print are really very bad—and afterwards I range to send Paris letters to some of the American newspapers. I know a woman who does it. I assure you she is quite stupid, but she is paid—but enormously!" Mr. Parke pressed his inclination to smile.

"I believe that sort of thing over there very much in the hands of the syndicate McClure and those fellows," he said. "They won't look at you unless you're known. I don't want to discourage you, Miss Bell. I would take you at least a year to form a connection. You would have to learn Parisian five times as well as you fancy you know it ready, and then you would require a special course of training to find out what to write about. And then, remember, you would have to compete with people who know even more of the ground. Now if I can be of any assistance to you in comarade, you know, in the matter of your passage home—"

"Thanks," Elfrida interposed quickly. "I'm not going home. If I can't write I can work as I said. I must find out." She put out her hand. "I am sure there are not many of the fifteen minutes left," she said, smiling, quite undismayed. "I have to thank you sincerely for—for sticking to the opinion."

DOING A BIT OF READING.

THE POET'S APOLOGY.

From Andrew Lang's "Ban and Arrière Ban." (Longmans, Green & Co.)

No, the Muse has gone away,
Does not haunt me much to-day.
Everything she had to say
Has been said!

'Twas not much at any time
She could hitch into a rhyme.
Never was the Muse sublime
Who has fled!

Any one who takes her in May observe she's rather thin;
Little more than bone and skin
Is the Muse;
Scanty sacrifice she won
When her very best she'd done,
And at her they poked their fun,
In Reviews.

"Rhymes," in truth, "are stubborn things,"
And to Rhyme she clung and clings,
But whatever song she sings
Scarcely sells.
If her tone be grave they say
"Give us something rather gay."
If she's skittish, then they pray
"Something else!"

Much she loved, for wading shod,
To go forth with line and rod,
Loved the heather and the sod,
Loved to rest
On the crystal river's brim,
Where she saw the fishes swim,
And she heard the thrushes' hymn
By the Test!

She, whatever way she went,
Friendly was and innocent,
Little need the Bard repent
Of her lay.
Of the babble and the rhyme,
And the imitative chime
That amused him on a time—
Now he's gray.

A Favorite Corner.

From Celia Thaxter's "An Island Garden." (Houghton, Mifflin & Co.)

NEAR my own seat in a sofa corner at one of the south windows stands yet another small table, covered with a snow-white linen cloth embroidered in silk as white and lustrous as silver. On this are gathered every day all the rarest and loveliest flowers as they blossom, that I may touch them, dwell on them, breathe their delightful fragrance, and adore them. Here are kept the daintiest and most delicate of the vases which may best set off the flowers' loveliness—the smallest of the collection, for the table is only large enough to hold a few. There is one slender small tumbler of colorless glass, from the upper edge of which a crimson stain is diffused half way down its crystal length. In this I keep one glowing crimson Burgundy rose, or an opening Jacqueminot bud; the effect is as if the color of the rose ran down and dyed the glass crimson. It is so beautiful an effect one never wearies of it. There is a little jar of Venice glass, the kind which Browning describes in "The Flight of the Duchess"—

"With long white threads distinct inside,
Like the lake flower's fibrous roots that dangle
Loose when a gentle breeze is blowing."

This is charming with a few rich pinks of different shades. Another Venice glass is in regularly bottle-shaped, bluish white with cool sea-green reflections at the bottom, to imitate, like an aqua-marine. It is sprinkled with gold-dust throughout its length; toward the top the slender neck on a soft touch of pink, which meets and blends with the Bon Silene or la France rose I keep in it. Another Venice glass is a wonder of iridescent blues, lavenders, and gold. A spray of heaven-blue lace dashed with rose is delicious in this last shape, with its marvellous tints melting into the blue and pink of the fairy flowers.

A little glass of crystal girdled with pearls holds pale blue forget-me-nots; sometimes rich with orange and yellow crysanthemums. In a tall Venetian vase of amber a Flammula is superb. A low jar of opaque pink, lost at the bottom in milky whiteness, refreshing with an old-fashioned damask matching its color exactly. This is also exquisite with one pink water-lily. The variety of the rose campion is enchanting in this low jar. A tall shaft of ruby glass radiant with poppies of every shade of red and lightest scarlet, with the silvery green of a few oats among them. A slender glass is fine with different shades of red and lilac sweet-peas, or one or two of the poppies, or an aster or two of just its color, but there is one long gold-speckled Bohemian glass of rich green which is simply perfect with any flower that blows, and perfect under any circumstances. A half dozen Iceland poppies, white, yellow, orange, in a little Japanese celain bottle, always stand on this table, the few flecks of color on the bottom repeating their tints. I never could tell the lovely combinations that glow on this table all summer long.

By the wide western window a large stand of clear white glass, nearly three feet high, stands full of spears of timothy-grass taller than the vase, the tallest I can find, so stately and high, their heavy green tips bending the fine strong stems just enough to impart summative grace. These are mixed with branching grasses, and down among the stalks are thrust the slender stalks of tulips of every conceivable shade of red. The whole is a great sheaf of splendor reaching higher than the top of the window. It is really imposing; it takes the eye with it.

All summer long within this pleasant the flowers hold carnival in every combination of beauty. All summer long kept fresh and radiant with their loveliest wonder of bloom, color, and fragrance.

THE SWEET SUMMER GIRL.

From Tom Hall's "When Hearts are Young." (Longmans, Green & Co.)

SHE has hair that is fluffy, straight, banged, and curled.
Has a parasol, oft by her dainty fingers twirled.
She has eyes either brown or black, gray or blue,
Has a neat fitting glove and a still neater shoe.

She has cheeks that make bitter the envious stare,
She has trunks upon trunks of the latest fashion here.
She has jewels that shine as the stars do at night,
And she dances as Ariel dances—or might.

She knows nothing much, but she's great on the street.
Her profession is love, and she flirts all the while.
She's accustomed to sitting on rocks in the garden,
She is also accustomed to sitting on men.

The general color of barasingh is much the same as that of red deer, but it is rather grayer, and the white patch on the rump appears a little larger. Sterndale says it has a white circle round the eyes, but the writer has never seen anything more distinct of this kind than a ring slightly paler than the rest of the head.

The horns resemble those of the red deer, with the notable exception that with barasingh the bez antler appears to be the fighting one, and is always longer and bigger than the brow antler, while with red deer the reverse is the case. Sir Victor Brooke says its call is just like that of a wapiti, and quite different from that of a red stag. "In the former it is a loud squeal, ending in a more guttural tone; in the latter it is a loud distinct roar, resembling that of a panther." In the winter nearly all the barasingh are congregated in the Cashmere Valley, but though the smaller stags come down and are pretty easily found, the big ones will not leave the high ground until the young grass begins to grow in March, which is the best month to get heads, though of course the deer are then in poor condition. By the end of March all the big stags and most of the smaller ones have shed their horns, and the deer collect into large herds and begin moving off to their summer quarters, those in the western corner of the valley going to the banks of the Kishengunga River. The herds which strike the river at its nearest point below Gurais cross it, and retire to the range of hills on the southern border of Astor. Only a few stags cross this range.

Louis Napoleon and "Madame Bovary."

From "My Paris Note-Book," by the author of "An Englishman in Paris." (J. B. Lippincott Co.)

HERE is another instance of Louis Napoleon's tendency to take a "topsy-turveydom" view of things in general, and of serious things in particular. When public opinion clamored for the prosecution of the author of "Madame Bovary," the emperor consented, though most reluctantly. He was one of the first who had read the book, and in his inmost heart he admired both the author and his work. "Then why prosecute him, sire?" asked my uncle Mark. "I'll tell you why," replied the emperor, smiling. "If we do not prosecute, we shall have every cabman in Paris and in the provinces asking for double his fare the moment an affectionate-looking couple try to step into his vehicle. Flaubert ought to have known better; if it was absolutely necessary to his plot to have Emma Bovary and Léon Dupuis drive round Rouen for a whole day in a conveyance with the blinds down, he ought to have made Léon go to a livery stable for the carriage, and not have made him take a mere hackney from the rank. This sei-disant, unmolested drive round and round the city casts, to begin with, and inferentially, a slur upon the vigilance of the Rouen police, who stupid as they may be, would not have allowed such a thing to pass unchallenged, and who, to make up for their alleged neglect, will stop every cab that has its blinds down. They have a perfect right to do so in the matter of carriages plying for hire in the public thoroughfares, and we shall have the innocent uncle with his pretty niece, and the somewhat pasée aunt with her lamb-like nephew, hauled before the magistrate for outrage aux mœurs. There is, furthermore, an outcry already that people cannot get into a hackney cab without being fleeced. It is not my fault, after all, that the spread of education has reached 'cabby'—the emperor liked to use an English word now and then—and that he has read this masterpiece of realistic fiction. No, Flaubert must be indicted; there will be more scandals if we do not than if we do."

I have often wondered since whether Mr. Gilbert could have produced a more deliberately comical and distorted view of a moral problem.

Sorrow and Joy.

From Beatrice Hawthorne's "In Fading Glories" (G. P. Putnam's Sons.)

ONE night she dreamed that she went to the halls of Death, and asked to be shown into the presence of the Lord of Death.

"Why art thou here?" asked the Lord of Death, gravely, as she stood before him, her head bowed, and her arms folded in front of her: a sad figure.

"I have come to beg thee to put thy cold hand on me," she whispered; "I wish to die. I wish to free the world of my dark presence. I wish my very name to be forgotten."

But the Lord of Death answered thus: "Thy name and the name of Joy are bracketed together. Ye are twin sisters. When thou diest, Joy must die also. Surely thou dost not wish her to die when she is doing her good work. What would the world be without Joy? And yet if I lay my cold hand on thee, I must needs lay it on Joy. For as the light implies the darkness, and as the day implies the night, so Joy implies Sorrow, and Sorrow implies Joy. Thus, these two ye are inseparably bound up together. Together ye came into the world, and together ye must leave the world. What is thy choice, Sorrow? Wilt thou live or die?"

"I will live," cried Sorrow, "for I have my twin sister, and may live for evermore. I am the world's need, its light and shade, its joy and pain, and I have my influence. O Lord of Death, this is my choice for evermore."

And Sorrow, with a contented sigh, lay down

In her heart there was that strange peace which comes of sacrifice. She sought her sister. She scarcely recognized her, for there was a beauty on Joy's face which Sorrow never before seen so clearly defined.

"You have given me a great work," Sorrow whispered Joy, as she clung close to her. "Never until now did I realize the possibilities of life. Give me of your life, Sorrow, and help me to be a greater great reformer, as you wished me to be. Sorrow, I have seen smiles lighting up the faces of men and women and children. Incredible wonderful things happen. Ah, and I have heard people bless Sorrow, because Sorrow prepared the way for Joy. Come, end your wanderings, dear, for the welfare of you as well as of me."

"Kiss me, Joy," said Sorrow, "and comfort me."

And Joy kissed her.

"You will never know death," said Sorrow as she looked proudly at her sister. "All things may pass away, but Joy shall live ever."

"And you, dear Sorrow?" asked Joy.

"I too shall live for ever," answered Sorrow gently. "And Joy, when I go about the world, you must come with me, to soothe the weary, and to kiss away the tears caused by my presence. Will you promise that, Joy?"

And Joy promised it.

Then the sisters passed on together. The golden sunshine fell on their hair over their fair hair. They seemed wonderfully alike, for Joy had borrowed some part of Sorrow's expression, and Sorrow's eyes had taken the light in Joy's eyes. And as in the old days when they danced over the daisies through the daffodil woods, so now, looking at them, could tell which was Sorrow and which was Joy.

How Olive Thorne Miller Rests.

From Olive Thorne Miller's "A Bird-Lover's Story" (Houghton, Mifflin & Co.)

WITH the earnest desire of suggesting to tired souls a practicable way of resting, I even give a bit of personal history, the way in which I have learned to rest in nature.

When I turn my back upon my home, I make a serious and determined effort to leave me all cares and worries. As my trip, a beautiful May evening, passed over the brick and stone walls, and sped over the country. I shook off, as well as I was able, my affairs, all my interests, all my responsibilities, leaving them in that busy city where a few burdens more or less were a matter to anybody. With my troubles and my face turned toward the great Mountains, I left the whole world behind me, departing—as far as I was able—a liberated soul, with no duties except to rejoice and to recruit. This is not at all to do; it is like tearing apart one's self, but it can be done by earnest endeavor. It has been done, and it is a charm more potent than magic to bring restoration and refreshment to the brain and nerve-weary worker.

To insure any measure of success in o alone; one familiar face would make the effort of no avail; and I seek a place where I am a stranger, so that my ordinary life cannot be recalled to me. When I reach my temporary home I forget, or at least ignore, my notions as to what I shall eat or drink, or how I shall sleep. I take the goods the gods provide and adjust myself to them. Even these little things help one out of his old ways of thought and life. To still further banish home concerns, I mark upon my calendar one week before the day I shall start for home, and sternly resolve that not until I reach that day shall I give one thought to my return, but will live as though I meant to stay always. I take no work of any sort, and I banish books, excepting a few poets and studies of nature.

Such is the aim of my honest and earnest striving; that I do not quite reach my goal is merely to say I am human. Letters from my home and friends will drag me back to old interests, and times will come, in sleepless nights and unguarded moments, when the whole world of old burdens and cares sweep in and overwhelm me. But I rouse my will, and resolutely, with all my power, push them back, refuse to entertain them for a moment.

Holding myself in this attitude of mind, I secure a change almost as complete as if I stepped out of my body and left it resting, while I refreshed myself at the fountain of life. All my thoughts are turned into fresh channels; the old ruts are smoothed over, if not obliterated; nerves on the strain all the year have a chance to recreate themselves; old worries often weaken and fade away.

Faustine's Husband.

From "Countess Hermann," from the German by Juliet Gordon. (Robert Bonner's Sons.)

"ALLOW people to arrange their own affairs," said Clemens, shortly.

"And select a wife to their own taste?" asked Faustine.

"What twaddle, that!" said Waldorf.

"It rather pleases me!" cried Faustine, and clapped her hands. "Now I like a man that desires more of his wife than that she will not over-salt his soup."

HE TOOK HER IN HIS ARMS AND CARRIED HER ACROSS.

"If one is too exacting in one's choice, one is rarely happy," remarked Adèle.

"If I had a daughter," said Faustine, "and a man saw in her his future housekeeper, I should be profoundly humiliated."

"You are wrong!" cried Adèle. "Common interest—that is the strongest bond."

"I believe I am foolish," replied Faustine, quietly; "and heaven has spared me this trial by giving me no daughter. I never doubted that sorrow and trouble, battled through together, bind hearts to each other. I would make many sacrifices; but should expect my husband to wish to own, not a servant—but me—Faustine."

"I am amazed," said Waldorf, and let fall his pipe.

"At my peculiar ideas?" asked she, a little contemptuously.

"No; that you do not marry, you speak of it so reasonably."

Faustine made merry over her brother-in-law's comment:

"Why should I marry? I am too old!"

"Oh," said he, with a bow; "such a beautiful woman will never be old."

"Bravo! You are exercising yourself in gallantry. Since I am young and beautiful enough—perhaps not rich enough."

"That is quite another thing. I was surprised to hear you speak of sacrifices, having heard you say you thought women should be on the same footing with men."

"Would you expect the woman to be the head of the family?" asked Adèle.

"No, I would expect a man to treat his wife as an equal, and not like a bought slave, putting his heel upon her neck in his bad humors, and in his pleasant moments decking it with a necklace. There is nothing like this to demoralize a woman. It destroys her delicacy. To-day she allows a brutality to pass for the sake of a new bonnet to-morrow."

"Clemens," she said, turning suddenly to the young man; "think of these things when you marry."

"But you forget his wife is to come from heaven," put in Waldorf; "he has already told us."

"I wish you as good a one as you deserve," she said kindly to Clemens.

"Has she, then, not guessed that for me there is but one woman in the world, and no other?" he asked himself. He was distracted when he went for a walk with her later, and spoke little. This, however, did not strike Faustine, who knew how much he liked to listen to her. He did not notice where they went, nor did she, as she always relied upon his guidance and preferred unknown paths.

"Where are we?" she asked at last, as they came suddenly out of a wooded place into a swamp skirted by trees, through which a turbid brook flowed slowly. "It is absolutely ghostly here. Must I cross this brook?"

"Certainly," said Clemens; and without another word he took her up in his arms and carried her across.

When Faustine was once more on terra firma—"I forbid that," she said: "I can use my own feet. Where are we going now?" She spoke angrily and shook her gown as if she would be free from his touch. She did it thoughtlessly, and just this wounded him deeply. He answered her question:

"I really do not know."

"Why did you carry me through the brook if it was useless?"

"That, too, I do not know."

"Then please go and find out the way. . . ."

Home the Spiritualist and the Empress Eugénie.

From Pierre De Lamoignon's "The Empress Eugénie" (Dodd, Mead & Co.)

A more important event, which had great commotion, was the tragedy which occurred at Home's apartment shortly after it was received by the empress.

A charming man, the Marquis de B— was amongst Home's most ardent admirers; he had often entreated him to make him a young girl whom he had loved but who had died.

The American, after having avoided as far as possible the request of the marquis, at last consented to yield to his wish.

"Come to my apartment to-morrow," he said, "and I will bring you into the presence of the young girl whom you loved."

At the hour agreed upon M. de B— presented himself at the medium's apartment. Whereupon the latter led him into an adjoining room and left him. What then occurred? Of the hero of this adventure knew; but he was away with him the secret of his vision. Of the Marquis de B— see her whom he was to see, or was he the victim (which is probably the case) of a frightful and mad dream? Of his unbalanced mind suddenly go to guess. When Home entered the room, M. de B— was lying at full length on the floor at the foot of the bed, and all sign of life was gone. A sudden heart-failure had killed him.

Those about the emperor asked themselves after this accident, if it was not time to put a stop to these movings of the spirit. But the empress, who learned of the plot which was being planned against her protégé, intervened, and Home, more than ever, was received in court.

He became the indispensable friend of the Tuileries; and by the good nature with which the emperor bore with him to please his wife by the enthusiastic sympathy which she showed him, he succeeded in re-establishing his influence in a manner alarming to those who persistently looked upon him as a skillful and incomparable trickster.

One day when the court was at Fontainebleau—it was on a Sunday morning—the press proposed to the ladies who accompanied her to go with her and Home to a kiosk on the lake. They all agreed to this, and all assembled themselves about a table which the American hastened to consult. Amongst the women present on this occasion were the Grande Duchesse Stephanie de Bade, the wife of the emperor, also her daughter, the Princess Marie, Duchess of Hamilton. The table had been requested to talk, remained silent a moment. But on the windows of the kiosk there was suddenly heard a deafening sound, hailstones falling with violence. Finally, by an order from Home, the spirit decided to break the silence; and the frightened women, listening attentively, heard the following words:

"What are you doing here? It is Sunday. Your place is elsewhere. You should be in church."

The empress, who was very superstitious, arose to go, taking with her her friends. Together they repaired hurriedly to perform their devotions.

From "A Suburban Pastoral."

Copyright, 1894, by Henry Holt & Co.

"ABOUT COCKCROW THEY PASSED THROUGH A LITTLE TOWN."

A Midwinter Night's Dream.

from H. A. Brons' "A Suburban Pastoral, and Other Tales." (H. Holt & Co.)

At the top of this hill they stopped again. They were now cut off by the intervening ridge from the sounds of the coasting party. It was one of those halcyon nights, not infrequent in the winter climate of New England—whose rangeableness is its glory as well as its danger—when the wind has fallen, and the temperature has risen so rapidly that, in contrast with the previous rigor of the season, the weather has almost a summer balm, and one can walk abroad comfortably without an overcoat. . . .

"Did you ever read Hawthorne's story of 'Wakefield'?" asked Brainard.

"I don't remember it. What was it about?"

"A steady-going old fellow, who has lived as regular as clockwork for years with his easy-going wife. All of a sudden an impulse strikes him. He goes out one October evening, into lodgings in the next street, disguises himself completely, and for twenty years never comes home again and is given up for dead."

"Yes, I think I have read it," she murmured.

"Didn't you ever feel that impulse, to cut yourself off suddenly from the past by one revocable act, to burn all your ships behind you; to step across a narrow crack which you now will widen into a crevice, and then into a chasm that you can never get back across?"

"Yes," she answered, with a suppressed excitement in her voice: "I have come to such places and felt the temptation just to put my foot across and see what would happen. I have heard something say in my ear, 'Now is our chance—now—now; do it—do it.' And then," she added, "I have looked down into the crevice and found no bottom to it, and turned around and gone home again."

"Yes," said Brainard, "we always do go back. We never have spirit enough to take the venture. I used to ramble along the docks in New York and look at the ocean steamers tugging ready to weigh anchor, and a dozen times I've been on the point of walking aboard one of them and taking passage to whatever part of the world it was bound for. But I never did."

She drew a long breath, but answered nothing. And now a tender white radiance began to suffuse the eastern heaven, and presently a point and then a rim of silver lifted itself above the horizon.

"The moon!" they exclaimed together. They watched the planet until its gibbous disk had risen free of the sky-line, and long shadows from trees and fences wavered toward them across the snow crust, sparkling with crystal reflections.

"Sue," said Brainard, in a low voice that thrilled with emotion, "shall we go on toward that?"

"Why not?" she replied.

As they faced each other in the new light of the moon it might have seemed that the superstition which attributes madness to lunar influence was not altogether fancy. Whether because his eyes were dazzled and full of moonshine, her own looked larger and brighter to him than by day, and her face had an exalted and bewitched expression. Whatever was trivial or familiar in the girl that he had known was strained away, and he found himself alone in the enchanted night with a woman grown suddenly sweet and strange.

"Because," he said, speaking with momentous slowness, "if you dare to go on any farther with me we may never come back."

"I never take a dare," she answered, defiantly.

"Dare you kiss me, then?" he asked, approaching her.

She made no reply, but in the steady audacious fixture of her regard he found an answer, and seizing her in his arms, he kissed her repeatedly on her cold cheeks and her warm lips, until she covered her face with her hands and stood as if dazed.

"Now we have crossed the chasm," she said, as he released her.

The Two-Legged Wolf.

From Karada's "The Two-Legged Wolf." (Rand, McNally & Co.)

In the hot, yellow stand stood a wooden stake, painted red. The lower portion of this stake, imbedded in the soil, was shod with iron; at its upper end there was a short crosspiece, and upon it sat, its feathers bristling, a handsome hunting-falcon, dreaming—the sharp, rascally eyes covered by the opaque, transverse eyelids.

The bird seemed the embodiment of perfect immobility. From the little red cap fitted to its small, shapely head down to the little silver chain which fastened its leg to the crosspiece, it resembled a thing carved. He never moved; not one of the little bells which adorned the collar around the bird's neck gave forth a sound, and, as if drawn by hand, the short bluish shadow cast by the bird lay sharply defined upon the reddish-yellow background of sand.

Two greyhounds, lean, gaunt, and nearly hairless, with inflamed tongues protruding, lay flat upon their sides, and but for the barely perceptible movement of their clearly defined ribs they would have been taken for carrion rather than for living animals ready at the first motion, at a single faint summoning whistle of their master, to jump up and scan the boundless steppe—to fly like arrows over the wave-like, friable sands, which to the eye appeared to have neither ending nor beginning.

A handsome, showy horse—a blooded Turkoman stallion—covered, in spite of the scorching heat, with a heavy blanket, also stood motionless nearby; the clean, sinewy fetlocks of its forelegs hobbled with a thin woollen rope. The costly bridle, ornamented with silver, turquoise, and carnelians, was lightly attached to the horn-shaped bow of the saddle, maintaining the graceful bend of the swan-like neck. The remainder of the horse-trappings were lying close by, arranged in the most scrupulous order. It was evident that a very experienced hand had placed them thus, and that the same hand was ready with a single motion to swing the whole load upon the horse's crupper and fasten it on in spite of its apparently complicated nature. There was a pair of "korshuns," or saddle-bags, made of the costly Khivan carpet known as "kisl-urnak;" a leather case with cups, the so-called "kalmyk-bash" or "terkesh," ornamented with long rawhide tassels; a gourd-kalyan, or water-pipe, with silver mountings; a long reed stem, and a skillfully embossed copper bowl; a goatskin water-vessel, warped and wrinkled from long exposure to the heat; a pair of long-barrelled Persian pistols, the muzzles resting in sockets; and a bag of woollen tissue for oats, half filled.

In addition to the falcon, the horse, and the greyhounds, there was still another living creature, though it was difficult to regard it as such. Why should a living being lie so long in such an evidently uncomfortable position?

This other being was a man. He lay stretched out at full length, with his arms under his head, his eyes piercing the boundless gray depth of the burning, scorching sky overhead. The broad brim of his slashed felt hat protected a pair of oblique, blinking eyes, and cast a shadow dividing the bronzed high cheek-boned face into two distinct parts.

The man was dressed in a new camel's-hair cloth, under which, other, bright red in color, was visible. The edges embroidered in gold braid. The pattern of his voluminous red tunic embroidered in silk of various colors, caught the sunlight. The feet were clad in leather or socks, with green heel pieces, and with high, narrow boots shod with notched steel.

Beside him lay a costly "kijak" scabbard of black sheep-skin, with a white bone hilt, set with stones of various colors, chiefly turquoise, and ornamented with tassels; a double-barrelled gun of his make, and a Russian revolver in leather which was attached by a white cord to his metal-plated belt. In addition to these there was also a whole collection of articles needed in warfare or on the steppes: flint and steel, wire primers, etc., and a wallet of red "saffan" leather, containing silver.

SONNET.

TO THE RED-EYED VIB.

From E. J. Loomis' "Wayside Sketches." (Gibbs)

Unweary'd minstrel of the greenwood tree,
Amid the chorus of unnumbered notes
Raised by the birds in June, thy music has Serenely above them all. Thy melody Flows like the forest brook, as clear as
And silver clear. The joy of sweetest
And peace and love are in thy rich tones.
Which, while I hear, bring happiness to me
Would that my life might be as glad as thine—
As full of joyous song and gratitude
To take contentedly each gift of fate
Of sun or cloud, and feel it to be good.
To trust that every day its gift will bring,
And with a thankful heart like thee to sing.

Publisher and Novelist.

From Ella Hefworth Dixon's "The Story of a Woman." (Cassell Pub. Co.)

"SPESH—shul! Extra spesh—shul!" great divorce case! Extraordinary cross-examination of Sir Horace Bagwaite!" shouted a small news-vender in his ear, as she waited at Wellington Street cross. And all the while, as she hurried to the office of Illustrations, with this news of broken health knocking at her door, wondered what the abrupt summons meant, mean which she had received from the editor. Half of the MS. of her novel was in his hands. Could it be possible that he was going to fuse it?

With some trepidation Mary gave her to her old admirer, the small office boy, who she found casting a supercilious eye on the current number of the paper, while he sucked an acid drop. And in due time she found herself ushered into the editor's room. Six months of proof-reading, and viewing incapable artists, of the daily worries of a newspaper, had not mellowed the manners of the editor of Illustrations in the least.

"Good-day, Miss Erie. Take a chair. I to talk to you."

"Is it anything," asked Mary, "about my novel?"

fact is," said the melancholy looking man, "I'm pining with an irritable looking hand. I've got a pile of manuscript near his desk, which I can't recognize, with some anxiety, as he won't do at all. It won't do at all." "Why won't it do?" faltered Mary. "Why, it won't do just as you told me. There's a picnic in the first volume, a picnic in the

"that's all right," interrupted the editor. "my dear girl," he added, "you've put in some extraordinary things in this last they?" said Mary, who could not help entering the columns of unedifying matter laid down on the breakfast-table that, nor the newsboys vending the latest of the great scandal, served red hot, at its corners. "I thought," she continued, "that the public would take anything—any paper."

For a minute the editor looked perplexed. "owning slightly, he went on: "Not in not in fiction. Must be fit to go into arsonage in England. Remember that is chiefly for healthy English homes." "even the people in the country parsonage occasionally see life as it is—or do about with their eyes shut?" ventured quietly. "I, we're not going to encourage that sort," he said conclusively, getting up and his mouth to the telephone.

week's issue. And see that they're touched up. What? Yes, yes. A couple of pages of drawings."

The editor sat down again. Their eyes met.

"The fact is," he said, looking rather foolish, "novels are—er—well—novels. The British public doesn't expect them to be like life. And if you take my advice, Miss Erle, and cultivate your talents in the right way, you will be able to make a—a—comfortable income. Only there must be a thoroughly breezy, healthy tone."

"Oh, as to breezy," said Mary, in a tired voice, "I never somehow feel like that. I don't know how it is, but I can't help seeing things as they are, and the truth is so supremely attractive."

"But it is just what the public won't stand," repeated the editor. "Now take this chapter back and reconsider it. This young man, now—he isn't a principal character in the story—couldn't you make him her cousin—or her brother?"

"Oh, anything you like," said Mary, taking the manuscript; "but I did like that chapter. I took so much trouble over it. It was a little bit of real observation."

"That's right. And if you don't mind my saying so, there aren't quite enough love scenes between the hero and the heroine. The public like love scenes, and besides they illustrate so well."

"Is there anything more?" said Mary, trying to force the manuscript into her pocket.

"I should suggest a thoroughly happy ending. The public like happy endings. The novelists are getting so morbid. It's all these French and Russian writers that have done it. It's really difficult now to get a thoroughly breezy book with a wedding at the end. Take my advice and stick to pretty stories. They're bound to pay best."

THE MILITARY POOR.

ants with garments, and keeps back the price hereof out of their wages. He finds that his hemp and his wool bring him more in this way than if he were to sell them at the fair."

"Belle-Plante," said Cornelius, "is no ordinary miser: he will advance the science; really there is imagination in his avarice. But go on, Father Navette; I say this, not for you, but for myself."

"For two years," said Father Navette, "he has owed me this sum. It was labor lost to ask him for the money: he had always just made a payment; he put me off from St. Anthony's to St. John's, and from St. John's to St. Martin's, from St. Martin's to Christmas; in short, he dragged me from one end of the calendar to the other. As luck would have it, we lately lost our cow, and, not having the money to buy another, I went to Monsieur Belle-Plante, and I said to him:

"This time, Monsieur Belle-Plante, I must absolutely have money."

"My dear Father Navette," he answered, "though you were to hang me as high as St. Martin's tower to make me find a sou, I could not find it."

"I won't hang you as high as St. Martin's tower," I answered, "especially as the bell-ringer would refuse me the keys; but I am going to bring suit against you."

"If you like, Father Navette," he answered, "I will give you a six months' note, and you can get it discounted."

"A bit of paper instead of money was scarcely what I wanted; but hunger drives the wolf outside the woods; I was obliged to take his paper. As I was in the yard, he called me back.

"By the way, Father Navette," said he, "an idea occurs to me; since it is your intention to get your note discounted, you may as well do it here as anywhere; that will save you a trip to the city."

"But," I said to him, "you told me just now that one might hang you as high as St. Martin's tower to make you find a sou."

"It is money that is not mine," he answered; "but as you are a worthy man, to oblige you I will take it upon myself to dispose of it."

The Flowers of June.

From Mrs. William Starr Dana's "According to Season." (Charles Scribner's Sons.)

BOUNDING one favorite meadow is a row of tall elms, and a winding, shadowy thicket. Here red-winged blackbirds flash in and out; song-sparrows give vent to their inexhaustible joy in life; and the restless brown thrasher catches the sunlight on its tawny coat. Just such a neighborhood is sure to tempt one away from the frank loveliness of the open fields for the mere possibilities of—I hardly know what. Perhaps some low-built nest, with its cluster of bluish-green, or white, brown-flecked eggs, guarded by the anxious mother-bird, whose high, terrified notes we fancy we recognize as we approach. Or perhaps one of the rarer orchids is hidden among the rushes beyond.

It is hardly too early to look for the showy lady's-slipper, loveliest of a lovely tribe. For an instant a group of tall stems and veiny leaves mislead us by their likeness to those of the lady's-slippers, and we look eagerly for the large, white and purple pouch only to discover the deception when we notice the ugly, greenish flowers of the false hellebore. We are more likely to be successful in our orchid hunt if we are less ambitious—if we are willing to content ourselves with the two oblong shining leaves and the low purplish clusters of the tway-blade, or with the long, dull spikes of the green orchids.

A grassy lane promises to lead to some distant woods. The wild grape flings its graceful festoons overhead. The air is heavy with the sweet-scented breath of its greenish flowers. Against the rail fence viburnums grow tall and thick, with toothed bright green leaves heavily veined on the under side, and flat clusters of white flowers on which are huddled little groups of sleepy fireflies. In and out twist the prickly stems, shining, decorative leaves and greenish blossoms of the cat-brier. The carrion-vine, too, sends forth its delicate young shoots, but the foul odor of its dull clustered blossoms, which has attracted all the carrion-like flies in the neighborhood, drives us hurriedly from its vicinity.

About the trunks and close branches of slim cedars, twine the strong stems and rich, glossy leaves of the poison-ivy. If we are wise we tarry here no longer than by the carrion-vine, for the small white flowers, which are now fully open, are said to give forth peculiarly poisonous emanations under the influence of the June sun.

In the woods the maple-like leaves and white flowers of the laurestinus, or maple-leaved viburnum, are noticeable. In places the ground is white with the pretty dwarf cornel or bunchberry. Each low stem is crowned with four large white, or pink-tipped, petal-like leaves, which surround a cluster of tiny greenish flowers; from four to six oblong, pointed, green leaves are crowded in a circle below. This is the small sister of the well-known dogwood which so lately seemed to link June with January.

The shrubby dogwoods, some of which are still blossoming along the roadsides, bear a superficial resemblance to the viburnums; but their tiny flowers are minutely four-toothed, while those of the viburnums are five-lobed. Among fallen, moss-grown trunks we find the clover-like leaflets (resembling those of the common yellow wood-sorrel) and the white, pink-veined flowers of the wood-sorrel.

Along the sheltered roadside, as well as in woods, the delicate white bells of the pyrola droop from their slender stem in a fashion which suggests the lily-of-the-valley. The long, curved pistil which protrudes from each flower easily distinguishes this plant from the pipsissewa, which can also be recognized by its glossy, evergreen, occasionally white-veined leaves, and by its fragrant waxen flowers with violet-colored anthers.

Although the pyrola and pipsissewa are sometimes found growing together, the former usually requires a rather moist, rich soil, while the latter flourishes best in sandy places among decaying leaves. The pyrola is the first of the two to blossom, and its flowers can soon be found in great abundance, while those of the pipsissewa are hardly in their prime till July. With their disappearance I feel as if the curtain had been rung down upon the host of shy, lovely wood flowers of the early year.

LATEST ISSUES IN APPLETONS' TOWN AND COUNTRY LIBRARY.

No. 145. A Daughter of Music. (Nearly Ready.)

By G. COLMORE, author of "A Conspiracy of Silence," "Concerning Oliver Knox," etc. 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

"A Daughter of Music" has appeared very early in the season of 1894, but it will live to the end, and long after."—London Chronicle.

"Throughout an exceedingly interesting book."—Westminster Gazette.

"There can be no doubt of the force and sombre picturesqueness with which the author has carried his major premise to its logical catastrophe. . . . The story has a freshness which accentuates its undoubted originality."—London Athlete.

No. 144. Red Diamonds. (Nearly Ready.)

A Novel. By JUSTIN MCCARTHY, author of "A History of Our Own Times," "Dear Lady Disdain," etc. 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

"If Mr. McCarthy had never written another novel, 'Red Diamonds' would of itself have sufficed to gain for him a good reputation among writers of fiction. . . . It may be safely recommended not only to those who like Mr. McCarthy's pleasant, social, and political stories, but to all who can appreciate a really strong tale of crime and its detection."—London Speaker.

"There is no one who will not welcome a fresh work from the pen of Mr. Justin McCarthy. His name is a guarantee for good workmanship. . . . 'Red Diamonds' shows no abatement in originality and imaginative power."—London Academy.

"The story is capital reading."—London Saturday Review.

No. 143. Mary Fenwick's Daughter.

By BEATRICE WHITEY, author of "The Awakening of Mary Fenwick," "Part of the Property," etc. 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

PRESS COMMENTS ON "THE AWAKENING OF MARY FENWICK."

"Miss Whitby is far above the average novelist. . . . This story is original without seeming ingenious, and powerful without being overdrawn."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

"An admirable portrayal of the development of human character under novel experiences."—Boston Commonwealth.

No. 142. The Rich Miss Riddell.

By DOROTHEA GERARD, author of "A Queen of Curds and Cream," "Etelka's Vow," etc. 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

"A new novel by this author is always something to be thankful for."—Providence Journal.

"Miss Gerard is a novelist who has made a place for herself, in which she stands alone. An excellent delineator of character, she has a charmingly fresh style, and a knowledge of cosmopolitan life in all its phases which is hardly equalled by any other English writer."—London Morning Post.

No. 141. The Trespasser.

By GILBERT PARKER, author of "The Translation of a Savage," "Pierre and His People," etc. 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

"Mr. Parker is in a very high degree vigorous and fresh both in subject and manner of writing, and it is to these qualities solely that his success is due and is deserved."—The Outlook.

"Mr. Gilbert Parker is one of those fortunate writers who leap into estimation at a single bound."—London Literary World.

No. 140. The Rubicon.

By E. F. BENSON, author of "Dodo." 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

"Mr. Benson has seen strange things done and heard strange things said in what is known as London society. He makes a story out of all these things in a perfectly legitimate way, and makes English people ashamed of themselves, even while amusing them. Could any satirist do better?"—Chicago Herald.

"We conclude this enthusiastic appreciation of Mr. Benson with the bold avowal that we regard 'The Rubicon' as almost truly perfect of its kind, and probably unsurpassable."—St. James' Budget.

No. 139. A Yellow Aster.

By Mrs. MANNINGTON CAFFYN ("Iota"). 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

"We shall be surprised if it does not rank among the novels of the year."—Westminster Gazette.

"A Saul has arisen among the fictional prophets. 'A Yellow Aster' is distinctly a work of genius, remarkable for novelty of plot, force of diction, grace of literary style, and subtlety of psychical analysis."—London Telegraph.

NEW AND RECENT FICTION.

A DAUGHTER OF TO-DAY.

By Mrs. EVERARD COTES (Sara Jeannette Duncan), author of "A Social Departure," "An American Girl in London," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Few literary débutantes have met with the success obtained by Sara Jeannette Duncan's first book, "A Social Departure." Her succeeding books showed the same powers of quick observation and graphic description, the same ability to identify and portray types. Meantime, the author has greatly enlarged her range of experience and knowledge of the world. A true cosmopolite, London, Paris and Calcutta have become familiar to her, as well as New York and Montreal. The title of her new book indicates an immediately attractive theme, and the author's vigorous treatment of it has given us a book distinguished not only by acute study of character, command of local color, and dramatic force, but also by contemporaneous interest. This novel is Mrs. Cotes' most advanced and most important literary work.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR:

A Social Departure: How Orthodocia and I Went Round the World by Ourselves. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

An American Girl in London. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

The Simple Adventures of a Memsahib. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

BENEFITS FORGOT.

By WALCOTT BALESTIER, author of "Reffey," "A Common Story," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"The story of Philip's struggle—of his defeat and his final triumph—is conceived and told in a masterly fashion, with perfect sympathy and yet with unfailing steadiness of vision; and some of the lesser episodes have the fine light-handed workmanship which was exclusively French, but is now American as well. 'Benefits Forgot' is a novel which has both subtlety and force."—London Spectator.

"The story is most interesting, not only in itself, but in its reflection of the still strange region of the world it depicts."—London Saturday Review.

THE GREATER GLORY.

A Story of High Life. By MAARTEN MAARTENS, author of "God's Fool," "Joost Avelingh," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"The Dutch novelist has made his right to stand with our best authors. . . . No review can do justice to the many deep and delicate studies in this careful, brilliant, and picturesque book."—London Chronicle.

"A most ingenious and clever novel, full of good things. . . . Contains most admirable character-sketches."—London Telegraph.

"The novel is excellent from its breadth of view, its insight into human motive, and shows an increase rather than the reverse of the artistic skill which sets its author apart from other writers of romance perhaps quite as gifted as himself."—London Morning Post.

Sixth Edition of

MANY INVENTIONS.

By RUDYARD KIPLING. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"'Many Inventions' will confirm Mr. Kipling's reputation. . . . We would cite with pleasure sentences from almost every page, and extract incidents from almost every story. But to what end? Here is the completest book that Mr. Kipling has yet given us in workmanship, the weightiest and most humane in breadth of view."—Pall Mall Gazette.

JUST PUBLISHED:

A NEW STORY BY EDNA LYALL.

Doreen.

THE STORY OF A SINGER.

By EDNA LYALL,

Author of "We Two," "Donovan," "In the Golden Days," "The Autobiography of a Slander," etc., etc.

Crown 8vo, Buckram Cloth, Ornamental, 512 Pages, $1.50.

A New Book by STANLEY J. WEYMAN.

Under the Red Robe.

A ROMANCE.

With 12 Full-Page Illustrations by R. CATON WOODVILLE.

12mo, Cloth, Ornamental, 1.25.

"It is a skilfully drawn picture of the times, drawn in simple and transparent English, and quivering with tense human feeling from the first word to the last. It is not a book that can be laid down at the middle of it. The reader once caught in its whirl can no more escape from it than a ship from the maelstrom."—Picayune, New Orleans.

"As perfect a novel of the new school of fiction as 'Ivanhoe' or 'Henry Esmond' was of theirs. Each later story has shown a marked advance in strength and treatment, and in the last Mr. Weyman . . . demonstrates that he has no superior among living novelists. . . . There are but two characters in the story—his art makes all other but unnoticed shadows cast by them—and the attention is so keenly fixed upon one or both, from the first word to the last, that we live in their thoughts and see the drama unfolded through their eyes."—World, N. Y.

"We need not say that the story is a dramatic one, full of thrilling situations. Mr. Weyman's style is delightful, and we have no hesitation in pronouncing the story a worthy successor of his deservedly popular 'A Gentleman of France.'"—Advertiser, Boston.

What Necessity Knows.

A Novel of Canadian Life and Character. By Miss L. DOUGALL, author of "Beggars All." Crown 8vo, cloth, $1.00.

"Is a curious novel. . . . The drawing of this girl's character is one of the strongest things we have seen in fiction. And Bates is almost as interesting. . . . It is a study of low and medium life socially considered, yet of high life in its truest and finest conception. The book is powerful."—Post, Chicago.

"Will hold the interest of any reader who once gets fairly into its current to the very end. . . . The working out of the plot is elaborate and full of original ingenuity."—Commercial Advertiser.

Montezuma's Daughter.

By H. RIDER HAGGARD, author of "She," "Allan Quatermain," "Nada the Lily," etc. With 24 full-page illustrations and vignette by Maurice Greiffenhagen. Crown 8vo, cloth, $1.00.

"Has a good deal of the quality that lent such interest to 'King Solomon's Mines' and 'Allan Quatermain.' . . . England, Spain, and the country which is now Mexico afford the field of the story, and a great number of most romantic and blood-stirring activities occur in each. . . . a successful story well constructed, full of devious and exciting action, and we believe that it will find a multitude of appreciative readers."—Sun, N. Y.

LOUISE CHANDLER MOULTON.

ARTHUR O'SHAUGHNESSY: His Life and His Work, with Selections from His Poems. With a portrait. 18mo, $1.25.

Dr. Richard Garnett, of the British Museum, writes on the announcement of the book: "I am delighted to hear of it. It is a thing which I have often said ought to be done—must be done, in fact—if O'Shaughnessy is to keep the place he deserves among the poets of his age."

GILBERT PARKER.

A LOVER'S DIARY: Sonnets. With a frontispiece by WILL. H. LOW. 18mo, $1.25.

*A This is Mr. Parker's first book of verse. In fact, not more than two or three of the sonnets have ever been printed before. It will therefore be of considerable interest, especially to those who have enjoyed the novels and short stories by the same author.

BLISS CARMAN.

LOW TIDE ON GRAND PRÉ. Revised and enlarged edition, transferred to the present Publishers. With a title-page designed by MARTIN MOWER. 16mo, $1.00.

"Few poets on the far side of the Atlantic are born with such a poetical way of looking at things as Carman."—The London Literary World.

"These verses have a haunting quality from which there is no escape."—The Dial.

"There is music, melody, and the subtle quality of real poetry in this new writer's verse."—The Literary World.

GEORGE SANTAYANA.

SONNETS AND OTHER POEMS. 16mo, $1.25.

"I have surely quoted sufficiently from the pages of Mr. Santayana to prove him a poet. He has something akin to the spiritual exaltation of Wordsworth, the self-possession aloofness of Matthew Arnold; but he is always and everywhere himself."—Louise Chandler Moulton.

HAMLIN GARLAND'S NEW BOOK.

CRUMBLING IDOLS: Twelve Essays on Art, dealing chiefly with Literature, Painting, and the Drama. 16mo, $1.25. (Just issued.)

*A collection of Mr. Garland's essays which attracted so much attention on their appearance in magazine form. They are on various topics: "New Fields of Art," "The Future of Fiction," "The Drift of the Drama," "The Influence of Ibsen," "Impressionism," "Local Color in Fiction," and so forth. Taken as a whole, the book is a vigorous plea for the recognition of youth, and a protest against the despotism of tradition. It is also the creed of a realist.

TOM HALL.

WHEN HEARTS ARE TRUMPS. Verses. With title-page and decorations by WILL. H. BRADLEY. Printed at the UNIVERSITY PRESS. 18mo, gilt top, deckled edges, $1.25.

EUGENE FIELD.

THE HOLY CROSS AND OTHER TALES: With cover, title-page, and initial-letter pieces designed by LOUIS J. RHEAD. Printed at the UNIVERSITY PRESS on English laid paper. Second edition. 18mo, gilt top, deckled edges, $1.25.

EDGAR ALLAN POE.

COMPLETE WRITINGS. Edited by EDMUND CLARENCE STEDMAN and Professor GEORGE EDWARD WOODBERRY. With many portraits, some of which are here published for the first time, fac-similes, and so forth, and pictures by ALBERT EDWARD STERNER. In ten volumes. Printed on specially made paper. 16mo, deckled edges, $15.00, in sets; or separately, $1.50 per volume.

Also a large-paper edition, limited to 250 sets for America, with a series of eight illustrations by AUBREY BEARDSLEY, and a signed etching by Mr. Sterner, not included in the small-paper edition—proofs of all the pictures printed on India paper. Ten volumes, on hand-made paper. 3vo, $50.00 per set. (In preparation.)

The first edition was exhausted in advance of publication.

"The most enthusiastic admirers of 'Ships that Pass in the Night' will not be disappointed in these stories, and I am inclined to think that they sound a much surer note than does even that remarkable story. . . ."
—N. Y. World.

By the same Author.

Ships that Pass in the Night.

A Novel. 35th thousand. Authorized American Edition. 16mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

"'Ships that Pass in the Night' is one book in ten thousand; you should read it."—Boston Times.

Pratt Portraits.

Sketched in a New England Suburb. By ANNA FULLER. Third edition. 16mo, $1.00.

"The lines the author cuts in her vignette are sharp and clear, but she has, too, not alone the knack of color, but, what is rarer, the gift of humor."—N. Y. Times.

A Literary Courtship.

Under the Auspices of Pike's Peak. By ANNA FULLER, author of "Pratt Portraits." Fourth edition. 12mo, illustrated, $1.00.

"If you know of any one in the blues, or contemplating a journey, or in any of the nine hundred and ninety-nine conditions when pleasant reading is likely to prove acceptable, advise him to get this little story, or, better still, make him a present of it."—Chicago Interior.

Peak and Prairie.

From a Colorado Sketch Book. By ANNA FULLER, author of "Pratt Portraits," etc., etc. 16mo, cloth, uniform with "A Literary Courtship," $1.00. (In press.)

A Modern Wizard.

The Story of Margrédel.

Being a Fireside History of a Fifeshire Family. By D. STORRAR MELDRUM. Third edition. 16mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

"The story is in style a little masterpiece. Before I had read five pages I knew I was face to face with a book which would live. A place in the front rank among the coming men must be ceded to the author of this delightful book."—JEROME K. JEROME.

Harvard Stories.

Sketches of the Undergraduate. By W. K. POST. Third edition. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; popular edition, paper, 50 cents.

"Mr. Post's manner of telling these tales is inimitable. The atmosphere of the book in its relation to the localities where the scenes are laid is well nigh perfect. The different types of undergraduates are clearly drawn, and there is a dramatic element in most of the stories that is very welcome. For those who desire a faithful picture of certain phases of American student life it offers a noteworthy fund of instruction and entertainment."—Literary News.

The Autonym Library.

The new series of short representative works of fiction by well-known authors.

Vol. 1. The Upper Berth.

Dodd, Mead & Company's New Books.

The initial volume of "THE SECRET OF AN EMPIRE."

THE EMPRESS EUGENIE.

By PIERRE DE LAMO. Translated from the seventh French edition. With portrait. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"The Secret of an Empire" comprises the tragic and burlesque events of the reign of Napoleon III. and the Empress Eugénie. The contents of these pages which I offer to the public to-day have been communicated to me by former favorites at the Tuileries, known or unknown colleagues of Napoleon, and are strewn with anecdotes and authentic facts not heretofore published."—From the Author's Preface.

KERRIGAN'S QUALITY.

By JANE BARLOW, author of "Irish Idylls" and "Bogland Studies." 12mo, buckram, $1.25.

Mrs. Barlow has already taken a foremost place among living writers with her two previous books; and "Kerrigan's Quality," her first continuous story, contains the same qualities, the keen insight, the great pathos, the rare delightful humor, and the simple power with which she has captured the reading public.

BY THE SAME AUTHOR.

Irish Idylls.

Sixth edition. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"The stories are exquisitely told with simplicity and humor. We can remember no studies of Irish life and character that can vie with these in truth to nature, in artistic form, and in those qualities which touch the springs of tears and laughter."—N. Y. Tribune.

Bogland Studies.

Third edition. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

THE LONE HOUSE.

Third edition. By AMELIA E. BARR.

Indubitably the author's return to Scottish soil has quickened the undiminished interest in her books; and hence the rapid sale of "A Lone House," a tale of Disruption times in Scotland.

"It is a story full of both humor and pathos, and will add to its author's brilliant reputation."—Book Review Advertiser.

LINKS IN A CHAIN.

By MARGARET SUTTON BRISCOE, author of "Perchance to Dream." 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

"A story of dramatic intensity and rich humanity."—Brooklyn Times.

PLATONICS: A STUDY.

By ETHEL M. ARNOLD, sister of Mrs. Humphry Ward. 18mo, cloth, 75 cents.

"A simple and graceful story in which the writer gives way to some of the highest emotions of our nature. What is most characteristic of this little venture is that the author holds herself quite strictly to the telling of her story."—Boston Herald.

Courage.

The new book by CHARLES WAGNER, author of "Youth." Translated by Cora Hamilton Bell. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"Youth," published last year, has just passed into a second edition. This has been followed by a new work of absorbing interest and rare magnetic power. "Courage" is an eloquent appeal to the spirit of manly honor and ambition—a book with a distinct message for the hour and its imminent need in the life of youth.

Youth.

Second edition. By CHARLES WAGNER. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

INTENTIONS.

By OSCAR WILDE. New and cheaper edition, handsomely printed. 12mo, yellow buckram, $1.50.

Critics allow that in these delightful essays Oscar Wilde has invested his trite subjects with an original humor, and has handled them in a bizarre manner unapproached by any other writer. The present volume has been issued to meet a demand that has increased since the more expensive edition went out of print.

MILDRED'S NEW DAUGHTER.

A new volume in the popular "Mildred" Series. By MARTHA FINLEY, author of the "Elsie" Books. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

. Previous volumes in the series are: "Mildred Keith," "Mildred at Roseland," "Mildred's Married Life," "Mildred and Elsie," "Mildred at Home," "Mildred's Boys and Girls."

DOROTHY WORDSWORTH.

A Story of a Sister's Love. By EDMUND LEE. 16mo, in dainty buckram, $1.25.

"Ay, four in buckram suits."—Shakespeare, Henry IV., II. 4.

HENRY HOLT & CO.,

29 West 23d Street, New York,

Have just published the following three new books in a cheap, compact, and attractive form. Narrow 16mo, buckram, gilt top, with frontispiece, 75 cents each.

A SUBURBAN PASTORAL.

By HENRY A. BEERS. Includes five other American tales: A Midwinter Night's Dream.—A Comedy of Errors.—Declaration of Independence.—Split Zephyr.—A Graveyard Idyl. And the two old English legends: Edric the Wild and the Witch Wife.—The Wine-Flower. 75 cents.

THE PRISONER OF ZENDA:

The History of Three Months in the Life of an English Gentleman. By ANTHONY HOPE. 75 cts.

"The plot is too original and audacious to be spoiled for the reader by outlining it. The author is a born story-teller, and has, moreover, a very pretty wit of his own."—The Outlook.

"A more gallant, entrancing story has seldom been written."—Review of Reviews.

"A glorious story. . . . Cannot be too warmly commended to all who love a tale that stirs the blood."—Critic.

"A grand story. . . . It is dignified, quick in action, thrilling, terrible."—Chicago Herald.

JOHN INGERFIELD.

By JEROME K. JEROME. Includes also: The Woman of the Saeter.—Silhouettes.—Variety Patter.—The Lease of the Crosskeys. Illustrated. 75 cents.

"A very sweet and pathetic love-story. . . . True to the best there is in human nature."—N. Y. Times.

"A rare combination of true pathos and thoroughly modern humor."—Churchman.

A NEW BOOK BY RUDYARD KIPLING.
THE JUNGLE BOOK.

RUDYARD KIPLING, the author of "Plain Tales from the Hills," "Soldiers Three," etc., has written a book for young folks—a collection of stories that will prove as fascinating to "grown-ups" as to children. It is a book about India, of course; but not the India that Mr. Kipling has made familiar to the English-speaking world. This is a jungle book. There is no Simla in it; no Mulvaney, no Gadsbys, no rickshaws; but instead of these there is Kala Nag, the elephant, who took little Toomai to the dance of the wild elephants in the Garo hills—the dance that never man had seen before; Shere Khan, the tiger; old Baloo, the sleepy brown bear who teaches the wolf cubs the Law of the Jungle; Bagheera, the black panther; Kaa, the python, whose blow is like the blow of a steam-hammer, and many, many other jungle folk, whose doings as chronicled by Mr. Kipling fill over 300 pages. It will become a classic. Of the stories (nearly all of which are illustrated) the New York Christian Advocate says: "They are unique in literature and perfectly delightful in spirit." Price, $1.50.

Roger Williams,

THE Pioneer of Religious Liberty. By OSCAR S. STRAUS, author of "The Origin of the Republican Form of Government in the United States." Several biographies of Roger Williams have been written, most of which are now out of print. Since the publication of these earlier works much valuable additional information concerning the pioneer of religious liberty in America has come to light. Mr. Straus, the author of the present volume, has given careful study to the subject of Roger Williams and his work, and has endeavored in this biography to bring out the truth without fear or favor, and to present an impartial record of the character and work of this remarkable man, who was in the fullest sense the pioneer of religious liberty. Price, $1.25.

* These books may be had at all book-stores, or will be sent, post-paid, to any address by the publishers on receipt of price.

T. Y. CROWELL & CO.*Will Publish June 2d:SOCIALISM AND SOCIAL REFORM.

BY

PROF. RICHARD T. ELY, LL.D.,

Author of "The Labor Movement," "Problems of To-Day," "Taxation in American States and Cities," "Social Aspects of Christianity," etc.

12mo, $1.50.

The initial chapters of this volume contain an historical and descriptive account of the progress of Socialism, and an exposition of the differences existing between the various schools. This is followed by an admirably fair exposition of the strength of Socialism, which is balanced by a critique of its weaknesses and a statement of the valid objections to the system. The last part of the volume is devoted to the discussion of "Practicable Social Reform," showing how far society can reasonably go in the direction of Socialism. Numerous appendices and an exhaustive Bibliography add to the value of the work. The author's views are presented in a clear, candid, and fearless manner, and furnish one of the best discussions of this subject.

Advance orders solicited.

*READY ABOUT JUNE 1.Romance Switzerland.*Teutonic Switzerland.

BY

WILLIAM D. McCrackan, M.A.,

Author of "The Rise of the Swiss Republic."

2 vols., 32mo, cloth, gilt top, per set, $1.50.

A new work on Switzerland in two volumes, the first volume covering French and Italian Switzerland and the second the German-speaking cantons.

It has been the aim of the author, who by long residence in the country is well fitted to write about it, to picture the real Switzerland and its people as they are, divested of the glamour of romance. His book will neither be a guide-book, nor the old-fashioned routine book of travel made up of transcripts from diaries or hastily written letters to indulgent friends.

It will rather be a series of individual sketches covering not only the salient points of attraction, but many places of interest out of the beaten track of the average tourist.

husband of Mā'ry, of whom was born Jē'sus, who is called Christ.

¹⁷ So all the generations from Ā'brā'hām to Dā'vid are fourteen generations; and from Dā'vid until the carrying away into Bāb'y-lon are fourteen generations; and from the carrying away into Bāb'y-lon unto Christ are fourteen generations.

¹⁹ Then Jō'seph her husband, being a just man, and not willing to make her a publick example, was minded to put her away privily.

²¹ And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name Jē'sus: for he shall save his peo-

NEW POPULAR NOVELS.

IN THE CHINA SEA.

By SEYMOUR W. HODGINS, author of "Two Gentlemen of Hawaii," etc. Illustrated by Preston Squire and H. M. Eaton. 12mo, 300 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50 cents.

"In the China Sea" is a story of the Pacific Coast, where the almond-eyed Mongolians have a quarter of a century, whence they came to live with their kindred of the Flowery Kingdom across the seas. The story deals with the disappearance of a beautiful girl, who is traced to Portland, Oregon, where she is embarked on a steamer for China. There is an exciting pursuit and search for this beautiful girl. The extraordinary things which meet the sights and happen to her with and described, in detailing this pursuit and search, render this story one of the most interesting and exciting productions of modern fiction. It will rank with "King Solomon's Mines" and Jules Verne's wonderful novels. An unusual people, strange customs, manners and appearance is introduced. The great war is stated in a simple and beautiful way. The invention of the author seems to be original and the interest of the reader is stimulated by new and wonderful developments that crop up upon the scene as the story proceeds.

INVISIBLE HANDS.

After the German of F. VON ZOOCH, by translator of "The Little Countess," etc. Illustrated by James Fagan. 12mo, 32 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, $1.25; paper cover, 50 cents.

This is an excellent novel. The incidents are real and probable, although the circumstances are not. The plot is based on transactions in the East. In the German and Italian characters figuring in it. It is a very powerful and dramatic novel, and is in the form of German fiction.

HER LITTLE HIGHNESS.

After the German of NATALIE VON ESCHERICH, author of "A Priestess of Comedy," etc. Illustrated by James Fagan. 12mo, 32 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, $1.25; paper cover, 50 cents.

"Her Little Highness" is a most charming and latest book, and one of the most charming novels to come from her pen. The little princess, who is the heroine of the story, is the heir of a dual throne, which she finally makes her a being apart from the rest of the world, which tends to heighten the popularity of the story. Her little highness is a little woman from the top of her head to the tips of her toes, and her love of Valerius, a gay and free character, is the most natural thing in the world. However, for the husband of a princess Valerius must be the reader of the novel will enjoy the situation that the author creates.

D. APPLETON & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

Creatures of Other Days.

By Rev. H. N. HUTCHINSON, B.A., F.G.S., author of "Autobiography of the Earth," "Extinct Monsters," etc. With numerous illustrations. 8vo, cloth, $3.00.

" . . . The disjointed and often fragmentary bones by which these animals are usually represented in museums convey no ideas whatever to the majority of those who see them. It is quite otherwise with such representations as the figures of this work; and if in some cases the idea conveyed may not be strictly correct, it offers a fair approximation, and at all events gives a vivid conception of some remarkable creature which in its main outlines cannot be far from the actual reality."—From the Preface, by Sir W. H. Flower, F.R.S.

Man's Place in Nature.

By THOMAS H. HUXLEY. The seventh volume of the author's "Collected Essays." 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

CONTENTS: On the Natural History of the Man-like Apes. On the Relations of Man to the Lower Animals. On some Fossil Remains of Man. On the Methods and Results of Ethnology. On the Aryan Question.

Acting and Actors.

ELOCUTION AND ELOCUTIONISTS. A Book About Theatre Folk and Theatre Art. By ALFRED AYRES, author of "The Orthoëpist," "The Verbalist," etc. With Preface by Harrison Grey Fiske; Introduction by Edgar S. Werner; Prologue by James A. Waldron. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

The Care and Feeding of Children.

A Catechism for the Use of Mothers and Children's Nurses. By L. EMMETT HOLT, M.D., Professor of Diseases of Children in the New York Polyclinic, Attending Physician to the Babies' Hospital, etc. 12mo, cloth, 50 cents.

Originally prepared for use in the Training School for Nursery Maids connected with the Babies' Hospital, New York, this manual has been elaborated in ways suggested by experience, and is now published by request of numerous persons interested. It will be found exceedingly useful, not only in similar institutions, but to mothers, either for themselves, or to be put in the hands of ordinary (untrained) child's nurses. The author's standing as a successful specialist of wide experience in children's diseases guarantees the character of the hints and instructions given.

Red Diamonds.

A Novel. By JUSTIN MCCARTHY, author of "A History of Our Own Times," "Dear Lady Disdain," etc. Town and Country Library, No. 144. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

"If Mr. McCarthy had never written another novel, 'Red Diamonds' would of itself have sufficed to gain for him a good reputation among writers of fiction. . . . It may be safely recommended, not only to those who like Mr. McCarthy's pleasant, social, and political stories, but to all who can appreciate a really strong tale of crime and its detection."—London Speaker.

"There is no one who will not welcome a fresh work from the pen of Mr. Justin McCarthy. His name is a guarantee of good workmanship. . . . 'Red Diamonds' shows no abatement of originality and imaginative power."—London Academy.

"The story is capital reading."—London Saturday Review.

OUR NEW BOOKS.

READY JUNE 1:

THE WEDDING GARMENT.

A Tale of the Life to Come. By LOUIS PENDLETON. 16mo, cloth, $1.00; white and gold, $1.25.

The story of the continued existence of a young man after his death, or departure from the natural world. Written in a reverential spirit, it is unique and quite unlike any story of the same type heretofore published, full of telling incidents and dramatic situations, and not merely a record of the doings of the sexless "shades" but of living human beings.

THE DANCING FAUN.

A Novel. By FLORENCE FARR. With title-page by Aubrey Beardsley. American Copyright Edition. 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

A clever and original story, evidently based on original observation of life. The daring philosophy of murder which the author indicates is a striking moral, sure to attract criticism.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE OUTING Co. have just issued the first volume of their new Outing Library, devoted to "Stories of the Turf." This library will be published quarterly.

THE HOME BOOK COMPANY, New York City, have just issued "Though the Gods and the Years Relent," a story of society interest, by Mrs. Edmund Nash Morgan.

THE FLEMING H. REVELL Co. will issue about June 20 a new book by Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden, entitled "The Church and the Kingdom," consisting of two addresses, the one covered by the title, the other called "What is Christ's Law?" which was recently delivered before the graduating class of Oberlin College. A new book by Andrew Murray, entitled "Love Made Perfect," is also in preparation.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING Co. will publish shortly "The Unpublished Letters of Count Cavour to Madame Circourt," translated by A. J. Butler. With her husband she belonged to the Liberal-Catholic school of Lacordaire and Montalembert, but her friends were of all schools in politics and religion. Her name appears in the memoirs of Mme. Swetchine, Mme. Mohl, and others who, like herself, knew how to bring together all sorts of persons on the common ground of intellectual eminence.

HARPER & BROS. will publish shortly "Carlotta's Intended, and other tales," by Ruth McEnery Stuart, in which will be included "Carlotta's Intended," dealing with the Italians in New Orleans and the Mafia; "Bud Zunts' Mail," "Christmas Geese," "Cæsar," "Aunt Delphi's Dilemma," and "Duke's Christmas." The volume will close with three poems, entitled "Rose," "Winnie," and "Voices." They have in preparation a volume of short stories by Charles Egbert Craddock, entitled "The Phantoms of the Footbridge."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS announce that they will publish immediately a Popular Edition of some of G. A. Henty's stirring stories of adventure. It will comprise "With Clive in India," "By England's Aid," "In Freedom's Cause," "With Lee in Virginia," "The Lion of St. Mark," "One of the 28th," "By Pike and Dyke," "In the Reign of Terror," "Under Drake's Flag," "With Wolf in Canada," and "The Congo Rovers." Each of the volumes will be fully illustrated, attractively bound in cloth, and sold at one dollar each.

MACMILLAN & Co. have just issued "The Natural History of the Christian Religion," a careful study of Christian teaching as developed from Judaism and converted into dogma, by Rev. William Mackintosh; "The Diary of a Journey Across Tibet," by Captain Hamilton Bowers; "The Protected Princes of India," a short account of India under "home rule," by William Lee Warner; "Ethics of Citizenship," by Prof. John McCunn, of University College, Liverpool; "The Aged Poor in England and Wales," by Charles Booth; and a new, cheaper edition, with new preface, of Kidd's "Social Evolution."

ROBERTS BROTHERS have just ready two new books. "The Wedding Garment," by Louis Pendleton, is a story of life after death, relating the experiences of a young man awakening after earthly death to an existence in the other world—in an intermediate region between heaven and hell, where the good and evil live together, temporarily commingled. The book is written in a reverential spirit, and the evolution of the man's soul is full of interest. The other volume is "The Dancing Faun," by Florence Farr, a story with an original motif and dramatic action. It has a title-page by Aubrey Beardsley, which is a striking example of that artist's grotesque force.

Blackmore, R: D. Perlycross: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 4+498 p. D. cl., $1.75. [1620]

The story is set, sixty years since, in the village of Perlycross, in the heart of East Devon. Sir Thomas Waldron, the chief land-owner of the parish, dies, and shortly after the funeral it is discovered that his grave has been desecrated. Suspicion of the "body-snatching" falls chiefly on a young doctor, who loves Sir Thomas' daughter. The conflict of gossip and speculation throughout Perlycross, the measures taken by the Waldrons, the troubles of the lovers whose hopes are frustrated by the catastrophe—all these disturbing elements are finally harmonized by the unexpected solution of the mystery. The story is told with a wealth of detail, and the character-drawing shows Mr. Blackmore's accustomed skill.

Boggs, E: Brenton, D.D. Christian unity proved by holy scriptures, with a sketch of church history. N. Y., T: Whittaker. [1894.] 5+55 p. D. bds., 50 c. [1621]

"This tract was printed in 1849, when the writer was in his first rectorship in south Jersey. It was never published, having been intended for use in his own parish; to show the evils and wickedness of the divisions among Christians, and to answer questions constantly put to him, then a young person, is not division among Christians a good thing? Also as to the origin and history of the Episcopal Church in England and in this country."—Preface. Bishop Cox found the tract so helpful that he advised its publication.

Bradford, Gamaliel. Congress and the cabinet-II. Phil., Amer. Acad. of Political and Social Science, [1894.] 1+68-88 p. O. (Publications of the society, no. 106.) pap., 25 c. [1622]

In 1892 Mr. Bradford published a paper called "Congress and the cabinet," which discussed the advisability of giving cabinet officers seats in Congress. Dr. Freeman Snow made an answer to this article in another called "Cabinet government in the United States," in which he stated that such government would not only be unconstitutional, but highly undesirable. In the present paper Mr. Bradford considers the subject further, and replies to Dr. Snow.

Bray, Claude. Sir Joseph's heir. N. Y., F. Warne & Co., [1894.] 3+181 p. S. (The Tavistock lib., no. 7.) pap., 50 c. [1623]

"Sir Joseph's heir" finds his legacy hampered with the clause that he must be married. How he goes about it to accomplish this while leaving himself heart-whole and quite unfettered is the substance of a bright, if sometimes unnatural story.

Cotes, Mrs. Everard, [Sara Jeannette Duncan.] A daughter of to-day: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1894. c. 2+392 p. D. cl., $1.50 [1620]

The first novel of the author of "A social departure" and other descriptive works. It describes the life of a modern young woman who aspires to be a great artist. Elfrida Bell is born in Sparta, Illinois; after her school days she goes to Paris, and lives an independent life in the Quartier Latin, studying art and associating with Bohemians of every variety. Her parents' loss of fortune throws her entirely upon her own resources; she has made no mark as an artist, and turns to literature for a living. She removes to London, and becomes a journalist, working successfully as a reporter for several papers. Her career pictures the life of many young girls of to-day, and has many sad and tragical elements.

Dandelyon, Ritter. The dissolution: a projected drama. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1894. c. 4+219 p. D. cl., $1 [1634]

The author in this romance condemns all marriage unions without love as unnatural and unholy, and offers as a solution of the question the establishment by law of platonic unions between man and woman, which shall only become intimate with the consent of the woman. His story, laid in mythological times, illustrates this theory in the action of its heroine.

- Kipling, Rudyard. The jungle book. N. Y., Century Co., 1894. c. '93, '94. 11+303 p. D. cl., $1.50. [1670]
Seven short stories, relating, with one exception, to animal life in India. The creatures of the jungle—tigers, wolves, elephants, monkeys—are their own spokesmen, and one of the central figures of the tale is Mowgli, the "wolf-child," whose kin are the jungle-folk, and who knows the lore of the forest. Three of the stories tell of Mowgli and his kinsfolk, and one, "The white seal," is a story of the Pribylov Islands. Most of them have appeared in St. Nicholas. The titles are: Mowgli's brothers, Kaa's hunting, "Tiger! Tiger!" The white seal; "Rikki-tikki-tavi"; Toomai of the elephants; Her majesty's servants.

- The story of a little Irish girl, who when only twelve years old displayed great dramatic ability, and sung Irish ballads in a sweet, thrilling little voice. Her mother was an Englishwoman, and her father a literary man and a Fenian. When the story opens he is serving a five years' term in Portland Prison for a political offence. After his release the family emigrate to America where Doreen studies singing as a profession. The death of her father and mother leaves her at eighteen with a young family to care for. A crime she with others had witnessed in her youth shadows her whole life. The story breathes a deep love of Ireland.

- "The awakening of Mary Fenwick" gave the heart-history of the mother, the present tale the love-life of the daughter, who is one of the strong, self-reliant, rather mannish girls of to-day. A beautiful picture of country life is given, and the characterization of the many individuals who finally work the desired result. is full of humor and pathos.

- A cynical story, dealing with a wild young man, a rather pleasing villain, totally devoid of conscience, who flourishes like "the green bay tree" of the Bible. He begins his career in Harrow School, becomes a member of Parliament, and lives his life to prove that so far as success in this world is concerned truth and right have no chance in contest with worldly wisdom and unscrupulousness.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JUNE 2, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE PROFESSION OF BOOKSELLING.

THE CIRCULATING LIBRARY.—IV.

HAVING disposed of the question of the books, we may now consider the shelving. This may be treated as described in the chapter on the Arrangement and Care of Stock in "Profession of Bookselling," pp. 25-27; on general principles it should not be over seven feet six inches or eight feet high, and the shelves not more than ten inches apart. Seven to seven and a half inches usually gives ample width of shelf. For the fiction department the standard of a twelve-mo may safely be adopted. The use of wall space only is considered by librarians wasteful, double-face bookcases giving maximum of capacity for a given floor area. A medium shelf length of two feet eight or nine inches will divide up space to advantage. The shelves should be of hard wood, or, if of soft wood, the edges should be stained—preferably to imitate oak—and be varnished. They should be kept scrupulously clean and free from dust. Once a year may probably be sufficient to thoroughly clean up a library in order to keep it in good repair. Of course, the daily dusting of the shelves and the weekly couple of hours looking into the corners must not be put aside. Nothing so disgusts patrons as the dusty corners not infrequently found in circulating libraries. The good customers are apt to be eager book-readers, and will take pleasure in prowling around a library looking for some treasure, which generally lies forgotten in some corner. For these the road must be kept clean and inviting. Too much stress cannot be laid on the first principle that should govern all libraries—their entire neatness. Let the bookseller-librarian see to this jealously, and not overlook the annual, or better still, the semi-annual overhauling. A good plan is to close the library, say three days once a year. As Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays will be generally found to be dull days, the library might therefore be closed on the evening of Monday and opened Friday morning. The books can then be dusted, freshly covered and labelled, and the shelves thoroughly cleaned, oiled, or painted and varnished. The slow-letting books and duplicate copies that have seen their best days may be weeded out, and either thrown into the waste-paper heap or put aside to give room for fresher stock.

Before a book, whether it is in a cloth jacket or in paper covers, is loaned, it should be provided with a library cover, on which is to be printed or attached a distinctive label and the rules of the library. A cover, though ignored by some circulating libraries, pays for the outlay in many ways. It keeps the books clean and saves wear, and advertises the bookseller's store as well. The best cover will always be found the cheapest—and this will be one of strong, heavy, dark paper, such as are furnished by P. F. Van Everen and W. B. Harison, both of New York. Possibly these may cost more than the ordinary light manilla, which gives no wear and soils easily; but experience will prove that the more expensive paper will be worth twice the difference in cost.

A light green, red, or yellow label will probably be found most striking on a dark cover. Whatever the color adopted it should be retained, that it may become a sort of trade mark for the library. On the back, in a panel within an eighth of an inch from the top, should be written in a clear, legible hand, the title of the book, and in the middle, the "call number," that is, the number given to the book in the library catalogue and by which it may be called for. On the side should be affixed the label containing the printed rules and conditions under which the book is loaned. For such a label the following may serve as samples:

NOTES ON EARLY ENGLISH EDITIONS OF THE BIBLE.—II.*

THE first complete Bible printed in the English language was translated by Myles Coverdale from the German Bible of Luther and the Latin Vulgata, and was published October 4, 1535. Coverdale was born in 1488, at Coverham, Yorkshire. Unlike Tyndale, whose work was inspired solely by individual enthusiasm and self-devotion, Coverdale's translation was made by the order and with the encouragement of others, his chief supporters being Sir Thomas More and Lord Thomas Cromwell, the minister of Henry VIII. The first edition of Coverdale's Bible was printed abroad by Jacob Van Meeteren in Antwerp, in small folio, fifty-seven lines to a page, but the importation of bound books being prohibited, as already mentioned, the loose sheets were sent to the bookseller, James Nicolson, of Southwark, and bound there. The second edition, published and printed by Nicolson in 1537, also in folio, was the first complete English Bible printed in England. There were many pirated reprints of Coverdale's translation; one was published in quarto form in the same year as the original second edition, and there was a reprint of his New Testament published in 16° in 1538, which, however, bears no printer's imprint. The so-called "Hollybushe edition," a Latin-English New Testament, printed by Nicolson in 1538, is really only a reprint of Coverdale's work, to which the printer gave a new name in order to make it appear as a new translation.

Like his predecessor Tyndale, Coverdale also had to suffer from the fierce opposition of the priesthood against the translators and publishers of the Bible, while the many changes in the policy of the government placed him in frequent peril. In 1540, when his patron Cromwell was executed, he fled to Bergzabern, in Bavaria, where—although formerly a Catholic priest—he married and established himself. On the accession of Edward VI. he returned to England, and was made one of the royal chaplains; at the opening of the reign of Mary Tudor, "the bloody," he was seized and imprisoned, but by the aid of powerful friends escaped the death penalty and was sentenced only to exile; finally, when Mary had been succeeded by Elizabeth, he returned again to London, where he remained until his death in 1569, at the age of eighty-one.

The next English translation of the Scriptures is known as "Matthew's Bible." It was printed in 1537, probably also by Jacob Van Meeteren, though the printer's name is not given, and bears on its title-page, as translator, the name of Thomas Matthew. This, however, was only a pseudonym for John Rogers, a friend of Tyndale's, who assumed it while in Antwerp to make his work appear as an original translation and to hide the fact that it was substantially a reprint of Tyndale's. But it was not even an exact reprint, being rather a compilation made up from parts of Tyndale's and Coverdale's translations, and from a French Bible printed at Neuchâtel in 1535, by Pierre de Wingle. This edition, as well as its reprints, made in 1549 by Thomas Raynolde, William Hyll, John Deye, and William Seres, is known as the "Buge Bible," from the fact that one of the verses of the 101st psalm was translated to read "So that thou shalt not neede be afraide for any hugges (instead of ghosts or terrors) by night." Rogers was one of the many victims of the fierce persecution that distinguished Mary's reign, and in 1555 was put to death "as a seditious preacher."

Rogers' work was succeeded in 1539 by a Bible printed in London by John Bydell for Thomas Bartlett; though it bore the name of Richard Taverne as translator, it was little more than a reprint of previous translations.

More important and interesting than any of these was the "Great" Bible, or "Cromwell" Bible, of which Lord Thomas Cromwell was the originator and patron. Of this no less than seven editions were printed from April, 1539, to December, 1541. The first edition was printed by the famous London printers Grafton & Whitechurch; on the title-page the translators are given as "dyuerse excellent learned men, expert in the forsayde (Hebrew and Greek) tongues." Who these were is not known; but the editor and perhaps the only translator was Myles Coverdale. Cromwell made strenuous efforts to popularize this edition, as the people in general were hostile to a vernacular Bible, and several penal laws were enacted to force it into general use. Henry VIII. issued a proclamation in its behalf; the archbishops urged the clergy to buy and use it; and Cromwell—who at this time was vice general—commanded “that one book of the whole Bible of the largest volume should be set up within the church that ye have the care of, whereat your parishioners may most commodiously resort to the same and read it.” In order to prevent competition and make a monopoly of this edition, Cromwell induced the king to prohibit the printing and publication of any English Bibles for the term of five years, and to bestow the privilege to Grafton & Whitchurch for this period. Cromwell mentions this Bible as “the largest volume,” and it might well be called so, as its pages are fifteen inches high and more than nine inches wide. It had been his pride to make the book a typographical wonder, as, indeed, it proved to be. Therefore, when in 1538 the translation was finished and ready for the press, he sent Grafton and Coverdale to Paris, to have the typographical work done by the famous French printer François Regnault, as the art of printing was then further advanced in France than in England. Although Henry VIII. entered into direct communication with the king of France and procured a special license to have the work done in Paris, it nevertheless met with serious opposition, and the authorities of the French douane would have prevented the exportation of the printed sheets to England, but for the prompt action of Dr. Bonner, archbishop of Leicester, at that time English ambassador at the French court. In this capacity he was privileged to have his personal effects passed through the customs without inspection, and the printed sheets as they left the press were in this way sent to England as part of the ambassador’s baggage. Before the work was done, however, Francis I. prohibited the printing and commanded that the completed sheets be confiscated. Fortunately his officers, instead of destroying these sheets sold them as waste paper to a dealer, by whom they were sold to Grafton, and finally by him smuggled successfully to London. By Cromwell’s orders the press and type were bought from Regnault and also conveyed to London, where the whole work was at last completed by Grafton & Whitchurch. This first edition of 1539 sold at ten shillings unbound, and twelve shillings bound. It has many marked characteristics, which distinguish it from the subsequent reprints. The numerous wood-cuts have borders which are missing in the later editions; the index-hands in the margins and text have ruffles about the wrist, instead of cuffs; the stars are all six-pointed, while in later editions some are five-pointed; the Apocrypha title-page (there called Haglographa) has the same border as the first title-page, and the New Testament title-page has a border of six wood-cuts, which is not found in any other edition. Of the six subsequent editions, that appeared from 1539 to the end of 1541, only the fourth, of 1540, is noticeable, as bearing Cromwell’s coat-of-arms on the title-page. From 1541 to 1549 no new edition appeared, the stock being probably sufficient to supply the demand, but many reprints were made by various printers.

Cromwell’s supremacy was not of long duration. The story of his disgrace and fall is a familiar one, and in July, 1540, the haughty earl met his death on the scaffold. Naturally his fate affected the fortunes of his friends; Grafton was imprisoned for a time, but soon released, and later, with his partner Whitchurch, was appointed printer to the king by Edward VI., with special privileges for the printing of devotional books.

A UNIVERSAL INDEX OF SCIENTIFIC LITERATURE.

A “UNIVERSAL Index to the World’s Technical and Scientific Literature” is announced for publication in Vienna. It is to be published in that city by Henry Wien, and F. A. Brockhaus of Leipzig will be general agent. The work as contemplated is intended to furnish a comprehensive index to the literature of scientific subjects. It will include periodicals as well as books, and is meant to represent all the known literature that has appeared in any part of the world on technical or scientific topics. It will be published in weekly parts, and the plan of arrangement comprises: 1, a classified list of all technical and scientific periodicals arranged according to place of publication, giving title, terms of subscription and full lists of contents; 2, a list of books and other publications dealing with scientific or technical subjects. It is hoped that each weekly part may be devoted to one special subject or to several affiliated subjects. Five parts are already projected, covering the chief mechanic arts, mining, chemistry and medicine; further parts are in preparation.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

DECISION IN THE SUIT OF MAYNARD, MERRILL & CO. vs. W. B. HARRISON.

JUDGE SHIPMAN, in rendering a decision reversing the preliminary injunction obtained by the plaintiffs in their suit to restrain the defendant from selling certain of their books bought at a fire sale, remarked that the conclusion of the court was “that upon the facts stated in the bill and in the affidavits, the complainant has no remedy under the copyright statutes of the United States, and as both parties are deemed to be citizens of the State of New York, the complainant is without remedy in the Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, and that therefore the order of the Circuit Court for a preliminary injunction is reversed and set aside with costs.”

COMMUNICATIONS.

A PLEA FOR FREE TRADE IN BOOKS.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

WHILE taxes are to be removed from works of art, the duty of 25% on new English books is allowed to remain—an unjust discrimination in favor of the wealthy classes, who can afford to buy statuary and paintings, against our intelligent but poor scholars. Knowledge was assessed prior to 1846 at the rate of 20 to 30 cents per pound, according to its style of binding; from 1846 to 1862 the duty has varied between 8% and 20%; since then the war tax of 25% has remained unchanged. In Europe books are taxed only by Spain, Italy, and Turkey; in almost every other civilized country they are free. We imported last year the value of $2,050,306, while we exported of American books $2,341,023 worth, both figures including "engravings . . . and other printed matter." A large portion of imported books come through the mail, causing more trouble and annoyance, in proportion to the revenue, than almost any other imported article; besides, these duties cannot be collected on terms of equality, because they are assessed without the assistance of invoices by appraisers, who seldom know the real value.

There exists no excuse for this barbarous tax, since the right to this copy has been secured to the author by solemn international agreement. I do not believe that reputable American writers have ever asked for the protection by taxes of the product of their brains. We do not prohibit foreign men of letters from writing books in our country, nor do we ask them to pay a royalty on what they may publish here. The question remains if it is expedient to abolish duties on articles from which books are made. I believe we can. Common printing paper used by the daily press is made in the United States at so low a cost that it can be, and is sold at about two cents per pound, which is so much cheaper than the product of other countries that we export large quantities of it.

An English manufacturer, who recently visited us and inspected the Hudson River Paper-Mills, found that, while we pay workmen more per diem, the cost of labor in a ton of our printing paper was only one-half of what it costs him.

Of fine qualities, small quantities of writing, marbleized and tissue papers are still imported. The aggregate value of all kinds, including manufactures of paper, amounted last year to $3,383,479—a mere trifle when compared with the value of our home product. William Bradford, the printer, established the first paper-mill near Philadelphia, as early as 1690, so that this can hardly be called an infant industry requiring continued protection.

No important interest would suffer if paper were made free.

If the duty should not be abolished it is said a trust may be formed to control the paper-mills of the country for the purpose of enhancing the price.

We make printers' ink from the black of natural gas and naphtha cheaper than it can be made in other countries, the material being superabundant. The duty, reduced from 30% to 20%, should be entirely abrogated.

The duties on leather have practically been left untouched at 20%; our present census shows to what proportion this industry has grown. The value of the product amounts to about $170,000,000 annually, against an importation of about $6,000,000, chiefly consisting of calfskins for shoes, and colored morocco for binding books. Bark, sumac, and other materials for making leather are among the most prolific products of our own soil. Growers of wheat may as well ask for protection as curriers of leather; if duties were abolished I doubt if more would be imported. The abrogation would only stimulate our tanners to finish better grades in competition with the foreign article.

The duty on binders' cloth is fixed at 35%. It is made by a "trust," which controls every known factory, and now produces about 75% in this country and 25% in Europe of the quantity we use; it could all be made here, and probably will be, irrespective of the tariff. We have now binders whose work is almost equal to work made in England; if books were free, they would learn in time to compete with Rivière in Paris.

While not much used for the quality of books which we import, there is another article which may have caused hesitation about abolishing this duty. I refer to paper pulp made chiefly from spruce logs, which are cut into chips or blocks and ground by machinery driven by water-power. We have a large supply of the timber, and there is no lack of water-power. That pulp needs no protection is evidenced by the fact to which I have referred, that we export the printing paper which is made from it. The value of the annual production here of pulp is estimated at $33,000,000, against an annual import of about $2,000,000. If the abolishment of a duty on this article should curtail our home production—I do not believe it would—it would be a blessing in disguise, because we would thereby save the spoilation of our forests, an argument which may be applied with the same force to the free admission of lumber generally.

While, on account of their anxiety to reconcile protected manufacturers, the framers of a new tariff find it difficult to cheapen the necessities of the life of our laborers, some feeble efforts are at least being made in that direction; but no spokesman worthy of the name comes forward to espouse the cause of our poor student; his books must continue to be taxed to enrich the manufacturer of paper pulp, printers' ink, and binders' cloth.

LOUIS WINDMÜLLER.

OBITUARY.

THOMAS NILES.

THOMAS NILES, one of the oldest members of the American publishing trade, and long an associate of the firm of Roberts Brothers, of Boston, died on the 18th ult., in Perugia, an Italian town about 86 miles north of Rome. He was about seventy years old, having been born in Boston in 1825. After passing through the Latin school, young Niles became a clerk in the "Old Corner Book-Store," and under the direction of Ticknor & Fields obtained during the sixteen years of his apprenticeship the training as bookseller and publisher that he subsequently turned to such excellent use in the shaping of the policy of the house with which he was connected during the better part of his life, and which distinguished the character of its publications from the very start. For a part of the time that he was with Ticknor & Fields he had the entire charge of their publishing business.

a position in which he was succeeded by James R. Osgood when he became a member of the publishing house of Whittemore, Niles & Hall. On the dissolution of the latter firm he joined his fortunes to that of the new publishing house of Roberts Brothers, of which, after a few years' service, he became a partner in 1872. Mr. Niles was one of the first to import English editions which it would not pay to reprint. His excellent discrimination and judgment, backed by skilful handling of books, made the reputation of several American authors, notably that of Louisa M. Alcott, and he introduced Jean Ingelow, Philip Gilbert Hamerton, Edwin Arnold, George Meredith, Balzac, and the author of "Ecce Homo" to the American public. Mr. Niles was exceedingly diffident and sensitive as to notoriety of any kind, and it is therefore impossible to give at this writing more than the above meagre account of his business life.

BRYAN H. HODGSON, the English Orientalist, died in London on May 23, in his ninety-fourth year.

KURD VON SCHLOETTER, the great German diplomatist, historian, and philologist, died Sunday, May 13, at Berlin.

ANDREW J. GRAHAM, author of the "Graham System of Phonography," died in Orange, N. J., on May 19, aged sixty-four years.

MISS ALICE KING, the blind authoress, has just died at the age of fifty-five. Miss King contributed for many years to The Argosy, Home Chimes, and other magazines.

WILLIAM McCULLAGH TORRENS, author of "Industrial History of Free Nations," etc., died in London April 26, of injuries received in a street accident.

EDWARD JACKSON LOWELL, a distant cousin of James Russell Lowell, who has done some fine historical work, died in Boston May 11, at the age of forty-nine.

REV. DR. EDWARD BRIGHT, editor of The Examiner, the leading Baptist newspaper in the United States, died at his home in New York City on May 17, aged eighty-six years. For almost half a century he had been prominently identified with Baptist interests in America.

THOMAS C. LATTO, the best-known Scottish poet in this country, died at his residence in Brooklyn, on Saturday, March 12. He was born in 1818, and early in life became one of the group of writers that contributed to Blackwood's Magazine in its palmy days, and helped make it famous.

RABBI A. KOHUT, pastor of the synagogue of the congregation Ahawath Chesed in New York City, died on Friday, May 25. Rabbi Kohut was a native of Hungary, and had only been in this country since 1885. He was the author of several important works, of which the most notable is the "Aruch Completum," a Talmudic dictionary, into which he put twenty-three years of labor.

PROF. GEORGE JOHN ROMANES, a leading English scientist, died suddenly at Oxford on May 23. He was born in Canada May 20, 1848, and was a graduate of Cambridge University. He was an active contributor to scientific journals, and published several important books.

Perhaps his most notable works are: "Christian Prayer and General Laws," 1874; "Animal Intelligence," 1882; "Charles Darwin, His Character and Life," 1882; "Jelly-fish, Star-fish, and Sea-urchins," 1885; and "Mental Evolution in Man," 1888.

THE Scotsman announces the death of Mr. Thomas G. Stevenson, one of the last links between the publishing trade in Edinburgh of today and that of the earlier decades of the present century. Mr. Stevenson's father, who served his apprenticeship with Ballantyne, was brought a good deal into contact with Sir Walter Scott, and figured as "Dear Jock" in the letters of the author of "Waverley;" and Mr. Stevenson himself was fond of relating his own personal experiences of Sir Walter.

EDMUND YATES, the well-known journalist, critic, and novelist, died suddenly of apoplexy in London on May 19. He was the son of the actor, Frederick Yates, was born in London July, 1831, and began business life in the London post-office, but soon devoted himself entirely to newspaper work and general literary pursuits. He was dramatic critic of the London Daily News, was editor of Tinsley's Magazine, and a leading contributor to All the Year Round. In 1874 he founded his famous London society journal, The World, which he edited to the end of his life. He also contributed to leading New York dailies. He was the author of several plays and numerous successful books. The first of the latter was "My Haunts and Their Frequents" published in 1854. Among his most popular novels were "Broken to Harness," 1864; "Business of Pleasure" and "Running the Gauntlet," 1865; "Kissing the Rod," 1866; "Wrecked in Port," 1869, and "The Yellow Flag," 1874.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

STONE & KIMBALL have published the first number of The Chip-Book (May 15), which is planned to have, semi-monthly, at least one signed review in every number, besides several short notices and literary essays. In addition there will be poems and occasional short stories by both well known and unknown writers. Among the authors whose work is arranged for are Gilbert Parker, Eugene Field, Bliss Carmen, Hamlin Garland, Archibald Lampman, George Santayana, and many others. The next issue will contain a review of Gilbert Parker's "A Lover's Diary," by Richard Henry Stoddard.

THE bound volume of The Century Magazine (vol. XLVII), comprising the numbers from November, 1893, to April, 1894, once more gives an idea of the broad field covered by this magazine. It contains about 350 illustrations, including Timothy Cole's exquisite engravings of the masterpieces of Rembrandt, Jan Steen, Frans Hals and other "Old Dutch Masters"; full-page reproductions of paintings by well-known American artists, portraits of Alma Tadema, George Michel, Jean François Millet, etc. In this year the magazine has made rich and enterprising contributions to biography, and fiction is always one of the strong features of The Century. It is ably represented by Mark Twain, Mary Harlock Foote, Joel Chandler Harris, Charles Egbert Craddock, Kate Douglas Wiggin, Sara Orne Jewett, Howard Pyle, and many other prominent American writers.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THOMAS NAST, the cartoonist, it is reported, has gone to England to make political cartoons for the Pall Mall Gazette, of London.

M. JEAN AICARD, who has been elected president of the French Société des Gens de Lettres, is a successful poet, dramatist, and story-writer. Several of his works have been crowned by the Academy.

H. T. FINCK is said to be at work upon a book devoted to Japan. It takes some courage to write something that shall be new about this land, which has proved such a mine of material to authors. Lafcadio Hearn is also thus engaged.

EDWARD DICEY has been staying for the last three months in Bulgaria, with a view to obtaining materials for a work on the social and economic conditions of this very curious and interesting community. He is expected to return shortly.

PIERRE LOTI has gone to accumulate literary material in Egypt and the Holy Land. His plan includes a caravan journey through the desert; and he will end his travels by a visit to the Crimea and Moscow. He has six months' leave from his ship.

ARCHIBALD CLAVERING GUNTER seems to take the rejection of his name by the Authors' Club with placid good-humor. From the heights of successful authorship he throws a few hints to some of the authors who, while received in the Authors' Club, are seldom heard of outside of it.

A BRONZE tablet to the memory of E. P. Roe, the novelist, was unveiled at Cornwall-on-the-Hudson May 29. The tablet was procured by public subscription and is placed in a natural wall of rock in the E. P. Roe Memorial Park. The Roe family was represented by two of the novelist's sons, Eltinge and Murray Roe. The orator of the day was the Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, of Brooklyn. The other speakers were Hamilton Gibson, the Rev. Dr. Teal, of Elizabeth, N. J., and Mr. Frank Dodd, of Dodd, Mead & Co.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

GINN & Co. will have ready early this month "The Philosophy of Teaching," by Arnold Thompson.

JOHN D. WATTLIS & Co., Philadelphia, have just ready "Studies in Oriental Social Life," by H. Clay Trumbull.

HENRY JAMES is about to issue two comedies, "The Album" and "The Reprobate," in a volume entitled "Theatricals."

THE first English-Jewish dictionary that has ever been compiled, a work of 800 pages, has just been published by Jacob Saphirstein. Its editor is Alexander Harkavy.

HENRY ALTEMUS, Philadelphia, announces that by arrangement with Ward, Lock & Bowden he will bring out in this country an edition of "A Book of Strange Sins," by Coulston Kernahan.

C. B. LICHTENSTEIN, 36 Columbus Ave., Boston, is prepared to do all kinds of engraving and plate printing for the trade. He has special facilities for printing etchings, photogravures, and large plates.

THE largest collection in existence of the smallest books in the world is said to be that owned by M. Georges Salomon, a Parisian amateur, of whose seven hundred little volumes none is larger than one inch wide by two high.

FRANK VINCENT DU MOND is now on a tour in Europe in the interest of Harper & Brothers, making illustrations for a series of papers on "Literary Landmarks," by Mr. Laurence Hutton, which will appear in their magazine.

THE BLOCH PUBLISHING AND PRINTING CO. will have ready in June "Introduction to the Talmud," by Rev. Dr. M. Mielziner, intended to facilitate the study of this most remarkable literary production of antiquity. It will be published by subscription.

MACMILLAN & Co. have made arrangements with George Allen for the publication of Ruskin's "Verona and other Lectures" in America, and the work will be issued simultaneously early this month. The special edition on large paper is already subscribed for.

HENRY CAREY BAIRD's paper on "Association: the dominating need of man and the keynote of social science," read before the American Philosophical Society, Philadelphia, March 16, 1894, has been issued in pamphlet form. It covers eight pages.

THE TREMONT PUBLISHING CO., Tremont, Ohio, have issued a little book called "Small Talk About Business," originally intended for bankers, but full of suggestions that may be read with profit by every man and woman engaged in mercantile pursuits.

THE title of Mrs. Burton Harrison's story, "A Bachelor Girl," has been changed to "A Bachelor Maid," some one else having already used the former. If, as Mr. Spofford says, there is no copyright in a title, why should not Mrs. Harrison keep the first and better name? The story will be begun in the July Century, and will be published in book form by the Century Company next fall.

WALTER BLACKBURN HARTE, who made many friends with his "In a Corner at Dodsley's" papers, in the New England Magazine, is writing a series of amusing papers in The Literary Weekly on "The Jacobites in Boston," which will be of interest in all social circles. The articles deal with the principles, purposes, and progress of this interestingly fantastic Boston society in a most humorous fashion.

WITHIN a few years a mass of documents and other material has been published in France that throws new light on the inside history of the Maximilian episode in Mexico. John Heard, Jr., has made a study of this episode, and has written for the June Scribner the first accessible account of it which has appeared in an American periodical. Marchetti and Gilbert Gaul illustrate it with a series of historical pictures.

D. C. HEATH & Co., Boston, have in press for immediate issue in their Heath's Modern Language Series Halévy's "L'Abbé Constantin," edited with introduction and notes by Professor Thomas Logie, of Rutgers College. No one can fail to admire the charm of this easy tale, which is one of the best in modern French literature. A few sentences, that might be regarded as objectionable in a text for schools, have been omitted.

THE fashion of binding books in cloth was, according to a writer in Notes and Queries, the invention of Mr. R. E. Lawson, of London, and the first book bound in cloth was a manuscript volume of music, which was subsequently purchased by Mr. Alfred Herbert, the marine artist. On this volume being shown to the late Mr. Pickering, who was at that time (1823), printing a diamond edition of the classics, he thought the material would be admirably adapted for the covers of the work. The cloth was purchased, and 500 copies of the diamond classics were covered by Mr. Lawson with glue.

MERRILL & BAKER, New York City, are making a two-volume edition of George Eliot's "Mill on the Floss," with twelve original photogravures; also an edition of "Anacreon" on hand-made paper with eleven photogravures; a four-volume octavo subscription edition of McCarthy's "History of Our Own Times," with twenty-four photogravure portraits of leading English statesmen, and a twelvemo trade edition of the same; a new edition of twelve of Ruskin's most popular books; an edition of More's "Utopia," with four rare old portraits; and an edition of Judge Tourgee's "An Outing with the Queen of Hearts."

W. B. SAUNDERS, Philadelphia, calls special attention to the works of Dr. William Pepper, which are among the most valuable in his long list of medical literature. Dr. Pepper has recently resigned his position as provost in the University of Pennsylvania in order to devote himself even more exclusively to his literary labors. The "American Text-Book of Practice," "American Text-Book of Gynecology," "American Text-Book of Surgery," and "American Text-Book on Diseases of Children," are acknowledged as authorities by all the leading physicians. Mr. Saunders also announces a New Aid Series of "Manuals for Students and Practitioners," which are to be written by leading specialists to put desired information within the means of struggling students.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish in the late autumn "A Victorian Anthology," by Edmund C. Stedman, who is making an inclusive but choice selection from the entire field of British poetry since the beginning, in 1837, of the present reign—the field surveyed and criticised in his "Victorian Poets." This anthology has long been called for, and is really needed. Not a few collections have been made by amateurs availing themselves of the aid given in Mr. Stedman's critical survey, but none of them satisfactory from his point of view. The many volumes of Miles' "Poets and Poetry of the Century" are encyclopædic, but there is no one-volume anthology compiled with taste and knowledge. The work will be of the same size and style with the Houghton "Cambridge Longfellow," a book justly pronounced a model of its kind.

THE Russian government has recently granted a concession for the establishment in St. Petersburg of an "International Central Bureau for newspapers and journals and the accepting of subscriptions and advertisements." It is proposed to make this a general agency for the handling of foreign periodicals, including the ~~handling~~ of subscriptions and advertisements at s' prices. Efforts will also be made to pass the publications through the censor's office as speedily as possible, as the delays in the censorship form one of the most serious obstacles to the circulation of foreign publications in Russia. The concession was granted to Councillor Cyrilus von Berg, of St. Petersburg, but the organizer and manager of the proposed bureau is N. Mattison, of 30 Nevsky Prospect, proprietor of the "first international central advertisement and subscription office and translating bureau" established in Russia, dating from 1870.

THE Loubat prizes at Columbia College for 1893 have been awarded as follows: First prize to Henry Adams for his "History of the United States of America During the Administrations of Madison and Jefferson," in nine volumes; second prize to A. F. Bandelier for his "Report of Investigations Among Indians of the South-western States," in two volumes. The Loubat prizes of $1000 and $400 were established at Columbia College by Joseph F. Loubat for the best works published in the English language upon the history, geography, archaeology, ethnology, philology or numismatics of North America. The prizes are awarded every five years, and the competition is open to all persons whether connected with the college or not, and whether citizens of the United States or of any other country. All works entered in the competition must rest on original research and constitute a distinct contribution to science.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Harry Falkenan, who was formerly in the news trade, has opened "The Bookstall" at 92 Washington Street, where he will make a specialty of rare and curious books, as well as keep new books and stationery. He reports encouraging prospects, and we take pleasure in extending a welcome to him.

CHICAGO, ILL.—J. C. Gribbler, who a little over a year ago bought out Miller's Old Book-Store, and, after moving to 107 Clark Street, rechristened it "The Odd Volume," has closed up the store and is again devoting himself to his original vocation—i.e., lithography.

CLEVELAND, OHIO.—"The Book-Shop" was slightly damaged by a fire on May 12. After a few days' suspension "The Book-Shop" was reopened, and is now again the resort of its many book-loving friends.

DANBURY, CONN.—F. Mullarkey has purchased the news and stationery business owned by David Jennings, and lately managed by F. M. Harrison.

MADISON, IND.—Albert S. Alling has purchased the Rogers & Cowlam Book-Store of J. W. Thomas.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.—Robert W. Taber has moved into a new store, and added a line of artists' materials to his book and stationery stock.

PITTSBURG, PA.—The firm of A. W. McCloy & Co., booksellers, has been dissolved, W. J. Lowney retiring.

TROY, N. Y.—G. L. Shivler succeeds the firm of Shivler & Frothingham, booksellers and stationers, who have recently suspended.

The Best Key to Educational Books.

THE American Educational Catalogue
For 1894,

whose value to the trade is proved by the fact that it is now in its twenty-fifth year, and that upwards of claims to be the best practical aid to the dealer in or buyer of school-books.

With its alphabetical arrangement by authors, its separate class-index, carefully sub-classified to an extent not followed by any other catalogue, its completeness and accuracy, it is presented as the best finding-list, the most convenient order-list, and the most satisfactory class-catalogue for school use.

The catalogue is made entirely new each year, to omit books which have dropped out of use and to include all live books, and all new books (ready or to be ready for the Fall) are added in their proper alphabetical place.

The page giving the key to publishers will not be given in imprint editions unless specially ordered.

This Catalogue is specially planned to be of service for circulation by retailers among schools and private buyers. The imprint edition possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year. No imprint edition of less than 100 copies can be supplied. Orders for editions should be sent to us at once.

CASH TERMS:

Imprint edition—without publishers' advertisements:

With sole imprint of ordering firm, and stitched, per 100 copies, $5.00; per 1000, $40.00.

There is no extra charge for printing name, business card, etc., on the imprint page; the last page is left blank at the disposal of the dealer, but any copy for that page, advertising special lines or general business, will be set up and printed thereon for $5.00, or for $1.00 if plate is sent.

Copy for imprint and shipping directions should accompany the order.

The regular Educational Number of "THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY" will be supplied at 25 cents per copy, or five for $1.00, postpaid.

NOTES IN SEASON.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have in press "An Easter Vacation," a story by Moira O'Neill; also "Everybody's Fairy Godmother," by Dorothy Quigley.

THOMAS W. DURSTON & SON, Syracuse, N. Y., will publish on the 20th "The American Musical Directory," containing a list of all the manufacturers of musical instruments, including piano manufacturers, music dealers, and music publishers of the United States and Canada.

HARPER & BROS.' latest books include "Perlycross," by R. D. Blackmore; "A Traveller from Altruria," by W. D. Howells; "From the Easy Chair," third series, by George William Curtis; "Pastime Stories," by Thomas Nelson Page; and "A Likely Story," a farce, by Mr. Howells.

LEE & SHEPARD will publish a new edition of Baron Nils Posse's "Educational Gymnastics," under the title of "Special Kinesiology of Educational Gymnastics." They also announce a book on mushrooms, by Captain Julius A. Palmer; "The Boy's Own Guide to Fishing, Tackle-Making and Fish-Breeding," by John Harrington Keene; "A Modern Magdalene," another novel on the social evil, by Virna Woods; and new editions of Prof. Do'beare's "Matter, Ether, and Motion," and Sam Walter Foss' "Back Country Poems."

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY have just ready the first and second volumes of the new Present-Day Primers, namely Early Church History: a sketch of the first four centuries by J. V. Bartlet, lecturer on church history in Oxford; and The Printed English Bible, by Richard Lovett. The latter is illustrated by reproductions of title-pages and other portions of Tindale's, Coverdale's, and other sixteenth-century Bibles. Each volume will be complete in itself, and will be the work of a writer specially competent to deal with the subject treated.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS add to their announcements for the summer season as follows: In the Autonym Library, No. 2, "Mad Sir Uchtred," by S. R. Crockett, author of "The Raiders," etc.; in the Incognito Library, No. 2, "The Honorable Stanbury and Others," by Two; No. 3, "Heien," by Voccs. They will begin in July the publication, under the title of The Hudson Library, of a new series of fiction. The volumes will be issued bi-monthly and the series will be registered as second-class matter. The July volume will be "Love and Shawl Straps," by Annette L. Noble whose "Uncle Jack's Executors," issued some years back made for itself a distinctive success. "Eyes Like the Sea," which they also have in press, is the latest work of the veteran Hungarian author, Maurice Jókai, who is regarded by his countrymen as the first of Hungarian writers. The story is largely autobiographical but is none the less a most stirring and dramatic romance. "No Enemy: the story of a gentleman tramp," by Elbert G. Hubbard, has a certain timeliness in connection with the attempts now being made on the part of organized tramps to constitute themselves a political power. The volume will contain twenty-eight full-page illustrations. "On and Off the Saddle: characteristic sights and scenes from the great northwest to the Antilles. is a series of graceful travel sketches by a well-known New Yorker who uses as his volume the pseudonym of Lisperard Rutgers. In the Story of the Nations Series the next volume will be "The Story of South Africa," comprising the Cape Colony, Natal, the Orange Free State, the South African Republic, and all other territory south of the Zambesi, by George M. Theal, of the Cape Colony Civil Service. The Story of Africa will form a companion volume to "The Story of Australasia," recently issued, and will make an important addition to the varied history of the British colonies.

*Hayce, Archibald H: The higher criticism and the verdict of the monuments. N. Y., E. & J. B. Young & Co., 1894. 10+575 p. 8", cl., $3. (Corr. price.) [1896]

*Schultz, G. and Julius P. Systematic survey of the organic coloring matters; tr. and ed., with extensive additions, by Arthur G. Green. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 205 p. F. cl., net, $5. [1897]

Scott, H. E. The girl from Macoupin: a novel. Chic., Laird & Lee, [1894.] c. 4-380 p. il. D. (Pastime ser., no. 128.) pap., 25 c. [1898]

Pearl Linwood, of Macoupin, going to Chicago in search of employment and a recreant brother, finds a situation in a department store. In her experience is traced the trials and temptations to which girls compelled to work in department stores and "sweat shops" are often subjected.

*Scott, Sir Walter. Waverley novels. [New Dryburgh ed.] In 25 v. V. 22, The fair maid of Perth. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1894. 467 p. il. 8", cl., $1.25. [1899]

Scott, W. W., and Stanard, W. G. The capitol of Virginia and of the Confederate states: being a descriptive and historical catalogue of the Public Square and buildings, and of the statuary, paintings, and curios therein. Richmond, Va., J. W. Randolph & Co., [1894.] c. 2-28 p. O. pap., 25 c. [1900]

Shakespeare, W: Comedy of errors. [And] Measure for measure; with preface, glossary, etc., by Israel Gollancz. Temple ed. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., [1894.] por. sq. T. flex. cl., ea., 45 c. [1901]

*Silvernail, W: H. Appeals from inferior courts of civil jurisdiction, cont. the law and practice on appeals from such courts to the county courts and courts of common pleas, with full and abundant forms, etc. Alb., N. Y., W. C. Little & Co., [1894.] c. 26+542 p. O. shp., $5.25. [1902]

Soissons, S. C. de. Boston artists: a Parisian critic's notes. Bost., [C: Schoenhof, 23 School St.] 1894. 3-96 p. S. cl., $1 [1903]
The author has visited great art exhibitions in Paris, Munich, Berlin, Düsseldorf, Dresden, Vienna, Florence, and Rome. On coming to America he was struck by the artistic movement which has had its source in Boston. He describes the work of portrait painters, landscape painters, flower painters, animal painters, figure painters, and sculptors, and gives general directions on art and criticism. Much of the material has appeared as criticism in the Boston press.

*Southern reporter, v. 14, cont. all the decisions of the supreme courts of Ala., La., Fla., Miss. Permanent ed., Dec. 27, 1893-Apr. 18, 1894; with tables of southern cases in which rehearings have been denied; with tables of southern cases published in v. 95 and 96, Ala. reports; 32, Fla. reports. A table of statutes construed is given in the index. St. Paul, West Pub Co., 1894. c. 12+966 p. O. (National reporter system, state ser.) shp., $4. [1904]

Southworth, Mrs. E. D. E. N. The fatal secret a novel. [New issue.] N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1893 [1894.] c. 77. 21-374 p. D. (Madison sq. ser., no. 74.) pap., 25 c. [1905]
Originally published by T. B. Peterson & Bros.

Steel, Flora Annie. The potter's thumb: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 2+351 p. D. cl., $1.50. [1906]

The scene is India. The two heroes, Dan Fitzgerald and George Keene, are Englishmen employed to superintend the public works, especially the provisions against floods and water famines. An old Indian legend runs that sometimes in modelling clay the potter's thumb slips, and that at the place in his work where this happens there remains a weak spot which cannot stand the firing. So, in these men and the girls who influenced their lives there are weaknesses that unfit them for the battle of life. Indian masses and a destructive cholera epidemic are described with the author's peculiar talent.

Stephens, Mrs. Ann S. The curse of gold: a novel. [New issue.] N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1893 [1894.] c. 69, '90, '92. 23-406 p. D. (Dillingham's home ser., no. 18.) pap., 25 c. [1907]
Originally published by T. B. Peterson & Bros.

Thucydides. Book 8; ed. on the basis of the Classen-Steup edition; by C: Foster Smith. Bost., Gunn & Co., 1894. c. 11+320 p. D. (College ser. of Greek authors.) cl., $1.75. [1906]

Tillier, Claude. Belle-Plante and Cornelius: from the French, by B: R. Tucker. N. Y., The Merriam Co., [1894.] c. '93. 3-288 p. il. D. cl., $1.25. [1899]

Belle-Plante and Cornelius were brothers in a rural district in France. Belle-Plante was plodding and avaricious, with no idea beyond making money. Cornelius was a dreamer and inventor, and a student. Both brothers wanted to marry the same girl one from interested motives, the other because he loved her. This situation is improved by the author of "My Uncle Benjamin" to make many pessimistic remarks on love and marriage. Cornelius wins the girl and devotes his life to perfecting a balloon in which he intends to study the world.

Trail, Florence. Under the Second Renaissance: a novel. Buffalo, N. Y., C: Wells Moulton, 1894. c. 3-190 p. sq. 8. cl., $1. [1904]

The story of a young American girl who chooses the stage as her profession, in opposition to the wishes of the family, her trials and triumphs as an actress are described, and also the vicissitude of her love for a man who also objects to her profession.

Trumbull, M. M., ["Wheelbarrow," pseud.] Wheelbarrow articles and discussions of the labor question, including the controversy with Mr. Lyman J. Gage on the ethics of the Board of Trade, and also the controversy with Mr. Hugh O. Pentecost and others on the single tax question. Chic., The Open Court Pub. Co., 1894. c. 308 p. por. D. cl., $1. [1901]

*Tyler, B. B., D.D., Thomas, A. C., Thomas, R. H., M.D., [and others.] A history of the Disciples of Christ; The Society of Friends; The United Brethren in Christ and The Evangelical Association, with a bibliography of American church history by S: Macauley Jackson, D.D. N. Y., T: Christian Literature Co., 1894. 12", (American church history ser., v. 12.) cl., $1. [1904]

Wells, Amos R. Business: a plain talk with men and women who work. N. Y. at Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., [1894.] 48 p. D. leatherette, 35 c. (Corr. price.) [1904]

Wolf, Emma. A prodigal in love: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1894. c. 2+258 p. D. cl., $1.25. [1904]

The author of "Other things being equal" makes San Francisco the starting-point of her story home perplexities. Constance Herriott had been in charge of a large family of sisters after her mother's death. All went smoothly until Hall Kennerly in love with one sister and married another. Constance played the part of mother to all her sisters to none more tenderly than to the sister who married her Paris, Rome, and other European cities travelled through and delightfully described.

Wood, J: Seymour. College days; or, Harry's career at Yale; rewritten and reprinted from Outing, May, 9, 1891-March, 1893. N. Y., The Outing Co., Ltd., 1894. c. 8+429 p. il. D. cl., $1.50. [1915
Life at Yale College twenty years ago is pictured by words and illustrations. A healthy fund of humor enlivens the tale of the hero's struggle to combine daily pleasures and good scholarship. First published in Outing in 1891.

Shortly afterward he was sent to Russia, where he completed his diplomatic career with the experiences of the war between Russia and Turkey in 1877 and 1878, and the subsequent negotiations for peace. The volume finishes with an account of his return to England in 1879. The light thrown upon the many political events of which he was a witness through the secret history his position made known to him, and the interesting details of the personalities of the famous men of the period, make the volumes of unusual value to historical students.

The great Chicago fire of 1871 plays an important part in the story.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JUNE 16, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications. All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the Weekly solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament therunto."—LORD BACON.

RECEIVERSHIPS AGAIN.

THE tribulations of a conscientious receiver are such as to make the delights of that calling rather questionable. So at least Mr. J. J. Little has found in endeavoring to handle the remainders of the Worthington property with benefit to the estate, the creditors, and the public. A good deal of sport has lately been made of Mr. Little's dilemma over certain books on the Worthington list, as to which he had asked the direction of the court, of which he is an officer; but the episode seriously suggests the importance and difficult relationship of the receiver under the system of modern court procedure. As a rule, receivers have not considered themselves bound to observe either the ordinary commercial conditions which prevail in non-bankrupt business concerns, or the relations with rival houses which are necessary to the successful conduct of business of any kind. We heard recently, for instance, of a receiver who stated point-blank that he could produce cheaper than any other concern in the trade, because being a receiver he had neither to pay dividends on capital nor interest on debts.

In fact, to speak most seriously, the responsibilities of a receiver—as a director of important interests entrusted to his charge, as a business man among business men, and as an officer of the court responsible solely to it—cannot be exaggerated or too much emphasized. As a matter of fact receiverships, even in the hands of the best men, have become an abuse, and a dangerous abuse in most trades, and not least in the book trade. The receiver of a bankrupt estate is freed from all those conditions of restraint which keep business men in line with ordinary business prudence, and we may almost say ordinary business morality. A sound business enterprise can hold its own against cut-throat competition, because it knows that in the long run cut-throat competition must cut its own throat. But when the cut-throat business has reached that suicidal culmination, and the corpse is delivered over to the receiver, his general purpose of realizing "for the benefit of the creditors" may lead to a derangement of business and of trade relations disastrous beyond precedent. In this sense the power of justice—that is, of the court—becomes the most powerful instrument of injustice known to business.

We have before stated the case of the United States Book Company, whose receiver, Mr. Gould, is known to a very wide range of people as one of the most able and reputable of business lawyers, quite above suspicion, and well deserving public esteem. The personal character of the receiver brings the essential injustice of the relationship into clearer sight. The defunct concern had manufactured great quantities of books for which—wonderful to relate—it had obtained the material on credit from paper-makers, printers, and others. Its capital had been procured largely by the issue of bonds, which of course constituted a first lien on most of the assets. When the concern went to pieces, so much of its stock as could be sold was thrown on the market in the ordinary course of duty of the receiver, at what could be got for it, to the very serious demoralization of those in the publishing trade who had been taking the ordinary course of actually paying the paper-maker and the printer. The returns from these sales did not get to the creditors, but were necessarily used in large measure for the payment of the receiver's expenses. As a matter of fact the concern has been going on at large expense without making any dividends to creditors, and yet continuing in business as a menace to legitimate trade. We presume it has been the receiver's policy to pay the interest on the bonds so far as that also has been practicable, since these bondholders have a lien wiping out the interest of ordinary creditors. As a result, if we have the facts rightly, the ordinary creditors have been paid nothing, the bondholders have received but a portion of the stipulated interest, and the demoralization of the trade has been kept up without good to any one.

The receiver of a bankrupt estate, appointed by the court, should certainly be held closely to the usual responsibilities of business men. If the business is to be continued by him as a safeguard to creditors' interests it should be on business methods, verified by monthly or quarterly reports to the court, and through the court to the creditors interested, of the outgo and income of the business and of such other figures and facts as would acquaint those vitally interested with the real course of affairs. As it is, the end of the United States Book Company affair is not yet in sight; it seems to be dying a second time and in the process infecting the trade anew with poisonous methods. We think that both the committee and the receiver owe it to the trade to make frank and full statements as to their treatment of their trust.

REMOVAL OF D. APPLETON & CO.

THE removal of the old firm of D. Appleton & Co. from Nos. 1, 3, and 5 Bond Street to No. 72 Fifth Avenue, where they will occupy the new building at the northwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirteenth Street, is an interesting illustration of the uptown movement on Manhattan Island. When the founder of this house—Daniel Appleton—came to New York from Boston, in 1825, he began the importation of English books, in connection with other business, in Exchange Place. The book business was in the charge of his oldest son, William Henry Appleton, the present head of the firm, who has well earned his title as the Nestor of American publishers, occupying, as he does, in this country, the place held by the late John Murray in England. After a short stay in Exchange Place, Daniel Appleton removed to Clinton Hall, Beekman Street, corner of Nassau, and devoted himself entirely to the importation and sale of books. In 1835 William H. Appleton was sent to London, where he founded an agency.

The first publishing venture of the firm was a little 32mo book called "Daily Crumbs from the Master's Table," issued in 1831. In January, 1838, William H. Appleton was taken into partnership, and the firm removed to No. 200 Broadway. In 1848 Daniel Appleton retired, and W. H. Appleton formed a partnership with his brother, John Adams Appleton. Three other sons subsequently became partners—Daniel Sidney, George Swett, and Samuel Francis. The business was removed from No. 200 Broadway to the old Society Library building at Broadway and Leonard Street. The next removal of the firm was to Nos. 443-445 Broadway. Later a building was erected at No. 94 Grand Street, corner of Greene, and occupied for some years, until a change was made to Nos. 549-551 Broadway. About 1880 Messrs. D. Appleton & Co. removed to Nos. 1, 3, and 5 Bond Street. Each one of these periods has witnessed some increase and development. In 1853 a printing office and bindery were established in Franklin Street, New York, but the business grew so large that the manufacturing department was removed to Brooklyn, and buildings were erected which cover a square.

The history of the firm is full of interesting events, such as their publication of Tract No. 9 and other much-discussed literature of the Unitarian school in 1840; the publication of the works of Darwin, Tyndall, Huxley, and Spencer; and the Memoirs of General Sherman, Joseph E. Johnston, and Jefferson Davis, and William H. Seward's "Travels Around the World;" the publications of the "American Cyclopædia," begun in 1857, and of the "Annual Cyclopædia," and of "Picturesque America," and other successful art-books; and more recently the publication of elaborate subscription-books like "The Art of the World," edited by Ripley Hitchcock, which illustrates the art of the Columbian Exposition, and "The United States of America," a most comprehensive account of our country at present, edited by Prof. Shaler. In the long list of trade-books issued by the house one may read the names of Kipling, Eggleston, McMaster, Hall Caine, Bancroft, Maarten Maartens, Captain A. T. Mahan, Mr. Everard Cotes, John Fiske, Maxwell Gray, Beatrice Whitby, Mary Cholmondeley, Sir Robert S. Ball, Edgar S. MacLay, author of "The History of the United States Navy," E. F. Benson, Mrs. Mannington Caffyn, Sarah Grafton, Clark Russell, and Justin McCarthy, among others equally well known. In addition to their trade and two subscription departments there is a Spanish department, and a very large and important medical department which has just produced a monumental work, "Foster's Medical Dictionary." Other important medical works are Osler's "Principles and Practice of Medicine," Wyeth's "Surgery," Lusk's "Midwifery," Morrow's "System of Genito-Urinary Diseases," and Flint's "Physiology." Although the text-book business of the house has been transferred to the American Book Company, D. Appleton & Co. publish their well-known International Educational Series for teachers, with other standard books for teachers and for colleges. "Johnson's Cyclopædia," which has been purchased by the house and is being thoroughly revised, is another large undertaking. The periodicals published by D. Appleton & Co. include The Popular Science Monthly, edited by Dr. W. J. Youmans; the New York Medical Journal, edited by Dr. Frank P. Foster, and the Journal of Gynecology and Obstetrics. There are five members of the firm—William H. Appleton, William W. Appleton, Daniel Appleton, Edward Dale Appleton, and D. Sidney Appleton.

THE SCRIBNER PRIZE FOR BOOK-COVER DESIGNS.

THE recent exhibition of modern commercial bookbindings at the Grolier Club has drawn more attention than ever to the fact that the cloth book-cover has become an important detail in the manufacture of books. A number of artists now employ almost all their time in making cover designs, yet the demand is said to exceed the supply. Charles Scribner's Sons, through The Book Buyer, announce a competition in such designs open to all till August 1.

The prizes offered are $50, $40, and $25 for the best three designs for covers, to be submitted to the editor of The Book Buyer. Designs are asked for a novel, a book of poems, and a juvenile, and must show the color scheme. The terms of the competition are printed in the first number of The Book Buyer.

L. E. KLINE'S QUARTER OF A CENTURY'S RECORD AS A BOOKSELLER.

LAST month Mr. Lewis E. Kline celebrated in a quiet way the twenty-fifth anniversary of his connection with the American Baptist Publication Society of St. Louis. For seven years he was chief clerk, and for eighteen he has been manager. Through all these years he was to be found in his office at 7:15 in the morning; and in busy seasons as early as 7, ready to wait on his thousands of customers whose orders reach him with every morning's mail. During the first seventeen years his labors were incessant, keeping him at his post at times until 11 at night, hard at work, filling orders and answering correspondence. It was a law with him that the smallest order and the most obscure patron should have as prompt attention as any other. He is scrupulously exact in the details of his business. His love of the cause and the work prompted this sacrifice of time and ease. The amount of work that passes through his hands is marvellous. The largest mail received any one day brought 401 letters. The largest sales in any one year were $75,000; this was before the establishment of the last branch.

He has had the finest branch house (at 1109 Olive Street), leased and furnished under his personal supervision, and his branch is the only one which has all the time occupied the ground floor.

By the annual statements of the six branches, he has stood at the head as to net results, and at the foot as to expenses. This is a record of which Mr. Kline may well be proud, and one upon which he is to be congratulated. There are with him clerks who have been in his employ from 11 to 15 years, and who apply themselves with the devotion of a personal interest to the business of the house. All orders received are filled the same day. Despatch, neatness, promptness, and politeness are standing rules.

Mr. Kline has not grown gray in the service, as might be imagined; for there is no silver among the gold. Hard work, good cheer, temperate habits and a lovely home life have kept him young.

OBITUARY.

PROF. WILLIAM DWIGHT WHITNEY, of Yale, the greatest of America's philologists, died in New Haven, Conn., on the 7th inst., aged sixty-seven. Prof. Whitney was born in Northampton, Mass., February 9, 1827, and was graduated at Williams College in 1845. He went to Germany five years later and studied at the universities of Berlin and Tübingen. Before leaving Germany he began the preparation of an edition of the text of "Attharva Veda Sanhita," which appeared in 1856 in Berlin. In 1854 he was appointed professor of Sanscrit at Yale and in 1870 of comparative philology also. He organized the department of modern languages in the Sheffield Scientific School in 1862, and was continuously connected with that department on "Language and the Study of Language." He was elected a member of the American Oriental Society in 1850, and was its librarian in 1855-73, its corresponding secretary in 1857-84, and after that its president. In 1878 he was selected by German scholars to prepare a Sanscrit grammar. He lent assistance to the edition of Webster's Dictionary published in 1864, and was editor-in-chief of the Century Dictionary.

GEN. MATTHEW MARK TRUMBULL ("Wheelbarrow") died on the 11th ult. in Chicago. He was born in London, Eng., 1826, and came to America in his youth, where he began his career as a day laborer, working with pickaxe, shovel, and wheelbarrow. He kept up his studies, however, and then taught school and devoted himself to reading law. He served as a soldier in the Mexican and in the Civil War, and rising in rank was finally made a brigadier-general for bravery on the battlefield. Under Grant's administration he held the office of Collector of Internal Revenue in Iowa, upon resigning which he devoted himself to literary work. His best-known writings are "The Free-Trade Struggle in England" and "Wheelbarrow: articles and discussions on the labor questions." He was connected with the Monist and the Open Court, in Chicago, and had long been a voluminous contributor to American periodicals on economic, political, and philosophical subjects.

JOHN A. TAYLOR, publisher, the proprietor of the National Publishing Company, died June 4, from consumption, in Toronto. Mr. Taylor began life as a boy in A. S. Irving's old news depot in King Street, where the Bank of Commerce now stands, and step by step he climbed the ladder of success until he controlled an extensive publishing business. During the past two years, however, owing to the dulness of the times, business decreased, which fact caused him considerable anxiety, and no doubt helped along the disease that sooner or later was sure to cause his end. He published in New York under the firm-name of the John A. Taylor Co., and had at one time an extensive line of plates.

PROF. DAVID BURNET SCOTT, who for some time occupied the chair of English literature, rhetoric and belles-lettres in the College of the City of New York, and author of three school histories of the United States, died in New York City on the 10th inst., aged seventy-two.

THE death at the age of fifty-nine is announced in England of Roden Noel, author of "Essays upon Poetry and Poets," and several volumes of poetry.

COMMUNICATIONS.

BOSTON, June 7, 1894.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: The advertising by the New York Recorder of the "Wild Flowers of America," to be had of them under the sadly demoralizing scheme of a certain quantity of coupons, forces me to write you for the information of the book trade that the work is not the "Wild Flowers of America" by Sprague and Goodale, so long published by me and the late firm of S. E. Cassino & Co. If the newspapers propose to continue a bazaar business such as now seems upheld by some publishers of good books, they should at least not deceive the public by misleading advertisements of their wares.

THE BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

THE fifteenth annual meeting of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association of the United States was held at the sales-room of Messrs. Bangs & Co., 739 Broadway, New York, on the evening of the 6th inst. Owing to the bad weather the meeting was not as well attended as usual, though the few present made up in earnestness and enthusiasm for the lack of numbers.

There being no business which took precedence, the secretary, Mr. Wilbur B. Ketcham, proceeded to read the following report in behalf of the Board of Trustees:

To the members of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association:

We present to you this, our fifteenth annual report, and it is with pleasure and pride that we take this opportunity to congratulate you on our success in the past and the prospect of still greater success in the future.

The past year has been a most unfavorable one to all insurance associations and companies. It has been hard work to secure members, and still more difficult for members to pay their assessments. During the year a number of our members have been obliged to relinquish their membership, not of their own desire, but because of business reverses.

We, however, can report, notwithstanding the unfavorable business year, that we are on a more substantial basis than for any year of the past.

Every claim has been paid and the following report will show that our finances are in a most excellent condition.

It will not be out of place to state here that our association has been examined by the Insurance Department of this State during the year, and it is with pleasure we state that our affairs were found satisfactory to them.

The time of office of five of your trustees will expire to-day, and it is your duty to elect at this meeting five men to serve for three years in their places. The work connected with the association constantly increases. Your board have met regularly during the year and have endeavored to give their best thought to your interests.

The future depends upon every member of this association and the efforts they may make to increase our membership.

We should be glad to have suggestions offered at this meeting how this can best be brought about.

Our death rate has not increased and our expenses are low for the reason that no one receives any compensation and only the actual expenses incurred are paid by the association.

We are under obligations to Messrs. Burkhardt, Holden, Vogelius, and Kelly for their management of an Authors' Reading, the proceeds of which made a substantial increase in our funds.

In closing this report we can do no better than to repeat the following which was taken from our report of last year:

"The superiority of the assessment system lies in the fact that while it furnishes insurance at about one-half the rates which old-system companies are compelled to charge, it also provides absolute security for the payment of its death losses. Every policy holder, so long as he continues to profit by the protection furnished, must contribute his proportion of the amount required for its death losses and expenses. Consequently, the greater the amount of insurance in force the greater the security. If the assessment is not paid when due the policy lapses and the liability ceases. The reserve of companies conducted upon this system is therefore practically unlimited. It entails no expense for management and can never be squandered in the payment of high salaries or lost in unprofitable investments.

"In many respects the reserve of the assessment system is like the reserve force of a nation—such as the United States—where there is practically no standing army, but where the State has power, in case it is required, to call Optic's books suggested to Mr. Niles the thought of similar books for girls, and having been much pleased by "Hospital Sketches," by Louisa M. Alcott, published in 1867 by Ticknor & Fields, he sent for Miss Alcott and engaged her for this work. "Little Women" made the fortunes of the publishing house and of the author, and the long list of books that followed added steadily to their prosperity. Among the authors who are now identified with the Roberts Brothers Mr. Niles secured E. C. Stedman, T. B. Aldrich, "Susan Coolidge," Mrs. Helen Hunt Jackson, whose "Ramona" was one of the big successes, Dr. E. E. Hale, Mrs. Caroline Dall, Mrs. L. C. Moulton, Gilbert Hamerton, Sir Edwin Arnold, and Joaquin Miller. Mr. Niles' correspondence with these writers was rich and confidential, and perhaps no publisher has left a richer collection of literary correspondence. He magnified his office by making it a truly literary function, and he had no stronger desire than to add good names to his very choice catalogue, to publish the best books, and to see that the authors of them received their due reward. His warmest friends were among authors, and in their mutual relations all traditions of distrust were set aside. Mr. Niles suffered for years with some painful affection of the stomach, and was travelling for his health when death overtook him at Perugia.

THE MAKING OF MAGAZINES.

In an address recently made before the Quill Club of New York, Mr. Frank H. Scott, president of the Century Company, made the following interesting remarks concerning the cost of producing a modern illustrated magazine. We quote from Mr. Scott's remarks as printed in The Critic:

"It is a mistaken idea that the cost of the best magazines has been lessened of late. Cheap publications, those in which the principal expense is for paper and printing, can be made, for these two items of cost were never so low as now. But the cost of everything else connected with the production of a magazine has steadily increased. The prices paid authors and artists are more than double what they were twenty years ago. Every number of The Century Magazine costs more than $10,000 for contributions and pictures before it goes to press, and if we add to this the salaries of editors and managers, the rent and expense of maintenance of a great establishment, you will see that only immense editions can make it possible to supply the present magazine, containing, as it does, as much matter and as well printed as the average four or five dollar book, for 35 cents.

"I know there has been of late a movement toward cheap magazines. These are possible, they may be desirable, but they will not be the same. You cannot get 25 cents' worth for 12½ cents, nor the value of 35 cents for a quarter. In the long run a 15-cent magazine will be but a 15-cent magazine—no more, no less. On the present basis of cost The Century and Harper's would not be self-sustaining at these rates. But some say the advertisements will make up the difference. Will they? Waiving the question as to whether more advertising is desirable, it is yet to be proved that more wages or higher rates can be secured. The larger magazines have secured their patronage because of their excellence, insuring the character and extent of their circulation. Cheapen or change the character of the contents or circulation and you change the value of the advertising pages. Even if a 10-cent magazine has twice the circulation of a 35-cent one, it does not follow that its advertising space is doubly or even equally valuable.

"It may be less so; indeed, for many articles it probably is. But for the present, bear in mind that the cheap magazines are largely in the experimental stage; they have not yet equalled the older magazines in that combination of acceptable contents, circulation, and advertising patronage which have given the older ones their reputation and success, and until they have done so and proved themselves not only equally acceptable to the public, but profitable to their owners on the new basis, we can but await with interest the result of the experiment."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

PAUL BOURGET, the novelist, and Albert Sorel, the historian, were elected members of the French Academy to fill the vacancies caused by the deaths of Messrs. Taine and Ducamp.

Mrs. EMMA GOTTHELL, wife of Prof. J. E. Gotthell, of Columbia College, has had conferred upon her the title of "Officier de l'Académie Française," in recognition of her services rendered to the French language and literature.

WALTER BESANT, though he writes a great deal about love and talks even more on that interesting topic, does not look like a man of sentimental inclinations. His high forehead and his full beard suggest a scientist, and he is middle-aged. Mr. Besant is broad enough to have a keen admiration for some of his fellow-craftsmen—particularly for Kipling, Stevenson, and George Meredith.

A CHICAGO newspaper man, Stanley Waterloo, broke the record lately in writing a book. A Chicago publisher sent for Mr. Waterloo and asked him whether he could have a book on the Coxey movement ready for the press in ten days. Mr. Waterloo, being a well-equipped journalist, full of resources and knowing just the word "fall," said he could. This was on Monday morning. The publisher said "Go ahead," and gave him carte blanche as to expenses. A staff of writers was organized, specialists were engaged for the historical part of the work, photographers took the field, typewriters worked day and night, and Mr. Waterloo himself hardly ate or slept. The result was that on Thursday night the "copy" for a book of over one hundred thousand words, with forty illustrations, was in the hands of printers.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE first number of Direct Legislation Record, a new monthly journal, has just been published by James W. Sullivan, author of "Direct Legislation"—a little book which has done much to inform American readers about the Swiss initiative and referendum. New Jersey's agitation for Swiss methods in law-making occupy the chief part of the first issue of the Record—which is founded as the organ of direct legislation in America. The Record is published at 104 Duane Street, New York, at fifty cents a year.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE FRANKLIN PUBLISHING CO., of Boston, will shortly publish a new novel by Robert Appleton, entitled "After the Manner of Men."

THE NATIONAL CITATION CO., Dublin, Tex., have succeeded Klog & Leonard in the publication of "King and Leonard's U. S. Supreme Court Citations."

MR. J. B. FERGUSON, of the firm of Ferguson & Co., booksellers of Winnipeg, was married on the 8th ult. to Miss Walsh, granddaughter of the poet Charles Heavyside, author of "Saul," "Jephthah's Daughter," etc. The happy couple have our sincere wishes for a bright and prosperous future.

THE BOW-KNOT PUB. CO., Chicago, will publish at once a volume entitled "Sophos, or, the kidnapping of the kings," by Albert Albery, a London journalist, who suggests the wholesale capture and transportation of all the monarchs of Europe as the likeliest plan by which the Socialists can effect the aims for which they are striving.

THE publication committee of the general committee on the centennial celebration of Washington's inaugural, who prepared a memorial volume of the celebration, of which an edition of 938 copies were printed, report that all of them have been disposed of and the plates destroyed. The cost of the publication has been $28,656.88. The balance of $23.44 has been turned over to the memorial arch committee.

MR. PAUL MEYER, who has just returned from Europe, reports that he has made special arrangements with foreign publishers for the publication and translation in this country of new works. His firm at an early day will make an exhibition of the original designs of Myrbach, Lynch, Rossi, and Jeannot, which have been used for the illustration of such works as "La Dame aux Camélias," "Cosmopolis," "Mensonges," etc.; and also of the choice bindings of Marius Michel, David, Kaufmann, and others.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS issue this week an interesting contribution to the literature of the Protectorate, entitled "Oliver Cromwell: a history comprising a narrative of his life, with extracts from his letters and speeches, and an account of the political, religious, and military affairs of England during his time," by Samuel Harden Church, who has made the subject a study for many years. They have also just ready a life of Newton Booth, war governor of California, together with his speeches and addresses, edited, with introduction and notes, by Lauren E. Crane.

It was recently announced that D. L. Moody, the Evangelist, had received $1,250,000 in royalties from the publishers of "Gospel Hymns" that are published under his name. This, it seems, is an error, and the statement is made upon reliable authority that neither Mr. Moody nor his faithful co-worker, Mr. Sankey, have ever received a cent from this royalty. They have refused to accept any part of it. At first it was placed in the hands of trustees, who distributed it to religious and charitable enterprises according to their judgment. Afterward, at the request of these trustees, the moderate amount of royalty has been turned over to the trustees of the Northfield and Mount Hermon seminaries.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertiser as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as "not having been received."

The Annual Literary Index,

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER and E. R. BOWKER, with the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

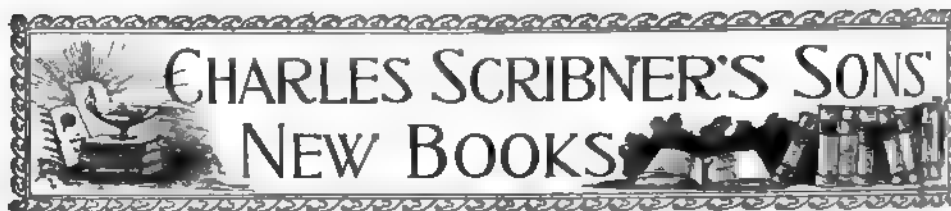

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1893 complements the "Annual American Catalogue" of books published in 1893 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1893; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1893; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1893; (5) authors deceased in 1893. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

The volume includes also the features of the "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," originally a monthly supplement to the Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly in an enlarged form, and later issued as an annual volume.

One vol., cloth, $3.50.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS NEW BOOKS

NOW READY.

A POUND OF CURE.

A Story of Monte Carlo. By W. H. BISHOP. 12mo, $1.00.

A striking novel of life at Monte Carlo. It embodies a curious picture of the growth of the gambling habit upon a young married man, whose only fault is his weakness in the presence of alluring pleasure. In addition to the very remarkable plot, the book is noteworthy for the delicate and picturesque descriptions of the scenery and Monte Carlo.

"A capital study of a man possessed by the fever of gambling."—Boston Traveller.

"A powerful story."—Pittsburg Bulletin.

TALES OF THE MAINE COAST.

By NOAH BROOKS. 12mo, $1.00.

The setting of these short stories is mainly in and around the ancient town of Castine, Maine, the birthplace and present home of the author. In addition to their romantic interest, they possess value as true sketches of the people of the Maine coast, revealing interesting types of character, and full of local color.

ALREADY PUBLISHED IN THE SERIES.

SALEM KITTREDGE,

And Other Stories. By BLISS PERRY, author of "The Broughton House." 12mo, $1.00.

"Salem Kittredge" is one of the best short stories we have read recently. There are eight other stories in this volume, all good."—Boston Advertiser.

LIFE OF ST. FRANCIS OF ASSISI.

By PAUL SABATIER. Translated from the French by Louise Seymour Houghton. 5vo, $2.50.

No work of recent years has created a greater stir in literary and religious circles than Paul Sabatier's work. The interest aroused has been widespread and sincere; prominent reviewers on the Continent and in this land pronouncing it a biography of the very first rank in historical and literary value. It has passed through numerous French editions, and is now, in answer to an eager demand, issued in an English edition for American readers.

"For long, very long, nothing has moved me so deeply as this lofty and simple story"—From ALMOND DALLERT.

"A book which can hardly fail to be masterful. It may stand on the same shelf with Voltaire's Le Fanatisme and Savonarola."—The London Express.

"We have seldom seen so masterly and careful a criticism. It is a remarkable and excellent book, nor, great as is the progress which the French historical school has recently made, have we seen a better example of it"—The London Saturday Review.

"M. Sabatier has sought to present Francis actually as, emphasizing the human side of his character. He has succeeded admirably, better, we think, than any of his predecessors."—N. Y. Evening Post.

THE EVOLUTION OF MODERN CAPITALISM.A Study of Machine Production. By JOHN HOBSON. Contemporary Science Series. Crown 8vo, $1.25.

This is a scientific inquiry into the changes of industrial structure during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. The influence of Machine Production is studied in its bearing upon quantity and regularity of employment, character of labor, remuneration of labor, the employment of women. The reaction of modern conditions upon life is treated in relation to the Industrial Town, and an attempt is made to estimate the influence of these forces in affecting a reorganization of industry and Industrial Life.

NOTES IN SEASON.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have in press a volume of stories by Mary D. Brine, entitled "Margaret Arnold's Christmas, and other stories." The volume will be profusely illustrated.

GINN & Co. will publish this summer "The First Latin Book," by W. C. Collar, headmaster of Roxbury Latin School, and M. Grant

Daniel, principal of Chauncy-Hall School, Boston.

ROBERTS BROTHERS have in press Dostoyevsky's first novel, "Poor People," published in 1848. Miss Lena Milman has made the translation and George Moore furnishes an introduction.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just published "Carlotta's Intended, and other tales," by Ruth McEnery Stuart; "An Interloper," a story of French provincial life, by Frances Mary Peard; "Our Home Pets," Mrs. Olive Thorne Miller's new book about birds, dogs, cats, etc.; and in the Black and White Series John Kendrick Bangs' "Three Weeks in Politics," and W. D. Howells' farce, entitled "Five O'Clock Tea." "The Husband of One Wife," by Mrs. Venn, is announced for immediate publication in the Franklin Square Library.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just ready "A Pound of Cure," a new novel by William Henry Bishop, which recently concluded a successful serial career in Scribner's Magazine. It is a story of Monte Carlo, picturing the growth of the gambling spirit in a young married man, who is taught by sad experience that "an ounce of prevention" would have been far preferable to the "pound of cure" that falls to his lot. They have also a volume of short stories by Noah Brooks, called "Tales of the Maine Coast," set chiefly in and around the ancient town of Castine, and full of local color and picturesque interest.

D. APPLETON & Co. have in press "Occasional Sermons and Lectures," by the Rev. John M. Kiely, pastor of the Church of the Transfiguration, Brooklyn, who is well known to Catholics and non-Catholics as a preacher and littérateur. The essays are twenty-five in number, one to each year of the ministry of the author, whose silver jubilee will soon be celebrated. The subjects are taken from a mass of his writings, and include "The Christian Family," "The Bible," "The Youth at Home and in Society," "The Dark Ages. a retrospect," "Poland: her wrongs," "European Cemeteries," "The Cross and the Crescent," "The Church and the Fine Arts," etc., etc.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just ready a volume of "Prose Fancies," by Richard Le Gallienne, with a portrait of the author by Wilson Steer; "On and Off the Saddle: characteristic sights and scenes from the Great Northwest to the Antilles," by Lisperard Rutgers; and in the Incognito Library three sketches under the title of the leading one—"The Hon. Stanbury." They will publish shortly a Students' Edition of Washington Irving's "Tales of a Traveller," edited, with an introduction and notes for the use of reading classes and of instructors and students of English literature, by William Lyon Phelps, of Yale. The "Sketch-Book" and "Alhambra" are in preparation. These volumes have been prepared with the special purpose of meeting the requirements for matriculation examinations in English literature at the colleges, and are handsomely printed on a clear, readable page. They announce a new story by Mrs. Rohlf (Anna Katharine Green, author of "The Leavenworth Case," etc.), entitled "Miss Hurd: an enigma." The story is described as one of mystery, but as quite distinct in plot and character from the author's previous books.

A consideration of "the teaching process," treating of aims and methods. The writer confines himself closely to the ethics of teaching, its nature and laws, leaving details of "school management" to be discussed in a succeeding volume. The book has three divisions: The teaching process; Aim in teaching; Method in teaching. The various branches or phases of each subject are grouped under these divisions.

social life: gleams from the east on the sacred page. Phil., J. D. Wattles & Co.,
1894. c. 18+437 p. O. cl., $2.50. [1985

The basis of this book is a series of lectures on "Oriental social life," delivered by Dr. Trumbull before the University of Pennsylvania and Yale University.
These lectures are on "Betrothals and weddings in the east," "Hospitality in the east," and "Funerals and mourning in the east." To these are added various topical studies of Oriental ideas and customs, such as "Prayers and praying in the east," "Calls for healing in the east," "The primitive idea of 'The way,'" "The Oriental idea of 'Father,'" "The Samaritan Passover, lessons of the wilderness," etc. Taken together, these chapters cover nearly the whole social life of the east, and furnish a key to the social environment of the Bible story. While the various topics of this book are presented in the light of careful study, they are treated popularly. Topical and scriptural indexes render it available for use in Bible study generally.

AN amusing little story is circulating among the friends of Miss Margot Tennant (now Mrs. Asquith) and Mr. Benson, the author of "Dodo." It is rather characteristic of the alleged prototype of that smart but flippant book, and was a clever way of administering a little snub. Mr. Benson wrote to Miss Tennant, some months after the publication of his novel, and said he hoped very much that she was not annoyed at the talk which linked her name with that of his heroine, Dodo. She answered by saying, "Dear Mr. Benson—Have you really written a book? Come and tell me about it some afternoon at tea."

from the whole, we must say of writers that they receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament therunto."—LORD BACON.

COPYRIGHT AGREEMENT BETWEEN GERMANY AND THE UNITED STATES.

DURING the last session of the German Reichstag, the bookseller, Julius Oskar Galler, offered the report of the committee appointed in 1893, which had come to the conclusion to petition to annul the copyright treaty existing between the German Empire and the United States, and to enter into no new agreement except upon the basis of complete reciprocity.

The petitioners base their claim upon the "unfairness of the existing treaty, which concedes all right to the Americans and offers the Germans very moderate reciprocal advantages."

Now, as formerly, it is claimed that it is impossible to prevent the reprinting in the United States of German scientific and literary periodicals, because it is impracticable to have such matter appear simultaneously in both countries so long as the law demands that it shall be printed from type set in America.

The periodical press therefore remains a source of plunder for American reprinters, and the great bulk of German literary production is thereby left totally unprotected in the United States.

The protection of literature appearing in book form is also complicated by the manufacturing clause in the American Copyright Act, and while the Germans gain but little their treaty forces own land.

The Royal Commissioner explained that the German at any time considered that treaty with the United States but it had hoped to secure publishers at least the measure which by the Copyright Act of the United States agreed to. As above stated the treaty work well as regards art musical works, because it two copies of such manuscript should be copyrighted simultaneously German work. The book feared to grant American more than Germans could receive they thought that the literature America would hardly offer worthy of German copyright set by the German works.

Dr. Lehmann advised striking the treaty, however, branches now fully protect maps, etc.) would again be ruthless plunderers without gained for authors or publishers hoped that little by little it could be modified, and felt themselves would realize weaknesses of the Copyright many had made so brave a to the restriction of the measure because without it the whole would again have dropped

ON EARLY ENGLISH EDITIONS OF THE BIBLE.—III.*

1557 a new translation of the New Testament was made by William Whittingham, a son-in-law of Calvin. It was printed in 1557 by Conrad Badius, at Geneva, and is interesting as giving for the first time the division of chapters into verses, using italics to distinguish words not in the Greek, and especially employing Roman type in place of the Old English or "black-letter."

One of the most popular Bibles of this period is the "Geneva version," of which about 200 editions are known; its popularity was due to the good print in Roman type and division of chapters into verses as introduced in the Whittingham version of the New Testament, already mentioned. The first edition, printed in 1550 by Rowland Hall, in Geneva, in folio, is known as the "Breeches Bible," because in Genesis iii. 7, it reads that Adam and Eve put on for themselves "breeches," instead of "loincloths." The second edition, published in 1557 in folio, with no printer's name, was called the "Whig Bible" from another printer's error, in which the attitude "Blessed are the peace-makers," was printed as "Blessed are the place-makers." The third "new" edition, of 1569, was really only a reprint but the remainder of the third edition was printed with a new title-page—a proof that even in those days the publisher's trick of issuing an old book with a new title, in order to make new work was not unknown. All these and many other editions were printed abroad. The first edition of the Geneva version printed in England, published in 1576, in folio, by Christopher Barker, holder of an exclusive privilege for printing Bibles granted by Queen Elizabeth. This privilege was held by the Barkers for one hundred and thirty years, was then transferred to William Baskett,† who kept the right for sixty years and was finally conferred upon John Eyre, one of the present London publishing firm of Spottiswoode, which still makes a speciality of religious and devotional books.

Under Edward VI. (1547–1553), and even during the reign of Mary Tudor (1553–1558) no special laws were enacted against the reading or circulation of the Bible, but no new translations appeared during this period. In 1543 Parliament passed an act, prohibiting the reading of the Bible save by certain classes; Tyndale's New Testament was specially stigmatized as "crafty, false, and untrue," its chief adversary being Archbishop Cranmer, who seems to have transferred his animosity toward Tyndale even to the work. This act was revoked by Edward VI. during his reign many editions of the Bible translations were circulated. Of the London printers then established, fully thirty were engaged in bringing out editions of the whole Bible or of different portions of it. Although no laws definitely suppressing the Bible were enacted, yet, under both Edward VI. and Mary Tudor, various edicts prohibiting the publication, circulation or possession of "revolutionary" books were promulgated, which indirectly restricted its use. In 1536 Mary granted to the Stationers' Company a privilege, which acknowledged its organization and conferred upon it the right to establish regulations for the ordering and guidance of printers, restricting the privilege of printing or selling books to members of the company, and making it the duty of the association to enforce strict execution of the laws relating to the craft.*

Although the Geneva version had attained a wide popularity and was in general use, its omissions, misprints, and many defects made a new translation of the Bible very necessary. This need was especially felt after the accession of Elizabeth, and Archbishop Parker was foremost in urging the necessity of a new and accurate translation which should be free from party spirit and should represent the best Biblical knowledge of the day. He first intended to entrust the work entirely to laymen, but this effort was unsuccessful, and the translation was made by a number of clergymen, whose initials are given at the end of their contributions in the folio edition of the work—known as the "Bishops' Bible." The first edition of the "Bishops' Bible," which after completion was formally sanctioned by the convocation, appeared in folio in 1568, and was printed by Richard Jugge. A copy was solemnly presented to Queen Elizabeth on October 5, 1568. Of this version nineteen different editions were published, all more or less revised; of these the greater number were in folio and quarto, one only being in octavo. The second edition, printed by Jugge in 1569, is in small quarto, being intended for large circulation and family use, while the first edition was chiefly intended to be read in churches. In the second edition the printers, to save space, abridged the headings of chapters and omitted the numerous wood-cuts that adorned the first. The third edition, which appeared in 1572, was printed on better paper than the first and second editions, and was illustrated; but several of the thirty illustrations were taken from an illustrated edition of—horribile dictu—Ovid's Metamorphoses! The head-piece to the Epistle to the Hebrews represents Leda with the swan—which has given to the edition the name of "The Leda Bible." Several corrections and improvements in the former editions were neglected in this, and several misprints that had been corrected in the second edition were repeated in this third edition. One error that, strange to say, is found in all the succeeding editions containing the "Prayer-book Psalms," occurred in psalm 37, where verse 39 reads "The righteous shall be punished," instead written and condensed from the original MSS. of an extensive essay by Ed. Ackermann, under the same first English edition of the Bible issued in America, brought out surreptitiously by Kneeland & Green, Boston printers, in 1752, with the London imprint of Baskett, Printer to the King's Most Excellent Majesty. See article entitled "The Aitkin Bible" in June 10, 1893. Vol. xliii., p. 883.

* The powerful corporation known as the Stationers' Company comprised at that time the entire book trade—printers, publishers, booksellers, news-vendors, and stationers in the modern sense of the term. The name was derived from the scribes or MSS. vendors of the fourteenth century, who were known as stationarii from their practice of establishing themselves permanently near universities or monasteries, in contrast to the practice of the itinerant peddlers. The stationarii, as such, were first known in Paris in 1275. In London the headquarters of the stationarii were in the neighborhood of St. Paul's—which is still the booksellers' quarter. Queen Mary's "privilege" first recognized them as a corporate body, and the organization increased in strength and numbers through succeeding years. They established a fund, to which all members were forced to contribute, and they were made by legal enactment the censors of the press and strict guardians of the printing laws. The growth of the company, its restrictions and its regulations, are most interesting.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

A TEST CASE UNDER THE LAW OF FORFEITURE.

THE case of H. B. Stranahan against John W. Taylor & Co., brought in the United States Circuit Court in Cleveland, O., on the 11th inst., under the law of forfeiture, is one of the few of the kind ever brought in the United States. The suit is based on the new feature of the copyright law, which prohibits publishers not only from copying and publishing other publishers' property, but taking a part of the publication and publishing it as their own. Stranahan claims that Taylor & Co. have taken out a piece of his map of the United States and published it as their own.

IN RE THE DECISION IN THE SUIT OF MAYNARD, MERRILL & CO. vs. W. B. HARRISON.

THE United States Circuit Court of Appeals, as already reported, reversed recently an order which was granted to Maynard, Merrill & Co., restraining William Beverley Harrison from selling an educational work copyrighted by the complainants. In addition to the information already printed the court held that the right to restrain the sale of particular copies of a book by virtue of the copyright statutes is gone "when the owner of the copyright and of that copy has conferred an absolute title to the copy upon a purchaser, although with an agreement for a restricted use. The exclusive right to vend the particular copy no longer remains in the owner of the copyright by the copyright statute. The new purchaser cannot reprint the copy, he cannot print or publish a new edition of the book; but the copy having been absolutely sold to him, the ordinary incidents of ownership in personal property, among which is the right of alienation, attach to it. If he has agreed that he will not sell it for certain purposes or to certain persons, and violates his agreement and sells to an innocent purchaser, he can be punished for a violation of his agreement, but neither is guilty, under the copyright statutes, of an infringement."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

A STATUE of Whittier was unveiled in Haverhill, Mass., on the 6th inst., by the Haverhill Whittier Club.

THE Rev. Dr. E. A. Dunning, the editor of The Congregationalist, is to write a history of Congregationalism.

RICHARD WATSON GILDER, the editor of the Century, is preparing for publication a complete edition of his poems, which will soon be brought out.

THE Pope has sent to press a work describing all the acts of his papal reign. In high ecclesiastical quarters it is considered to be Leo's politico-religious testament.

WILLIAM WALDORF ASTOR is at work on a new novel embodying his theories of the social system, and expounding that form of humane socialism, of which it is reported, unknown to many, he approves.

C. S. REINHART, the artist, is about to make his appearance as a writer of fiction. His story, "Un Mauvais Quart d'Heure," is to be published with his own illustrations in the next number of Harper's.

HARRIET BEECHER STOWE was nominally 82 years of age on the 14th inst.; but according to The Hartford (Conn.) Times she was really 83. It explains the matter thus: "The Times has once before stated that the biographies and cyclopædias are all in error as to the year of her birth, and also concerning the natal year of Henry Ward Beecher. Both are published as having been born one year later than they actually were. A consultation of 'the old family Bible' settles it; Mrs. Stowe was born in 1811 and Henry Ward in 1812."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Pall Mall Gazette has secured Robert Louis Stevenson's next novel for $15,000.

F. MARION CRAWFORD will begin in the July number of The Century a novelette entitled "Love in Idleness," which will run through the summer.

Books and Authors is the title of a neatly printed monthly review of religious, economic, and ethical literature published by Fleming H. Revell Co. Each issue contains besides notices of the more prominent religious books and general literary notes a sketch of some leading Evangelical pastor with his portrait.

"AN interesting literary find" is announced, in the discovery of a number of unpublished letters by Edgar Allan Poe. These were found among the papers of Poe's biographer, Dr. Rufus W. Griswold, by his son, W. M. Griswold, of Cambridge. The correspondence has been placed for editing in the hands of Prof. George E. Woodberry, the author of the standard life of Poe, and it will appear in The Century in three parts, dealing, respectively, with Poe's life in Richmond, Philadelphia, and New York. The correspondence includes many letters to Poe by the leading literary men of his time, and the whole is said to throw much new light on Poe's life and character.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

WHO publishes "Little Women of India," by Dr. Ryder? CENTRAL.

JAMES O'NEILL, 521 Seventh Street, Washington, D. C., has recently come into possession of a seemingly scarce book concerning the market value of which he should be pleased to have some information. The full title of his "find" is: "A Selection, from the Ancient Music of Ireland, arranged for the Flute or Violin, some of the most admired Melodies, adapted to American Poetry, chiefly composed by John McCreery, to which is prefixed historical and critical observations on Ancient Irish Music. Petersburg: Printed by Yancey & Burton, Intelligencer Press, Bank Street, 1824." This collection was highly prized during the years prior to the War of the Rebellion. It was also supposed to have suggested to the poet Moore the idea of his Irish melodies, Moore having been a fellow-student at Trinity College, Dublin, with Dr. Thos. Robinson, who furnished the preface to McCreery's book. Mr. O'Neill has made general inquiries, but cannot learn that any of the larger libraries either have the work or are acquainted with it. An imperfect copy was sold at a London auction about twenty-five years ago for $8.75. Can any of our readers throw any light on the subject?

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE original manuscript of Hawthorne's "Snow Image" was sold privately in New York City a few weeks since.

THE A. R. KELLER Co., Philadelphia, have just issued the first part of the third edition of "The History of the Supreme Court."

MACMILLAN & Co. have just ready the long-expected volume of Ruskin's "Verona, and other lectures." The work is copyrighted here.

STANLEY J. WEYMAN'S novel, "The Man in Black," is announced by Hurst & Co. and the J. S. Ogilvie Publishing Co., both of New York, and by F. T. Neely, of Chicago.

GEORGE ALLEN, London, will publish at once Ruskin's "Letters to a College Friend," which promises to be of exceptional interest, having been written when Mr. Ruskin was full of his plans for "Modern Painters."

BLISS, of London, has just issued an important contribution to the Shelley literature under the title "An Account of Shelley's Visits to France, Switzerland, and Savoy." The author is Mr. Charles I. Elton.

HENRY N. STEVENS, of London, will shortly issue the posthumous works of his father, Henry Stevens, of Vermont. These writings, which should prove of interest to American and English bibliographers, will be brought out in eleven volumes.

FROUDE's Oxford lectures on Erasmus are to be published soon by Longmans, Green & Co. There are complaints at the university that ladies have attended these lectures in such numbers that neither undergraduates nor graduates have found room.

THE SCHULTE PUBLISHING Co. have just ready the "Memoirs of the International Congress of Anthropology," which embraces the important papers read before the Congress held in Chicago during the World's Fair, edited by C. Staniland Wake.

MATHEWS & LANE, London, promise a translation of the plays of the Spanish dramatist Echegaray. Although probably known to but few English readers this writer, who has been called "the Spanish Ibsen," is one of the very first of living dramatists in southern Europe. The plays are being translated by Miss Hannah Lynch.

JOHN B. PIET, Baltimore, Md., has just ready "The Principles of the Religious Life: being an explanation and amplification of the Catechism of the Vows," by Rev. Pierre Cotel, S. J., author of the "Catechism of the Vows," translated from the third Paris edition, by L. W. Reilly.

A COPY of the exceedingly rare George Scott's "Model of the Government of the Province of East New Jersey," Edinburgh, 1685, was sold at Bangs the other day for $122 to a Mr. Ely. The copy was in fine condition but lacked a preliminary leaf. The Murphy copy, in poor state, sold for $105.

THE English papers are mentioning as a marvel the large price paid by the Pall Mall Magazine for George Meredith's novel, "Lord Ormond and His Aminta." This is fifty dollars a thousand words—which is not so very large a price, taking American standards. "Lord Ormond," by the way, will be published in book form this month.

THE St. James' Gazette in its issue for May 25 caused a sensation by announcing the approaching publication of a book, giving a full inside history of the Irish revolutionary movement. Its author is P. J. Tynan, the notorious "No. 1," whose name came so prominently before the public at the time of the Phoenix Park murders on May 6, 1882. The publication, it is announced, will give the entire story of the murders and of the whole movement with which the Irish revolutionary and parliamentary parties have been connected since 1861.

A CABLE despatch from London says that the second volume of Meneval's "Memoirs of Napoleon" extends to a more important period of his career, and has the same admiring, defensive survey which marked its predecessor. The volume contains much new and extremely interesting personal matter, particularly relating to Josephine and the divorce. It closes with an explanation of the causes that precipitated the invasion of Russia. Its intense anti-English tone naturally raises criticism and rebuttal in England, just as it has helped the popularity of the work in France.

THE first alleged violation of the new Maryland law, which prohibits the sale or exhibition to a minor of newspapers or literary or pictorial sheets, devoted exclusively to the publication of police news, or containing obscene matter, has led to the arrest of Schaefer & Harold, news-dealers, of 700 North Fremont Avenue, in Baltimore. The dealers are charged with selling two copies of a local paper, which is, so the charge entered in the police record says, "made up of criminal news," to a minor, Benjamin Harris, a colored boy. Examination was waived and they were released on bail for the action of the Criminal Court. The penalty for conviction is a fine of not more than $100 or imprisonment for one year in jail, or both, at the discretion of the court.

THE National Educational Association of the United States has published a valuable volume of the "Proceedings of the International Congress of Education" at the Columbian Exposition in Chicago, held on July 25 to 28, 1893. The subjects discussed were relative to general problems of higher, secondary, and elementary education, kindergarten instruction, school supervision, the professional training of teachers, art instruction, instruction in vocal music, technological instruction, industrial and manual instruction, business education, physical education, rational psychology in education, experimental psychology in education, and educational publications. The addresses were made by representative professors of all nations, and the entire work was inspired by the most commendable spirit of earnest study, and was admirably aided by unanimity of desire to arrive at practical conclusions.

ARTHUR YOUNG, the clever Chicago cartoonist, whose "Hell up to Date" is in its seventh edition, is engaged on a new artwork on entirely different lines. He is interpreting pictorially selected short stories by Eugene Field, Hamlin Garland, Ople Read, James Whitcomb Riley, and others, and is also drawing portraits of the authors whose works will appear in the book. Mr. Young's success in depicting the grotesque and horrible, after the style of Doré, has led some people to believe that his talent with the pencil is confined to that branch of the caricaturist's art. But he is capable of drawing pictures that appeal to the heart and awaken the finer emotions, and the new book which will be issued by the Schulte Publishing Company is to make evident this fact. It will undoubtedly be as well received as the work which pictures the infernal regions in accordance with modern ideas.

D. APPLETON & Co. have made arrangements for an interesting lot of fiction. Among them is S. R. Crockett's next volume, "The Lilac Sunbonnet," and Dr. Conan Doyle's coming novels. They will publish Hall Caine's "The Manxman" in the fall. In their Town and Country Library will soon appear "Outlaw and Lawmaker," by Mrs. Campbell Praed; "A Mild Barbarian," by Edgar Fawcett; and "Dr. Janet of Harley Street," by Arabella Kenealy. They will also publish Miss Kate Sanborn's "Abandoning an Adopted Farm," which recounts her amusing failure in adopting a farm previously abandoned by some one else, forming a sequel to her former book on the same subject. This will appear in their Handy Volume Series, in which they will reissue "Mrs. Limber's Raffle," a novel by William Allen Butler, published anonymously some ten years ago and now first acknowledged by the author of "Nothing to Wear."

IN an addenda to the sale of the late Hon. P. H. Watson's library at Bangs & Co.'s rooms on the 20th inst., there was a particularly interesting item, i. e., the original ms. of Robert Fulton's plan for the destruction of the British, and was thus described:

FULTON'S PLAN FOR THE DESTRUCTION OF THE BRITISH.

FULTON, ROBERT, Inventor of the Steamboat. An original autograph document of four large and closely written quarto pages, entirely in Fulton's legible hand and signed in full, addressed to the First Consul (Napoleon Bonaparte), being his original draft of a scheme by which British ports could be blockaded and their shipping destroyed by means of "plunging boats and carcasses," i. e., submarine vessels and torpedos, dated "Brest the 19th of fructidore An 9."

In beautiful condition. This unique and most interesting historical document was obtained direct from a lineal descendant of Robert Fulton's, and is probably the most valuable piece relating to him extant. It has been stated by historians that Napoleon was heard to have in later years expressed regrets that he had not taken Fulton's proffered aid. Had the desires expressed in this document been carried out, there is little doubt the termination of the wars between France and England would have been materially different.

In the same sale were a number of American first editions, a copy of Prynne's "Histrio-Mastix," for the writing of which Prynne had his nose and ears split and cropped, to say nothing of the pleasing addition of having the letters S. S. (sower of sedition) branded on each cheek with a red-hot iron; a Greek lexicon that was taken among General Burgoyne's effects at Saratoga; a set of rare tracts by William Morris, and a number of other interesting items.

THE representatives in England of R. L. Stevenson have made arrangements to issue a collected edition of his works, which have hitherto been produced by different publishers and in various forms. The total number of volumes will amount to twenty, subdivided into sections, such as Travels and Excursions, Tales and Fantasies, etc.; and the volumes in each section will be numbered separately, so as to allow of the addition of any future works. It is proposed to include articles and papers not hitherto published in a collected form, such as: "The Pentland Rising" (1866); "The Philosophy of an Umbrella," written in college days; the suppressed "Amateur Emigrant" (1880), giving the author's experiences in the steerage of an American liner; and many unsigned contributions to the Portfolio. Mr. Stevenson is himself revising and rearranging these miscellaneous papers, though the actual publication will be under the supervision of his friend, Mr. Sidney Colvin. With the exception of some frontispieces, including an etched portrait of the author by W. Hole, it is intended that the book shall be printed without embellishment, but with the best materials and workmanship that modern resources can supply. A special paper is being made, with R. L. S. for water-mark on each page; and it may be that an entirely new type will be cut. The size will be a moderately large octavo, about 6 by 9 inches; and the binding will be in plain cloth (with paper back-titles). The public subscription will be limited to one thousand copies, each guaranteed by the signature of Charles Baxter, of Edinburgh, to whom "Kidnapped" was dedicated. The printers chosen for the work are T. & A. Constable; the London agents are Chatto & Windus, and the agents for the United States are Charles Scribner's Sons. It is hoped that the first volume will be ready for issue by October.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Hennessey & Hawley, book-sellers, have been closed up by the sheriff.

CHICAGO, ILL.—The co-partnership heretofore existing between Fred. C. Laird and W. H. Lee, under the firm-name of Laird & Lee, was dissolved on the 19th inst. by mutual consent, Fred. C. Laird retiring. The business will be continued by W. H. Lee under the name of Laird & Lee.

NEW YORK CITY.—The H. W. Hagemann Publishing Co. has recently been formed, with H. W. Hagemann as president. Mr. Hagemann is well known to the book trade at large through his connection with it for over twenty years, first with D. Appleton & Co., later with Charles Scribner's Sons, and more recently with the Worthington Company. The new firm announces that it is its intention to publish books of sterling quality only, and to make a special feature of works of fiction and children's books. They will shortly issue new editions of the novels of such well-known authors as Marlitt, Helmburg, François Coppée, R. M. Manley, Anne Reeve Aldrich, Florence Marryat, Nataly von Eschstruth, Katherine King, and others, concerning which their new catalogue, now in press, will afford full information. They have also in preparation a line of juveniles.

PORTLAND, ORE.—The J. K. Gill Company has made an assignment to W. B. Ayer.

NOTES IN SEASON.

EDWIN W. DAYTON, 641 Madison Ave., N. Y., has just ready a work on "The History, Manufacture, and Religious Symbolism of the Scarabeus in Ancient Egypt, Sardinia, Etruria, etc., also, remarks on the learning, philosophy, arts, etc., of these people," by Dr. Isaac Myer.

W. H. LOWDERMILK & Co. have just put upon the market "The Missing Link in Shorthand: a treatise on legibility and the acquirement of speed in stenographic writing," by Samuel C. Durham. The book, which is controlled by Lowdermilk & Co., is published by the author. It contains numerous photo-lithographed facsimiles of the original typewritten manuscript, and is a compact octavo of about one hundred and fifty pages.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish at once the first volume of the eagerly-awaited "Memoirs of the Baron de Meneval," private secretary of Napoleon I., in which the author describes his first meeting with Napoleon, and pictures the latter's personal habits and daily life. They will also publish shortly "The Purple Light of Love," a story of New York and Newport, by Henry Goelet McVickar. The latest issue in their Town and Country Library is "A Daughter of Music," by G. Colmore (Mrs. Colmore Dunn), which is attracting a remarkable degree of attention in England at present. Mrs. Dunn is the author of "A Conspiracy of Silence," which title for the past six years has been recognized as a political phrase in and out of England.

P. BLAKISTON, SON & Co. have just issued an important work in Dr. George M. Gould's "Illustrated Dictionary of Medicine, Biology, and Allied Sciences." Dr. Gould is already well known as a dictionary-maker, two of his earlier works having become quite popular. His purpose in the present work has been to make a standard medical dictionary, complete and exact. He has been aided by a large corps of assistants, and one of the chief aims has been to incorporate all the new words in recent medical literature; to do this the new medical books together with a large amount of periodical literature have been carefully gone over. A unique feature of the work is the incorporation of a large number of illustrations. Another very important feature is the number of important tables, wherein large arrays of facts are brought together and classified, giving to the book an encyclopædic character. Among these we may point out tables of acids, arteries, bacteria, electric batteries, breath sounds, analysis of milk, ducts, fetometry, foods, hernias, hydro-carbons, lines, murmurs, paralyzes, parasites, pigments, planes, points, postures, rales, soaps, stains, triangles, tumors, and a large number of others.

HARPER & BROTHERS have nearly ready "Portraits in Plaster," from the collection of Lawrence Hutton. This volume has the initial attractiveness of novelty of topic, which indeed is almost startlingly interesting. Mr. Hutton's large collection of casts of the faces of eminent men and women, of all types and epochs, has long been famous in the circle of his private acquaintance, and can be catalogued as unique in its scope and dignity. A brief history and survey of it is here afforded the public, the profuse illustrations adding a most essential aid to the reader's study of them. The text is pleasant reading—reminiscences and biographic notes and comments furnishing forth part of it—and is illustrated with 72 reproductions of the faces described. They also announce "The Scarlet Poppy, and other stories," by Harriet Prescott Spofford. This volume displays all of Mrs. Spofford's wealth of vocabulary, ability in the arrangement of situation, and charming individuality. It contains the following stories: "The Scarlet Poppy," "Best Laid Schemes," "An Ideal," "Mrs. Claxton's Skeleton," "The Tragic Story of Binns," "The Composite Wife," and "Mr. Van Nore's Daughter-in-law."

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr. n. p. of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade on application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name; as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: C. D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nathaniel; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Adams, W. T. ["Oliver Optic," pseud.] Up and down the Nile; or, young adventurers in Africa. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1894. c. 10+352 p. il. D. (All-over-the-world lib., 2d ser., v. 3.) cl., $1.25. [1894]

In this volume the voyage of the Guardian Mother temporarily suspended at Alexandria, while the excursionists make their trip up and down the great river of Egypt in another steamer more suitable for inland navigation. The exploration of Egypt by the characters of the former volumes of the series is assisted by lectures and conversations on the history of Egypt, which place the story of this wonderful country in attractive shape for young readers.

Alberg, Albert. Sophos; or, kidnapping the kings: a fin de siècle vision. Chic., The Bow-Knot Pub. Co., 1894. c. 2-301 p. por. D. (White star ser., v. 1, no. 1.) pap., 50 c. [1895]

A society of Socialists, having its headquarters in London, plan a bloodless revolution; their scheme is to carry off all the monarchs of Europe to a tropical island, and keep them there for the remainder of their lives. Sophos, a Greek, who has sought refuge in the house of a Jew in Soho, London, describes, while in a clairvoyant state, the details of the abduction of Queen Victoria, the Emperor William, King Humbert, and others.

Allen, Stanton P. A summer revival, and what brought it about. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, [1894.] c. 5+200 p. il. D. cl., $1. [1896]

An autobiographical sketch of the author of "Down in Dixie." It tells of his early life in the army during the Civil War, how he contracted the habits of smoking and drinking, swearing, etc., of how he was reformed and became a preacher in the Methodist Church.

Armstrong, R. Chimneys for furnaces and steam-boilers. 3d Amer. ed., rev. and partly rewritten, with an appendix on theory of chimney draught, by F. E. Idell. N. Y., D. Van Nostrand Co., 1894. 16. (Van Nostrand's science ser., no. 1.) hds., 50 c. [1897]

Bishop, W. H. A pound of cure: a story of Monte Carlo. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. c. 5-200 p. D. cl., $1. [1898]

The picturesque scenery about Monte Carlo is admirably described. The story, enacted in its midst, illustrates the growth of the gambler's spirit in a young American, who, from a tract of land to the cities at Monte Carlo made in a spirit of fun, becomes a desperate gambler, and is led to the verge of suicide. The hero is an illustration of American boys, and is the possessor of a charming home, and a wife and child whom he dearly loves.

Blitz, Mrs. A. An Australian millionaire: a novel. N. Y., Ward, Lock & Bowden, Ltd., 1894. 498 p. 12. cl., $1. [1899]

Bourget, Paul. Steep-chase (Maurice Olivier); tr. by André Brouillet. N. Y., Meyer Bros & Co., 1894. 1-152 p. T. (Collection Lemerre illus rev.) pap., 60 c. [1900]

In a beautiful valley of France a young French widow spends a season surrounded by four or five lovers, whose characters are dissected with the scalpel of Bourget, who is an expert in psychology. The young widow encounters and discards them in and her final choice is a surprise almost to Maurice Olivier is her young cousin, which is for the sub-title of the romance.

Brooks, Noah. Tales of the Maine N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1894. 271 p. D. cl., $1.

The setting of these short tales is mainly around the ancient town of Castine, Me., disguised under the name of "Fairport." That is the birthplace, and is the present habitation of the author, who has sketched many of his characteristic life. The titles of the stories are: Pans the apparition of Jo Murch, The hereditary phantom sailor; The honor of a family, The Nautilus Island; A century ago.

Butler, J. W., D.D. Sketches of Mes prehistoric, primitive, colonial, and times: lectures at Syracuse University the Graves foundation, 1894. N. Y., & Eaton, 1894. c. 9+316 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

The subjects of the eight lectures are: 1. Information; 2. Origin of the Mexicans; 3. The Mexicans; 4. Early Mexicans and their last Moctezumas and the King David of Mexico; 5. The fall of the Aztecs; 6. Independence and the fall of 1867; 7. New life in Mexico.

This is a third edition, rewritten and elaborated, of "The Swedish system of educational gymnastics." While the author deemed it desirable to change the title into "Special kinesiology" it being a treatise on the mechanics, effects, and classification of special exercises—the subject-matter still describes the Swedish system of educational gymnastics.
- Prévost, Marcel. Les demi-vierges. N. Y., Meyer Bros. & Co., 1894. 12+360 p. D. pap., $1. [2024]
A startling arraignment of the lives led by idle society girls throughout the world according to the author, although he traces the contamination of his countrywomen to English influence and example. In the fierce struggle for position in society for rich marriages and political power, he thinks the womanhood of mothers and daughters suffers unavoidably. Girls become calculating, and learn to trifle with temptation and vice while sedulously sacrificing lovers and friends to their low ambitions.

In the heroine is offered a character study of a modern society woman. She marries three times; her first husband, a captain in the English army, is killed suddenly through an accident, and she is left a widow with a beautiful boy and little means at the age of twenty-five, after three years of widowhood she marries a distinguished clergyman of the Church of England, old enough to be her father, and breaks his heart with her folly and extravagance. In her third marriage she seems to find contentment.

Villeneuve, L. de. Truth: a novel. N. Y., published by the author, L. de Villeneuve, [for sale by the Gestefeld Library and Pub. Co.,] 1894. 7+369 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c. [2032]

"Truth" was the name conferred on a beautiful young southern girl by her grandfather, who was a noted northern doctor and a strong believer in theosophy. The scene varies, being first in the south, then in the north, later on the continent. The story offers striking contrasts in the two matrimonial ventures of Truth, and introduces instances of psychic phenomena and spiritual manifestations.

Woods, Virna. A modern Magdalene. F. Lee & Shepard, 1894. c. 2—346 p. I $1.25.

The story of a gifted young girl of good family who elopes with a married man. The opening scene is in a town of Ohio, where the girl plays the organ in a leading church, and the man, a journalist of reputation, is the tenor of the choir. They excuse their love because the man is so well married, and because of its strength and joy. They fly to San Francisco, where they have a few days of happiness; but the sudden death of the hero leaves the girl with her little child out into poverty and goes through all the gradations of vice and misery before death releases her.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JUNE 30, 1894.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE WEBSTER SETTLEMENT PLAN.

It was a surprise to the trade when Charles L. Webster & Company assigned, because it was supposed that any enterprise undertaken by "everybody's friend," Mr. Clemens—who seemed to have a business mascot at hand in all his pecuniary affairs—could not be otherwise than successful. It was still more a surprise, and an unpleasant one, to find that on the eve of the assignment all the copyrights of Mark Twain's works had been transferred to Mrs. Clemens as the largest creditor, leaving other creditors of the firm or of its partners to divide what might be left. It is a final surprise that the assets of the firm, which were at first reputed to be worth one hundred cents on the liabilities, should prove to be in such shape that the creditors are asked to co-operate in continuing the business lest they should realize but a small percentage on their claims.

The plan of continuing the business proposes that creditors should unite in authorizing three trustees—Mr. Wm. H. Payne, president of the Mount Morris Bank; Mr. Bainbridge Colby, lawyer, the assignee; and Mr. Charles Barrow, recently connected with the Webster firm—to continue the business, at the risk of the creditors, up to July 1, 1895. At the close of this period, should a majority in interest of the creditors so decide, the business is still further to be continued by the same three trustees.

The plan is very simple. It practically makes all the creditors liable for obligations incurred by the trustees, which do not seem to be limited by the conditions of the instrument but only by the credits which the trustees may be able to obtain. It is fairly questionable whether in case any one creditor were not in a position to pay his share of any such obligation the other creditors might not be additionally liable to that extent, even if any one creditor under the conditions of the peculiar trust might not be held liable for the entire debt. This is the more important, because among the creditors are the Mount Morris Bank and other incorporated institutions, and in case the officers of these had not been duly authorized to pledge the capital of their respective institutions to this plan, their liability might not be recognized by courts and increased burdens might thus be thrown upon the unincorporated creditors. Moreover, as three or four of the large creditors, one of which is the bank and another of which is represented by the second of the trustees, constitute a majority in interest of the creditors, they might, at the end of the period, compel all the other creditors to unite willy nilly in continuing a business which may have been unprofitable the first year. As a matter of fact, the control of the business would doubtless be left by the other trustees practically in the hands of the only one of the three who has any working knowledge of the book business.

The circumstances are, of course, somewhat different from those of the ordinary receivership, because here the creditors are asked to join, without the intervention of a court, in proceedings to protect their interests. On the other hand, the scheme has not the benefit of court protection, which is theoretically if not practically an advantage in the case of receiverships. But it involves very seriously the old question, whether it is well to throw good money after bad by continuing a business which has been unsuccessful, and thus continuing also a competition which is scarcely on even terms with the business of houses which have not failed.

We give this analysis of the plan, not because it is of large importance in itself but because it may become a suggestion for solving other difficulties of the kind, and it seems to us that it might be very disastrous in the long run, if a plan were to become general by which those who had lost money were to be expected either as a matter of good nature or as a matter of business adjustment to furnish capital to continue a business already proved by the fact of its failure to have been unsuccessful. The general adoption of such a plan would certainly not improve the business morale of the book trade.

teachers' aids, or works on education, or books of reference. It has been our desire to prepare and publish a list of this class of books as supplementary to the EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE proper, but we have never been able to obtain adequate trade support for a publication which is costly and not justifiable without distinct support. There are large classes of books such as American, English, and other foreign authors, annotated for schools, whose number has become legion, which are undoubtedly of wide use and which might fairly be included in the educational list but for the physical limits of manufacture. The EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE is used for circulation by jobbers and retailers, and therefore cannot be extended to the limits of a large work, such as the "Annual Catalogue." There are other works issued by publishers abroad which are imported by the American branch houses or other agents in small editions or in a fair number of copies, which also would have a claim to place in the EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, were it possible to publish such a catalogue in extenso.

It is the desire of this office always to furnish the best cataloguing facilities that the trade will pay for. Within these limits the EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE has to be made. It does not pretend to absolute completeness; it does, however, endeavor to fulfil the practical need of most booksellers and most teachers, dealing with subjects and grades connected with the great body of common school education. We regret exceedingly that we cannot honor the request of many of our friends to include the duty of the public authorities to suppress. It would be quite as unjustifiable to condemn the writings of Shakespeare and Chaucer and Laurence Sterne, the early English novelists, the playwrights of the Restoration and the dramatic literature which has so much enriched the English language as to place an interdict upon these volumes which have received the admiration of literary men for so many years. What has become standard literature of the English language—has been wrought into the very structure of our splendid English literature—is not to be pronounced at this late day unfit for publication or circulation, and stamped with judicial disapprobation as hurtful to the community. The works under consideration are the product of the greatest literary genius.

"Payne's 'Arabian Nights' is a wonderful exhibition of Oriental scholarship, and the other volumes have so long held a supreme rank in literature that it would be absurd to call them now foul and unclean. A seeker after the sensual and degrading parts of a narrative may find in all these works, as in those of other great authors, something to satisfy his prurency. But to condemn a standard literary work because of a few of its episodes would compel the exclusion from circulation of a very large proportion of the works of fiction of the most famous writers of the English language. There is no such evil to be feared from the sale of these rare and costly books as the imagination of many even well-disposed people might apprehend. They rank with the higher literature, and would not be bought nor appreciated by the class of people from whom unclean publications ought to be withheld. They are not corrupting in their influence upon the young, for they are not likely to reach them. I am satisfied that it would be a wanton destruction of property to prohibit the sale by the receiver of these works, for if their sale ought to be prohibited, the books should be burned, but I find no reason in law, morals, or expediency why they should not be sold for the benefit of the creditors of the receivership. The receiver is therefore allowed to sell these volumes."

NORTHWESTERN BOOKSELLERS' AND NEWSDEALERS' ASSOCIATION.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., June 24, 1894.

To the Book Trade of the United States:

THE third annual meeting of the Northwestern Booksellers' and Newsdealers' Association will be held in the spacious and handsome ladies' ordinary of the West Hotel, Minneapolis, Minn., July 10, 11, and 12. A cordial invitation is not only extended to the book and news trade of all the States in the Northwest, but to those all over the United States; publishers, importers, and wholesale dealers generally, are also requested to send representatives to meet the trade during the week of July 10 to 14.

The secretary has just finished the "Handbook" for 1894, which contains a history of the Association, proceedings for the last two years, constitution, by-laws, proceedings of other book and newsdealers' associations, and many valuable hints to the trade. It contains nearly 100 8vo pages, and is the first book of the kind ever printed. It is safe to say while it contains, perhaps, some errors, it will be a handy book, especially for the trade in the Northwest. It will be sent free to all members and special dealers throughout the Northwest. To those who have not already received one, the secretary will forward a copy on receipt of a two-cent stamp to pay postage.

In the coming convention many subjects of vital importance will come up for consideration, and we believe that any book or newsdealer in the Northwest who neglects to attend the same will lose, not only financially, but otherwise.

Dealers who have a lot of slow books—school or miscellaneous—would do well to bring lists of same, giving dates, condition, and other information. Perhaps some exchange might be made with other dealers.

CHAS. D. RAYMER, Secretary.

NATIONAL ASS'N OF NEWSDEALERS, BOOKSELLERS, AND STATIONERS OF U. S.

THE National Association has issued the following circular to the trade:

Twelve years ago the above Association was organized for social intercourse and protection, hoping that business benefits would follow, believing that by thorough organization and united efforts only can we expect to influence publishers and manufacturers to regulate discounts, establish uniform retail prices, and correct the many abuses now so sadly affecting the interests of the book and newsdealer.

North Carolina, Alabama, Minnesota, and Virginia, besides New York and several other cities, have local associations working with more or less satisfactory results, and we hope to organize at least six more States, and strengthen those already organized.

Won't you help? It is as much to your interest as ours. Can't you get a meeting of the book and newsdealers in your immediate vicinity and organize an association, taking in only reliable dealers that you can count on to stand by any agreement entered into, then call a State meeting at some accessible point and organize a State Book and Newsdealers' Association? . . .

We shall be pleased to have dealers from other States meet with us in New York City, August 15, 1894, our annual meeting, when we will be working under general business, and can show more of the practical workings of our Association than we care to give in a circular letter. Start now, and keep it up until you succeed in organizing a State Association.

VIRGINIA BOOKSELLERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE annual meeting of the Virginia Booksellers' Association will be held at Princess Anne Hotel, Virginia Beach, on Tuesday and Wednesday, July 17-18, 1894. President T. S. Beckwith, in sending out the invitations to the meeting, remarks that while the Association has not accomplished all that had been hoped for, it has nevertheless done much good work. Its present condition regarding the question of text-books, to which special attention has been given, is more satisfactory than that of dealers in any other State, so far as can be ascertained. The president urges all members to attend this meeting and to take active part in the discussion of trade matters, specially emphasizing "the absolute necessity of our sticking together as an association, for through such organization is the only this meeting on all publishers or booksellers who are in favor of State or international booksellers' associations, believing that in such movements lies the only hope of a successful following of bookselling as a profession.

Arrangements for special rates at the hotel have been made for all attending the meeting, and special rates for the round trip via Richmond have been secured for July 17.

IN RE THE WORTHINGTON CO.

J. J. LITTLE, receiver for the Worthington Company, has succeeded in recovering the 62 cases of books stored by Mr. Worthington, first in Chicago, and subsequently in the Tower Storage Warehouse in New York, and 26 cases in the Fifth Avenue Storage Warehouse, also in New York, both consignments in the name of Margaret Worthington. These books, together with those released through the decision of Judge O'Brien, of which we make note elsewhere in this issue, and some other property recovered, especially the Bulkley, Dunton & Co.'s claim, which has been decided in Mr. Little's favor by Referee Sanford, represent a value of upwards of $12,000, the proceeds from which will accrue to the profit of the creditors of the defunct concern. Mr. Little intends in a few days to ask the court for permission to pay a dividend of 33 1/3 % to the creditors.

In the afternoon of the 28th inst. Mr. Worthington was arrested in front of the Post building on Broadway, New York, on an order signed by Justice Barrett. Mr. Little is suing Worthington to recover $19,085.71, alleged to have been fraudulently appropriated to his own use. According to Worthington's private accounts, not a little of this money went for "pew rent" and "church."

Mrs. Worthington and Miss Elizabeth Sproule, who were also stockholders in the company, are now in the Catskills. It is alleged that they also obtained from the company through Worthington

4 o'clock waiting for a bondsman fixed at $5000, and, as he did not come, he was sent to Ludlow Street Jail.

Mr. James M. Fisk, the recycler, says: "We think that Worthington's books that rightfully belong to his creditors, and which we are suing Mrs. Worthington and Mr. Little to recover about $40,000, which they have taken from the company without was."

Worthington says that his books are his, and that when he can prove that the books are his he can prove that the company owes him money.

COMMUNICATION

A PROTEST FROM THE AUTHOR OF "SHIPS THAT PASS IN THE NIGHT"

EL CAJON, San Diego Co., Cal.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly

MY DEAR SIR: A volume of "Ships That Pass in the Night," issued by The J. S. Ogilvie Company, of New York, which is sold as if it were my work, thirty-eight pages out of the sixty pages contained in the book by me.

The cover page is worded: "Umbrella Mender," by Beaumont Stowe, author of "Ships That Pass in the Night," other stories, New York, J. S. Ogilvie Company.

The story which has been used in the volume, having been first published in the English periodical, can afford no protection of American copyright to me, however, that the publishers are doing me a personal wrong in giving both to myself and to the public a false ground for complaint in a name material for which I am responsible, and in giving to the reader the impression that the

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE PENN PUBLISHING CO., of Philadelphia, tendered a reception to the National Association of Elocutionists on the evening of the 26th inst., at the Aldine Hotel.

RIVINGTON, PERCIVAL & Co. have just issued "The Publishing House of Rivington from 1711," reprinted from various sources, and edited by Septimus Rivington, illustrated with fac-similes of title-pages, etc., of the earliest publications of the firm, in 1715 and 1720, and with portraits of some of the former members.

THE well-known and popular Union Series of "Physiology and Health" has been recently purchased by E. H. Butler & Co., Philadelphia, and is now included in their extensive list of approved school and college text-books. These "Physiologies" are among those recommended by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

HURST & Co., 135 Grand St., New York, announce that their stock-room has been badly damaged by fire, but that their entire press-room and pamphlet-bindery are intact and will be started again at once. Orders for their various paper-covered books can be filled without delay, and they are prepared to handle all orders as usual.

W. FINLEY & Co., 113 Market Street, Philadelphia, have published the first two volumes of a "Library of Historic Characters and Famous Events," a reference work, giving descriptive sketches of persons and events selected from the writings of authoritative biographers and historians, edited by A. R. Spofford, Librarian of Congress, Frank Weitenkampff, of the Astor Library, and Prof. J. B. Lambertson. The work is to be in ten volumes, and is sold by subscription only.

J. M. DENT & Co., London, have in active preparation a new edition of Madame de Staël's "Corinne." The edition of Sterne, which Mr. Saintsbury is editing for the same firm, will begin with "Tristram Shandy," will include also the "Sentimental Journey," and a selection of the letters and sermons. They have also in preparation, under R. Brimley Johnson's editorship, a collection of ballads in two volumes, to include all the best-known English, Scotch, and Irish ballads known.

MR. ALBERT TURNER, for thirty years connected with the house of Fowler & Wells Co., and well known in some departments of the publishing trade, is announced as the business manager of a new journalistic venture, to be called Health, a Journal of Practical Hygiene, issued by the Health Publishing Co., 84 Reade St., New York. This company will take up the publication and sale of health literature. The New Methods Co., under the same management, and at the same address, is the successor to the Health Supplies Co., of this city, the publishers of Dr. Forest's "New Method in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases," and is also manufacturing and introducing a variety of appliances for the restoration and the preservation of health.

J. SELWIN TAIT & SONS, in response to a considerable demand for a better edition, have just published a neat impression, bound in cloth, of that clever novel, "The Green Bay Tree," by W. H. Wilkins and Herbert Vivian. The book, which is especially valuable for the curious sidelight it throws upon school life at Harrow and college life at Cambridge University, as well as on certain phases of political life in Great Britain, has been attracting considerable attention in England, largely from the fact that nearly all the characters in the book are drawn from life. From the key issued by the publishers it appears that Lord Randolph Churchill, Sir Ashmead Bartlett, Admiral Masse, Prof. J. Seeley, Lady Dorothy Nevill, Vicomtesse Labrosse, and others equally well known in English politics and society are represented by the characters in the book.

JOHN WILEY & SONS will publish in the fall an authorized American edition of "The Principles of Modern Dairy Practice from a Bacteriological Point of View," by Gösta Grotenfelt, president Mustiala Agricultural College, Finland, translated by F. W. Woll, assistant professor of agricultural chemistry, University of Wisconsin. The Swedish original of Dr. Grotenfelt's work has been received with great favor by European dairymen and scientists, and has been translated into several European languages. The American translation has been revised and made thoroughly applicable to our conditions of dairying; the fundamental principles of the production of pure milk and the manufacture and handling of high-grade dairy products are fully treated in this book. It will no doubt prove very helpful to American dairymen and to students of the bacteriology of the dairy.

H. LE SOUDIER, Paris, has just issued Gaston Rontier's "Guillaume II. à Londres et l'Union Franco-Russe" (William II. in London and the Franco-Russian Union), which describes the visit of William II. to the Queen of England, made in July, 1892. The author shows intimate acquaintance with the intricacies of European politics, and his remarks are full of common sense and insight into future complications. He describes the theatrical pageant of the emperor's journey, and gives also a telling picture of the enthusiasm displayed by the two great allies, France and Russia, first at Cronstadt and then at Toulon. M. Le Soudier has also issued an excellent wall-map of Brazil, revised to 1892, by Dr. Innocencio S. Corrêa, assisted by a corps of civil and naval engineers. The map designates railroads, telegraphic and cable communication, steamship lines to and from Brazil, and other necessary information.

THE CENTURY COMPANY will publish in the fall "The Century Cyclopedia of Names," a companion volume (uniform in size and typography) to the "Century Dictionary," edited by Benjamin E. Smith, managing editor of the "Century Dictionary," assisted by a number of eminent specialists. This work, although essentially an independent book, forms an important part of the original plan of the great "Century Dictionary." That work was properly limited, with few exceptions, to the common words of the English language. To relate the proper names to appendixes, where only the briefest treatment of them is possible, was not in accordance with the liberal spirit by which the dictionary was controlled. Accordingly this companion volume was planned, in which the encyclopedic methods of the Century are extended into that great field of names which it could not cover, and its scheme as an "encyclopedic dictionary" is made complete.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

A. J. HOLMAN & CO., Ltd., invite the attention of the Book Trade to their popular NEW EDITIONS of the SELF-PRONOUNCING S. S. TEACHERS' BIBLE in

BOURGEOIS AND MINION TYPE.

Don't be misled. These are the only editions of S. S. Teachers' Bibles in the world that have the many difficult Proper Names throughout the text syllabified and accented, and the many variable vowel and consonant sounds diacritically marked so that the difficulty in the way of correct pronunciation is entirely overcome.

Size, 5½ x 7¾ inches.

REMEMBER, THE PEOPLE WANT
BIBLES THAT CAN BE READ WITHOUT SKIPPING ALL THE HARD WORDS.

ATTENTION IS ALSO DIRECTED TO THE HOLMAN STANDARD EDITIONS OF FAMILY AND PULPIT BIBLE

IN—
The English Language, The German Language, The Danish Language,
The Swedish Language, The Norwegian Language.

The Book of Common Prayer of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States of America exact conformity to the standard of 1892.
